Prospect Park Is 'Senseless'

Arlington Heights Park Supt. Thomas Thornton said Monday that creation of the Prospect Heights Park District "doesn't make sense, at least not to me."

Voters in Prospect Heights Saturday will go to the polls to approve or reject the organization of the new district.

Both Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect have objected to the formation of the new park district.

The Arlington Heights Park District limits are coterminous to those of the village, whose expansion is projected east to Schoenbeck Road.

According to Thornton, plans and park sites for that area, now included in the Prospect Heights Park District, have already been designated on the Arlington Heights master plan.

The McDonald Creek Parkway, planned by Arlington Heights along the creek bed between Hintz, Palatine, Buffalo Grove and Schoenbeck Roads, will be scuttled if the area is organized into the Prospect Heights Park District.

ASKED WHY Arlington Heights Park District hadn't moved to annex this property, Thornton explained, "It wouldn't have been beneficial to the owners. The area is now privately owned unincorporated farm land. When it was subdivided we would have annexed it."

Part of the area is scheduled for a large development by Chesterfield Builders. The area will be annexed to the village as soon as the water supply problem is solved.

The new park district, Thornton said, will never have enough bonding power to do much.

ILLINOIS LAW limits park district bonding power to 2.5 per cent of the assessed valuation. Prospect Heights Park District steering committee attorney John Haas estimated that the proposed district's assessed valuation is about 15 million.

Thornton said that creation of a lot of small park districts is "overlapping" and duplicating of facilities and administration. He predicted that eventually they would merge into a larger park district.

Holiday Deadlines

Thanksgiving week news deadlines will be one day earlier than usual.

Offer Free Chest X-Ray Services

Free chest X-ray service will be available to residents of Arlington Heights Tuesday, Nov. 22, when a mobile X-ray unit will be parked in front of the Ben Franklin Store at 9 W. Campbell St.

The mobile unit is intended to serve as an adjunct to the routine community, industrial, and food handler surveys conducted yearly in various parts of Cook County.

The unit will be available for 70 mm survey X-rays for those who need such service for pre-employment, pre-marital, prenatal, or licensing purposes, as well as for those who have not had their chests checked for tuberculosis within the last year. Diagnostic X-rays are also available.

The service is provided by the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium District in cooperation with the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County.

Approve Sewer Extension To Scarsdale Estates Area

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson was directed by the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees to go ahead with the extension of sewers into Scarsdale Estates, an action which would assure eventual annexation of the entire area.

Trustee John White made a report for the legal committee which concurred with Hanson's earlier recommendation to go ahead with plans to extend sanitary sewer service into Scarsdale.

Russell Lockwood, president of the Scarsdale Estates Association, appeared at the Nov. 7 board meeting and reported that 54 per cent of the residents wished to be served with sanitary sewers from Arlington Heights.

He said that the property owners desiring this service had indicated that they would be willing to annex to Arlington as their property becomes contiguous with the village.

WHITE CITED the experience of the village with the Arlington Knolls area. There, the village proceeded with sewer construction to serve the residents who wanted it. As the project went along more and more residents wanted to be included in the service until the entire area was hooked on to the village facilities and had been annexed.

Current estimates put the cost of sewer construction at $38,933.50 for the entire area, with the exception of a strip along Central Road, where most property owners voted against the service. This boiled down to a cost of approximately $535 per lot for 73 lots.

The cost for all 84 residences not currently served is $48,302.50, for an average cost per residence of $575 per lot. The cost per lot varies from $440 for 14 lots in the area to $855 for 11 of the homes.

Hanson said that the residents would be expected to put in escrow the amount estimated for the cost of sewer extension to their property. They would have to pay more if the cost exceeded the estimate. If the cost should be less the difference would be refunded.

AT THE TIME the money is put in escrow, each resident would be required to sign an annexation agreement with the village.

Hanson said that all those agreeing to annexation could be brought in under one ordinance, while separate ordinances would have to be drawn up as additional Scarsdale residents requested sewer service and annexation.

Trustee Roy Bressler asked why the entire area could not be annexed to the village, based on the desire of Scarsdale residents for sanitary sewer service.

VILLAGE Atty. Jack Siegel answered that such action would require a county court proceeding for annexation, and that this would be costly and time consuming.

Trustee White said that the village would save considerable money by proceeding as planned with the sewer extension procedure.

24 Acres Eyed In First Step

The Navy is requesting 24 acres for housing on the western edge of the Nike Base and may ask for more.

William Hummeland, director of the Navy's Midwest real estate division, told Paddock Publications Monday that the Navy plans 160 housing units along an irregular strip bounded by Central Road on the north and Nike Base limits on the south.

The units would be for families of Glenview Naval Air Station personnel.

The western half of the 137.5-acre Army base is in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary School District 15 boundaries and the eastern half is in Elk Grove Village School District 59.

DISTRICT 15 Supt. C. S. Castor expressed concern about the possible increase in enrollment. Children of Navy personnel would attend Central Road School in the Waverly attendance area.

"Central Road School is already overcrowded," he said. Some 800 students are enrolled there now, he added.

Castor estimated that one or two school children could come from each Navy housing unit.

Hummeland indicated the Navy may request more land at the Nike Base in the future. "The Navy needs more land than the original 24-acre request," said Hummeland.

According to him, land in the Glenview area is priced too high to permit government purchase of property in that area. The high rental rate puts a strain on the pocketbook of the senior NCO's with families, he added.

THE NAVY'S interest in the Nike Base property has stopped all action to dispose of the land. The military has first bid on land declared in excess of the Army's needs, according to a General Services Administration (GSA) official.

If other military services do not requisition the land, it is turned over to the GSA as surplus. The GSA then screens other governmental agencies, such as the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and post offices. If they have no need, the GSA screens state, county, township and city requests for the available land.

The GSA official said school districts can acquire surplus land through the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, often on a free basis.

The Navy's acquisition of land will be discussed at the next District 15 school board meeting, Castor said. He indicated the school district would be interested in acquiring surplus land on the Nike Base for a school site if it becomes available.

THE NAVY'S interest in the land has squelched Arlington Heights Park District hopes to develop an 18-hole golf course on the present site.

The park district had been eying the property for three years.

When 100 acres were declared surplus last December, the park district put in its request for the land. However, the Navy bid took priority over any local request for the property.

AHEAD Week Is Declared

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John G. Woods has declared this week to be AHEAD (Arlington Heights Ecumenical Activities and Discussion) Week.

The activities of the week, planned by the local clergy, include movies, plays, pulpit exchanges, church visitations, a religious art show, a youth project and an inter-church service Sunday, Nov. 20 at Arlington High School.

Train Won't Halt Bank Access

The First Arlington National Bank is proceeding with construction of a $100,000 drive-up banking facility at the corner of Northwest Highway and Miner Street.

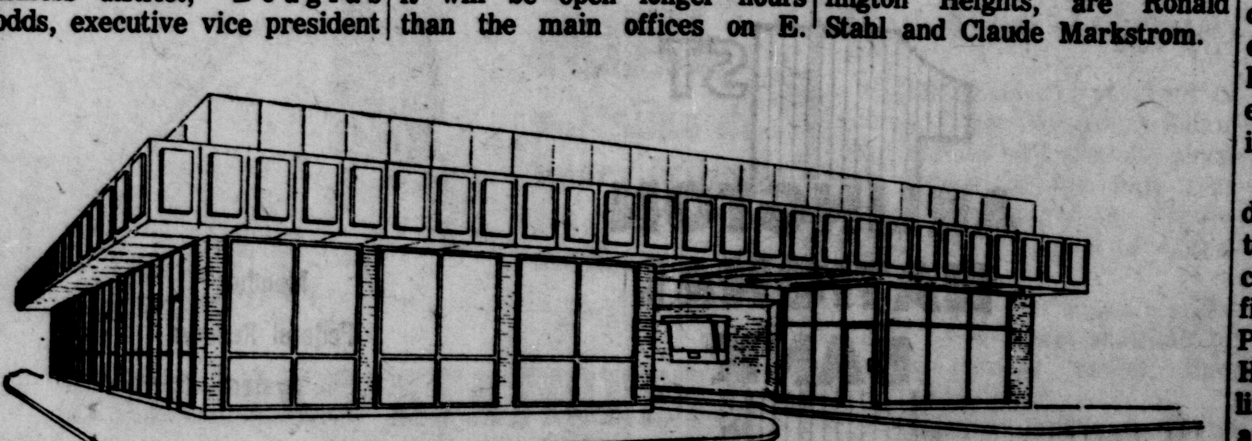
"We figure that this will stimulate business on the north side of the village and provide better balance in the central business district," Douglas Dodds, executive vice president of the bank told the Herald.

"People will be able to get to a bank during commuter rush hours without having to wait for a train," he added.

Plans call for two drive-up windows and a small walk-in lobby. The bank will employ three to five people in the drive-up building, and expects that it will be open longer hours than the main offices on E. Campbell Street.

Construction of the drive-up building became legal last week after Illinois voters okayed an amendment to the state Banking Act, permitting banks to broaden the scope of their financial activity.

The architect and contractor for the facility, both from Arlington Heights, are Ronald Stahl and Claude Markstrom.



UNDER WAY IS THIS NEW drive-in banking facility, to be built north of the railroad tracks in the central business district by the First Arlington National Bank.

For Museum Funds

Campaign Misses Mark

The Historical Society of Arlington Heights didn't make its Nov. 15 goal, but it didn't miss it by much, according to Virgil Horath, chairman of the fund raising campaign.

Horath said Tuesday that the society had less than $1,000 left to collect to reach its $10,000 mark for the museum. A $1,000 contribution by Charles S. Paddock, president of Paddock Publications, early this week, pushed the museum fund total near its goal, he said.

Horath pointed out that Paddock's contribution brought the total number of groups that had contributed or pledged $1,000 to five The other parties besides Paddock are the Arlington Heights Woman's Club, the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association, the Arlington Day and Horath himself.

HORATH SAID over 400 people have contributed $10 or more to the fund. In addition, he said, the historical society has been promised $2,000 for display cases by an anonymous party.

The historical society sent out 800 letters late last week to make certain that the goal is met soon. On Tuesday only one of these pledge cards had been returned.

Today and tomorrow persons wishing to make donations may call the Horath residence at CL 3-9175, the Z. R. Rogozinski residence at CL 3-2643, the Stephen Jurco home at CL 3-5211, Mrs. John Allen at CL 3-0190 or the John Shubeck home at 392-1313.

The Friends of a Museum for Arlington Heights, the fund raising group, will have messengers to pick up the donations and pledges that have been called in.

HORATH SAID that all persons who contribute $100 or more to the museum are designated as patrons and will have their names on bronze plates in the Founders' Room. Parties with donations from $1 to $99 will have their names on a scroll in the Founders' Room.

The monies gathered in local churches last Sunday had not been reported to the society Tuesday, Horath said.

Sanitarian Sets Visits

Restaurants, Food Stores Await Health Inspection

Restaurants and food stores in Arlington Heights can expect an inspection by village sanitarian Richard Dawson in the next two months.

Dawson said he has 60 days left in which to inspect the premises of nearly 120 retail food establishments which are due to be re-licensed for the coming year.

"OUR BIGGEST concern is the new establishments," said Dawson. "We must be certain that they meet the necessary health requirements, and that their buildings and equipment meet these requirements."

Dawson, the first regular sanitarian the village has had, reports that he has been generally well-received by restaurant owners in the area.

THE SANITARIAN said that he chiefly is concerned with cleanliness, and is not apt to shut down an establishment arbitrarily.

"If the place is clean, and there is only one or two features wrong, then I won't close them," said Dawson. He added that he is pleased to find that once he has noted deficiencies, proprietors are quick to take action to correct them.

"I FIND THAT most people are not aware of the regulations, and once they know, they are most cooperative," Dawson commented.

He was forced to restrict the operation of Patch's Pantry, 3 W. Campbell, in late October. Among the deficiencies Dawson noted were: improper washroom facilities, wooden floors in the food preparation area, improper ventilation, and inadequate facilities for the disposal of garbage. Dawson ruled that the delicatessen could not prepare food for catering or carry out.

DELICATESSEN owner Preston Patch said that he agreed that garbage disposal is a problem because he is forced to take the refuse out through the front door. He has no access to an alley at the back of his establishment.

Patch said that he had planned certain changes in the shop, such as covering the kitchen floor, but could not afford major structural improvements such as a washroom on the main floor.

The proprietor said that the village had sent him a list of requirements before he opened business last February, but that it did not include many of the points emphasized by Dawson in his inspection. He added that had he known there was any question of his right to operate in the store, he would never have started there.

According to Dawson, not even the minor regulations listed by the village were being complied with by Patch when he made his inspection of the premises. For instance, he said, there were no thermometers in any of the refrigeration units.

THE PANTRY will close up for good at its present site by the end of November. Patch said he hopes to move to a location on Rand Road near Arlington Heights Road.

The final problem listed by Dawson for village restaurants was garbage disposal. Nobody in town knows how to dispose of garbage, according to Dawson. He said he would like to see the use of plastic disposable liners in restaurant garbage cans.

This would ensure cleaner cans and allow garbage collectors to simply haul the bag from the can and toss it into the truck. There would be no can to lift and the area would remain cleaner, said Dawson.

Math Text Co-Authored By Ulrich

James Ulrich, Arlington High School mathematics department chairman, is co - author of a newly-revised edition of "Essential Mathematics," a textbook designed mainly for high school freshmen.

Advance copies of the text, written by Ulrich and Dr. Francis G. Lankford Jr. of the University of Virginia, are available for examination by schools. It will be published next year by Harcourt, Brace, and World, Inc.

The book is a revision of a text by the same title published in 1961. A third author, Dr. John R. Clarke, then of Columbia University, helped write that book. "The spirit of the first book is pretty much retained in this revised edition," Ulrich said. "The youngster is encouraged to work mathematics in a variety of ways."

Ulrich is president-elect of the Illinois Council of Teachers of Mathematics. He was elected to that post at the group's October meeting in Urbana. The group includes approximately 1,500 mathematics teachers in Illinois.

Library Bids Due Dec. 7

The Arlington Heights Library Board will advertise for bids on the proposed new library as soon as a letter confirming the federal grant appropriation is received, according to library attorney R. Marlin Smith.

Smith said he had been given verbal confirmation of the federal appropriation by Gerald Born, representative of the Illinois State Library. A letter designating state approval of the Arlington Heights plans also is expected within the next few days, Smith said.

The board approved final plans submitted by Nicol and Nicol architects Monday night and authorized the firm to make the plans available to contractors.

Bids on the building will be opened at 8 p.m. Dec. 7 and the contract will be awarded within 30 days after the opening. (A

All first-class mail, voice letters and parcels weighing five pounds or less and measuring less than 60 inches in length and girth combined will be airlifted on a space available basis between the U.S. and all overseas military post offices.

POSTMASTER Virginia Dodge, Arlington Heights, also announced that all second-class publications such as newspapers and magazines published weekly or more often, and featuring current news will be airlifted from San Francisco to armed forces serving in Viet Nam.

Parcels weighing five pounds or less and with the 60-inch-or-less classification will be moved by surface transportation within the U.S. from points of mailing to the port of embarkation and should be clearly marked SAM (surface airlift mail).

Christmas parcels with this classification should be mailed no later than Dec. 1. Air mail to Viet Nam should be sent no later than Dec. 10.

Sanitarian Sets Visits

Restaurants, Food Stores Await Health Inspection

Restaurants and food stores in Arlington Heights can expect an inspection by village sanitarian Richard Dawson in the next two months.

Dawson said he has 60 days left in which to inspect the premises of nearly 120 retail food establishments which are due to be re-licensed for the coming year.

"OUR BIGGEST concern is the new establishments," said Dawson. "We must be certain that they meet the necessary health requirements, and that their buildings and equipment meet these requirements."

Dawson, the first regular sanitarian the village has had, reports that he has been generally well-received by restaurant owners in the area.

THE SANITARIAN said that he chiefly is concerned with cleanliness, and is not apt to shut down an establishment arbitrarily.

"If the place is clean, and there is only one or two features wrong, then I won't close them," said Dawson. He added that he is pleased to find that once he has noted deficiencies, proprietors are quick to take action to correct them.

"I FIND THAT most people are not aware of the regulations, and once they know, they are most cooperative," Dawson commented.

He was forced to restrict the operation of Patch's Pantry, 3 W. Campbell, in late October. Among the deficiencies Dawson noted were: improper washroom facilities, wooden floors in the food preparation area, improper ventilation, and inadequate facilities for the disposal of garbage. Dawson ruled that the delicatessen could not prepare food for catering or carry out.

DELICATESSEN owner Preston Patch said that he agreed that garbage disposal is a problem because he is forced to take the refuse out through the front door. He has no access to an alley at the back of his establishment.

Patch said that he had planned certain changes in the shop, such as covering the kitchen floor, but could not afford major structural improvements such as a washroom on the main floor.

The proprietor said that the village had sent him a list of requirements before he opened business last February, but that it did not include many of the points emphasized by Dawson in his inspection. He added that had he known there was any question of his right to operate in the store, he would never have started there.

According to Dawson, not even the minor regulations listed by the village were being complied with by Patch when he made his inspection of the premises. For instance, he said, there were no thermometers in any of the refrigeration units.

THE PANTRY will close up for good at its present site by the end of November. Patch said he hopes to move to a location on Rand Road near Arlington Heights Road.

The final problem listed by Dawson for village restaurants was garbage disposal. Nobody in town knows how to dispose of garbage, according to Dawson. He said he would like to see the use of plastic disposable liners in restaurant garbage cans.

This would ensure cleaner cans and allow garbage collectors to simply haul the bag from the can and toss it into the truck. There would be no can to lift and the area would remain cleaner, said Dawson.

Math Text Co-Authored By Ulrich

James Ulrich, Arlington High School mathematics department chairman, is co - author of a newly-revised edition of "Essential Mathematics," a textbook designed mainly for high school freshmen.

Advance copies of the text, written by Ulrich and Dr. Francis G. Lankford Jr. of the University of Virginia, are available for examination by schools. It will be published next year by Harcourt, Brace, and World, Inc.

The book is a revision of a text by the same title published in 1961. A third author, Dr. John R. Clarke, then of Columbia University, helped write that book. "The spirit of the first book is pretty much retained in this revised edition," Ulrich said. "The youngster is encouraged to work mathematics in a variety of ways."

Ulrich is president-elect of the Illinois Council of Teachers of Mathematics. He was elected to that post at the group's October meeting in Urbana. The group includes approximately 1,500 mathematics teachers in Illinois.

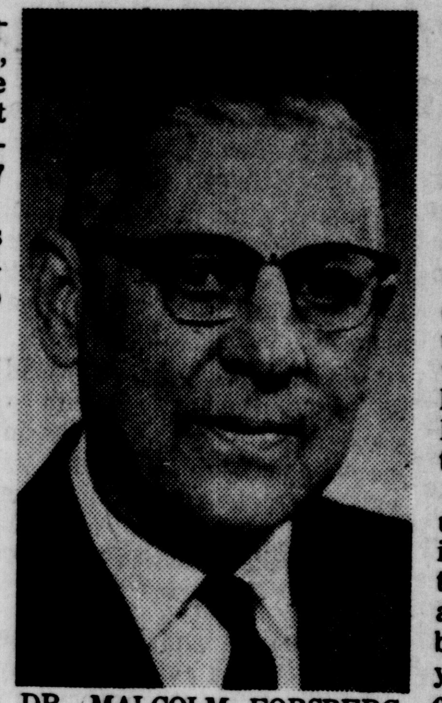
Arlington Heights Couple Plans to Teach in Nigeria



DR. MALCOLM FORSBERG

Jon Didrickson, 326 S. Gibbons Ave., Arlington Heights, and his wife, Jana, will be commissioned missionaries at the Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

They have been accepted as teachers with the Sudan Interior Mission (SIM) and hope to leave for Nigeria in January. Dr. Malcolm Forsberg, a missionary in the Sudan for over 30 years, will represent SIM as guest speaker at Sunday's ceremonies.

Home now at Didrickson's parents' house, the young couple is studying Nigerian problems and customs in preparation for their three year mission.

BOTH MR. and Mrs. Didrickson are graduates of Wheaton College, Wheaton — she, with a B.A. degree in anthropology in Jan., 1966, and he, with a B.S. degree in biology in June, 1965. Didrickson has completed about half of the work for his M.A. in theology and did his missionary apprentice work in British Columbia in the summer of 1965.

Didrickson said they had decided to go to Nigeria for a number of reasons. Primary among those he listed was that they "were interested in sharing the person of Christ" with others. He also said the tremendous shortage of teachers in Nigeria combined with the fact that English is Nigeria's official language had influenced their decision.

Although the Didricksons are uncertain of exactly what or where they will be teaching, they said there are a number of possibilities. Didrickson said he is qualified to teach biology, English or Bible studies, and Mrs. Didrickson would be able to teach a language, social studies or English. They could be placed in a mission school, a public school or in a mission youth work program.

DIDRICKSON pointed out what he considered to be the major difference between African students and problem American students. He said that in Kenya, 55,000 students passed a test qualifying them for higher education. Because of the shortage of teachers, only 2,000 of them were able to continue in school. In contrast, he said, students in some American slum areas are being coaxed to attend four hours of class a day by being paid $32.50 a week.

The Didricksons began mission work last summer in Newark, N. J. While there, they worked with Bill Iverson, a minister who gave up his pulpit to get closer to the people he was trying to reach. Iverson's experiment "crosscounter" an unconventional "luncheonette" where students came to eat lunch and talk about their problems gave the young couple a taste of inner city mission work.

Although the Didrickson's are uncertain of what they will do in Nigeria, they did point out the varied experiences of Dr. and Mrs. Forsberg. The Forsbergs spent their first three years in mission work in Ethiopia prior to the Italian invasion of that country but left that country when the Fascist government expelled all missionaries in 1937.

FROM THERE the Forsbergs went to the then Anglo-Egyptian Sudan where they began teaching the people to read and translating the scriptures for the tribe.

After the church was well organized there, the Forsbergs went to Khartoum, the capital city.

Forsberg has described the early years of their mission work in his book "Land Beyond the Nile." (A

Rezoning Sought For Realty Office

The question of "legalizing" a quarter-acre tract along Northwest Highway in Stonegate subdivision will come before the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees Dec. 5.

The Plan Commission Wednesday gave its approval to petitioner, Ralph Bruns of Bruns Real Estate, to rezone the property to limited commercial use (B-2).

The land is presently zoned multiple-family use (R-5). The realty company and Hilltop Interiors, which occupy the building, are presently designated non-conforming uses.

Bruns told commissioners he is asking for the rezoning to remodel the building into a single-use business.

IF HE SOUGHT only a variation, Bruns pointed out, he won't "recoup his money" under the present non-conforming use. He estimated remodeling would cost $60,000 to $70,000.

Bruns presented his case with the full backing of Stonegate residents. John Gillan, Stonegate Homeowners Association president, testified that the real estate company's plans received unanimous approval by Stonegate residents.

Bruns plans to take out partitions, take down neon signs, put in air conditioning and provide 12 parking spaces in the remodeling.

GILLAN SAID the remodeling would improve the area and that the parking lot would get cars off the street.

"We don't always oppose projects," Gillan quipped.

Bruns Real Estate has been in its present location since 1961. The realty firm was founded in Arlington Heights in 1956. (A

Rotarians Are Host To Belgian Student

"If the United States was settled as densely as Belgium, you'd have 2.6 billion people."

That was one of the many facts told to the Arlington Heights Rotary Club Thursday when Claude Potelle, a Rotary Foundation fellowship student from Belgium. spoke of his country.

A special program at the Carousel Restaurant was kickoff for Rotary Foundation week, in recognition of the $1,100,000 being spent this year on three different projects designed to improve international friendship and understanding. Over $700,000 is being spent on fellowships alone, enabling 165 graduate students from around the world to study a country other than their own.

POTELLE STRESSED the modern business activity of his country, in which a million people have facilities of 45 banks, 12 daily newspapers, and 100 insurance companies at their command. He also told of the modern, high-speed express train that whisks airport passengers to downtown Brussels.

Potelle spoke of the Common Market in which France has more than its share of "the experts" to plan production and science. Tariffs are designed to encourage production within the countries of the Market. Tax on an automobile assembled in Belgium is just 5%, but if brought in from non-market country, the tax jumps to 25%.

Population density is 700 per square mile, skyscrapers are 30-35 stories high, and 500 foreign companies have branch offices in Belgium, with 100 American firms locating there in the past year alone. (A

Profile of District 214 Students

High School District 214's Assistant Superintendent Rod McLennan gave members of the Westgate-Dwyer School PTA in Arlington Heights a picture of the students in his district.

McLennan, who has studied the school district from a socio-economic standpoint and questioned close to 800 students, told the group Tuesday night that the district is hetrogeneous enough to have varying kinds of socio-economic positions represented.

However, he pointed out, the area is definitely a middle-class community of wide-breadth of the typical dormitory type.

EXPLAINING the need for careful student studies such as his own, McLennan said, "If industry is going to put 5 to 10 per cent of its money in research, schools can't afford to do less."

Among the statistics that emerged from McLennan's student survey were a number of figures related to students' responsibility at home.

He said he found that approximately 75 per cent of the students interviewed were asked to help around home either very often or often. About 25 per cent of the students indicated that their parents did not check on where they were going when they left the house. Over 80 per cent of the students polled said their parents expected them home on time "very often" or "often."

McLENNAN also questioned students about their study and recreation habits. Of the students questioned, 95 per cent said they "seldom or never" had their parents help them with homework. Twenty per cent of the students said that their parents checked to make sure they were doing their homework "very often," while 24 per cent indicated that their parents checked "often," and 30 per cent of the parents checked "occasionally." Twenty-six per cent of the students said their parents "seldom or never" checked to make certain they were completing their assignments.

He found that 17 per cent of the students spend no hours per day studying at home. Fifty-nine per cent of them spend one to two hours a day studying at home, and an additional 17 per cent study from three to four hours at home each day. He said he was concerned over the small minority of students at both ends of the spectrum — those studying either too much or too little.

Checking the number of hours students study away from home, McLennan found that 46 per cent of the students spent no time studying away from home. However, about 12 per cent of those polled said they spent from three to six hours studying away from home daily.

HE FOUND that a large minority of the district's students study by themselves. The majority, he said, were found to study with at least one other person.

McLennan found that about 40 per cent of the students polled spend one hour a day on the telephone. About a third of them read a newspaper daily, a third read several newspapers a week and the other third seldom or never read newspapers. Forty-four per cent of the students indicated they read a book (outside of class assignments) each month.

Students in this area associate primarily with people who are their own age, McLennan said.

Throughout his remarks, McLennan stressed that although the majority figures are important, the minority cannot be overlooked. (A

Parking Problems On Way To Solution? May Know Tonight

Recommendations to solve stringent village parking requirements and open the way for major downtown developments will be made at tonight's meeting of a special committee studying parking in Arlington Heights.

Three subcommittees investigating parking standards, financing, and techniques—were asked to bring definite suggestions to the meeting.

Reason for the haste: six major developments pricetagged at $7 to $10 million are stalled until parking requirements are determined.

"This group has to come up with a solution within the next 10 days," Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said last week.

AT A MEETING last week, committee members suggested several solutions to the problem:

—temporarily reducing the costly parking requirements to generate development of the central business district. If a serious parking problem arose in the future, the present policy could be reinstated.

—relax parking requirements on a sliding scale.

—lease village (public) parking spaces to developers to meet their requirements and use the money for a consolidated public parking project.

—allow developers to finance parking over a 20-year period.

ACCORDING TO Trustee John White, most developers are stymied because they can not finance parking projects initially.

"However, developers indicate they would still provide some parking spaces, even if not required by law," Trustee John Walsh said.

"It's clear we have to reduce requirements," Village Atty. Jack Siegel emphasized. "No one has been able to meet the present stipulations."

At present, one parking space is required for every 300 square feet of retail store area and for every 500 square feet of office area.

DEVELOPMENT OF a proposed seven-story office building on the northwest corner of Wing and Evergreen Streets has been halted because of parking restrictions.

Construction of an addition to the First Arlington National Bank, 17 W. Campbell Street awaits a zoning board of appeals decision. Zoning board member Fred Marx, however, pointed out that getting a zoning variation is an "emotional" process. Zoning decisions, he said, often lack uniformity and certainty.

A parking lot survey of municipalities throughout the country showed most had lower parking requirements than Arlington Heights.

Several towns indicated a relaxation of requirements for upper floors of a building to encourage high rises.

The special committee is composed of members of the village board, plan commission, and zoning board of appeals.

Downtown Spaces Are No Problem

Shortage of parking spaces in downtown Arlington Heights is not a problem.

That's the conclusion reached by a special committee formed to investigate the village parking situation.

Statistics compiled by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson indicated a total of 3,093 parking stalls in the central business district and its periphery.

Of these, 2,475 are private and public off-street parking spaces and 618 are metered parking spaces on the street.

Village officials had "guessed" there were 150 to 300 private parking spaces, Hanson told the committee. He said an actual count showed three times as many spaces available—1,160 private off-street parking stalls in the central business district with an additional 552 stalls in adjacent areas.

"It's interesting to see we've never appraised this situation before," he said.

Many parking lots in the rear of private businesses never are two-thirds full, he told the committee. (A

Village Will Buy Site for $100,000

The Arlington Heights board of trustees gave approval Monday night to village attorney Jack Siegel's negotiations to purchase the 75-year-old Van Deusen building at a price of $100,000 to make room for a parking lot.

Although the village will not obtain formal title to the land for 10 years, the agreement provides that the village can alter, change, repair, remove or construct any improvements it wishes on the land.

The village will pay six per cent interest on the purchase over the ten-year period. The building is located at 11 S. Arlington Heights Road, adjacent to the village municipal building.

Village manager L.A. Hanson said the purchase price amounted to a cost of $5.50 per square foot of land, a reasonable rate in his estimation. Some property in the central business district has sold for as high as $15 per square foot in the last year.

ORIGINALLY THE village had planned to take title of the land upon down payment, but Siegel said that attorneys for owner Mrs. Ruth C. Van Deusen insisted on the adopted terms for tax purposes.

The half acre parcel will be used for a 60 space parking lot as part of the Village's comprehensive plan for expansion of downtown parking facilities.

The village board had voted in September to take condemnation proceedings against the property after failing to agree on a purchase price with Mrs. Van Deusen. (A

Kennicott Avenue Rezoning Approved

A rezoning request by Miller Builders and Kenroy Realty Company for property on the east and west sides of Kennicott Avenue near Rand Road was given formal approval Monday night by the Arlington Heights Village board.

The board passed an ordinance rezoning Lot 521, on Aleghany Drive, from R-3 single family to R-5 multiple family use and rezoning the southern portion of Lot 524 from B-1 limited business to R-5 multiple-family use.

THE SPECIAL use permit for a gas station on the southwest corner of Rand Road and Kennicott Drive was held up at the request of Howard Borde, attorney for the petitioner. Borde said that Humble Oil Co., which will build the service station, wants to inspect the village's abandonment clause on the facility.

Borde noted that the present clause would declare the station abandoned if it were not open for 60 days, regardless of whether or not all the equipment remained in the station, or if the owner were searching for a new tenant for the station.

The final plans and elevations of the station must also be submitted to the village building commissioner for final approval before the station can be built. (A

80% of Rats Killed Along Train Tracks

Arlington Heights sanitarian Richard Dawson reports that his rat extermination program along the Chicago and North Western Railway right of way has resulted in an 80 per cent kill of the rodents.

DAWSON SAID that he will rebait the area, and hopes to kill the rest of the rats. He said he plans to inspect the section after the first snow fall to see how much rodent traffic remains.

"I am hoping that the proposed beautification of the railroad right of way will take place before the next infestation," said Dawson.

He explained that such a program would do much to remove sources of water and shelter for the animals.

"YOU CAN kill rats all day long, but you're not going to stop them from coming back," said Dawson. He added that rats need three elements—food, water, and a favorable living environment. One of these must be removed in order to keep down the rodent population.

But, while the railroad rat population has been sharply reduced, Dawson reported he received 47 calls last month about rodent control problems in other parts of the village. He said that he would not be able to deal with all the complaints until after he finished his current intensive inspection of restaurants and food markets in the village. (A

Light Controversy Goes Well Into the Night

Monday night's village board meeting ran a little longer for John Walsh than for other trustees, after he was buttonholed by David Rettberg, 607 E. Davis St., who appeared at the last session of the board to protest erection of an electric sign in front of the Morton Pontiac used car lot.

Rettberg and other residents of E. Davis Street say that the existing light at the Pontiac agency already casts too much light on the fronts of their homes. They want the village to either deny the 22-foot-high sign or to ensure that it will not further illuminate Davis Street, which is across Northwest Highway from the car lot.

WALSH TOLD Rettberg that the village electrical commission had been asked to come up with an answer in the matter. No sooner had he said this than Village Manager L. A. Hanson interjected that the commission had announced that it could make no ruling on the situation.

Walsh then told Rettberg that the public safety committee, to which the matter had been referred by the board of trustees, might be able to make some specific recommendation based on the particular situation, but warned, "I don't think we have grounds for denial of this sign."

"This is a unique situation in Arlington Heights, and it is hard to set up rules for Morton that do not apply to everyone else in town," he added.

Hanson agreed that it would be hard to come up with a standard to fit all situations in the village, and said that this was the main reason that the electrical commission had refused to take action on the matter.

RETTBERG explained that he was not trying to conduct any crusade against the agency.

"I don't care if he wants to light up his lot," said Rettberg, "but I do object when he lights up the sky."

Stan Fasci, used car manager period, in addition to any lights in the middle of the lot.

He took the reporters outside and pointed out the offending lamps. They were burning. The time was 10:05.

for Morton, said that the agency sign — and other lights — go off at 9:30 p.m., with only a single light burning in the middle of the lot to protect the agency from vandals.

Rettberg said this is fine with the Davis Street property owners, but that the signs and lights were not being turned off at the time specified.

Rettberg told reporters that there were a number of unguarded neon "spaghetti" lights left burning after the 9:30 time

Behn Farm Agreement Revised

The Arlington Heights board of trustees heard a report on the annexation agreement with Miller Builders, the developers of the Behn Farm, and decided to revise the agreement.

The board seemed satisfied with a proposal by the developers to put up a letter of credit, rather than cash in escrow, to cover the village requirement for 15 per cent of the land surface value to cover any contingency not anticipated by the builder.

The builders have agreed that their R-5 multiple family area will consist of no more than 50 per cent one-bedroom and 50 per cent two-bedroom units.

THE ISSUE that remains up in the air is whether Miller will dedicate 10 per cent of the land surface to the development of school and park use, or donate a suitable amount of money in lieu of such dedication.

Village President John Woods asked that the school and park boards be consulted on their wishes in the matter, before the village makes any final decision on the matter.

Attorney for the petitioner, Howard Borde, said that he would have to find out from Miller whether the firm prefers to donate the land or the cash.

Medical Office Plans Okayed

The Arlington Heights village board approved by a 4-1 vote the location of a medical office center on Central Road opposite Northwest Community Hospital.

The affirmative vote came after a special committee report by Trustee Thomas Hanlon, which stated that the construction of such a facility would be in the best interests of the community.

Hanlon said that hospital administrator Alan Campbell had told him there could be no real objection to the center as long as its laboratory did not contain radiological X-ray equipment.

According to Hanlon, the hospital board met and voted against the proposed center. He ventured that this was because the hospital hopes to put up a center of its own.

The board gathered around the plans of the proposed office facilities and then gave an affirmative vote, contingent upon a planned development and the issuance of building permits within two years of the ordinance permitting such construction.

Howard Borde, attorney for the developers, said he didn't think there was any need for the time limit, but said that he was in no position to oppose it.

Trustee John Walsh voted against the center. He told the Herald that there were a number of vacant offices in the village in which physicians can locate, and noted that the staff of Northwest Hospital is currently closed. Any new doctors coming into the new center would be unable to practice at Northwest.

Board president John Woods, after a glance at the plans, quipped, "You notice how the proponderance of rooms are waiting rooms." (A

2 Salesmen Arrested

Arlington Heights police Friday arrested two solicitors working in the village, after receiving several complaints from citizens.

Police charged Stanford I. Smalls of South Carolina with disorderly conduct after he reportedly forced his way into two homes on S. Arlington Heights Road last Tuesday evening.

Police said Smalls admitted feigning illness and falling on the floor to gain entrance into a home to sell magazine subscriptions.

THE WOMEN who complained said the solicitor, representing Local Readers Service Inc. of Terre Haute, Ind., refused to leave until they had signed checks in payment for magazine subscriptions.

Another solicitor, Steven B. Bloom of Massachusetts was charged by police with disorderly conduct after he admitted having falsely represented a modeling firm. Police said a housewife complained Bloom had forced her to model various clothing articles for him.

He was released on a $25 bond and is scheduled to appear in Circuit Court Nov. 23. (A

Two Injured In Accident At Wilke Rd.

Two persons were injured last Wednesday in an automobile accident at Wilke Road and Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights.

Treated and released for minor injuries at Northwest Community Hospital were William Flowers, 48, of McHenry and William Harwell, 53, of River Grove.

Police said the accident occurred when Harwell was making a left turn onto Wilke Road. Flowers' car struck the turning auto on the right side.

Police cited Harwell for failure to yield and Flowers for driving too fast for conditions.

High School District 214's Assistant Superintendent Rod McLennan gave members of the Westgate-Dwyer School PTA in Arlington Heights a picture of the students in his district.

McLennan, who has studied the school district from a socio-economic standpoint and questioned close to 800 students, told the group Tuesday night that the district is hetrogeneous enough to have varying kinds of socio-economic positions represented.

However, he pointed out, the area is definitely a middle-class community of wide-breadth of the typical dormitory type.

EXPLAINING the need for careful student studies such as his own, McLennan said, "If industry is going to put 5 to 10 per cent of its money in research, schools can't afford to do less."

Among the statistics that emerged from McLennan's student survey were a number of figures related to students' responsibility at home.

He said he found that approximately 75 per cent of the students interviewed were asked to help around home either very often or often. About 25 per cent of the students indicated that their parents did not check on where they were going when they left the house. Over 80 per cent of the students polled said their parents expected them home on time "very often" or "often."

McLENNAN also questioned students about their study and recreation habits. Of the students questioned, 95 per cent said they "seldom or never" had their parents help them with homework. Twenty per cent of the students said that their parents checked to make sure they were doing their homework "very often," while 24 per cent indicated that their parents checked "often," and 30 per cent of the parents checked "occasionally." Twenty-six per cent of the students said their parents "seldom or never" checked to make certain they were completing their assignments.

He found that 17 per cent of the students spend no hours per day studying at home. Fifty-nine per cent of them spend one to two hours a day studying at home, and an additional 17 per cent study from three to four hours at home each day. He said he was concerned over the small minority of students at both ends of the spectrum — those studying either too much or too little.

Checking the number of hours students study away from home, McLennan found that 46 per cent of the students spent no time studying away from home. However, about 12 per cent of those polled said they spent from three to six hours studying away from home daily.

HE FOUND that a large minority of the district's students study by themselves. The majority, he said, were found to study with at least one other person.

McLennan found that about 40 per cent of the students polled spend one hour a day on the telephone. About a third of them read a newspaper daily, a third read several newspapers a week and the other third seldom or never read newspapers. Forty-four per cent of the students indicated they read a book (outside of class assignments) each month.

Students in this area associate primarily with people who are their own age, McLennan said.

Throughout his remarks, McLennan stressed that although the majority figures are important, the minority cannot be overlooked. (A

Parking Problems On Way To Solution? May Know Tonight

Recommendations to solve stringent village parking requirements and open the way for major downtown developments will be made at tonight's meeting of a special committee studying parking in Arlington Heights.

Three subcommittees investigating parking standards, financing, and techniques—were asked to bring definite suggestions to the meeting.

Reason for the haste: six major developments pricetagged at $7 to $10 million are stalled until parking requirements are determined.

"This group has to come up with a solution within the next 10 days," Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said last week.

AT A MEETING last week, committee members suggested several solutions to the problem:

—temporarily reducing the costly parking requirements to generate development of the central business district. If a serious parking problem arose in the future, the present policy could be reinstated.

—relax parking requirements on a sliding scale.

—lease village (public) parking spaces to developers to meet their requirements and use the money for a consolidated public parking project.

—allow developers to finance parking over a 20-year period.

ACCORDING TO Trustee John White, most developers are stymied because they can not finance parking projects initially.

"However, developers indicate they would still provide some parking spaces, even if not required by law," Trustee John Walsh said.

"It's clear we have to reduce requirements," Village Atty. Jack Siegel emphasized. "No one has been able to meet the present stipulations."

At present, one parking space is required for every 300 square feet of retail store area and for every 500 square feet of office area.

DEVELOPMENT OF a proposed seven-story office building on the northwest corner of Wing and Evergreen Streets has been halted because of parking restrictions.

Construction of an addition to the First Arlington National Bank, 17 W. Campbell Street awaits a zoning board of appeals decision. Zoning board member Fred Marx, however, pointed out that getting a zoning variation is an "emotional" process. Zoning decisions, he said, often lack uniformity and certainty.

A parking lot survey of municipalities throughout the country showed most had lower parking requirements than Arlington Heights.

Several towns indicated a relaxation of requirements for upper floors of a building to encourage high rises.

The special committee is composed of members of the village board, plan commission, and zoning board of appeals.

Village Will Buy Site for $100,000

The Arlington Heights board of trustees gave approval Monday night to village attorney Jack Siegel's negotiations to purchase the 75-year-old Van Deusen building at a price of $100,000 to make room for a parking lot.

Although the village will not obtain formal title to the land for 10 years, the agreement provides that the village can alter, change, repair, remove or construct any improvements it wishes on the land.

The village will pay six per cent interest on the purchase over the ten-year period. The building is located at 11 S. Arlington Heights Road, adjacent to the village municipal building.

Village manager L.A. Hanson said the purchase price amounted to a cost of $5.50 per square foot of land, a reasonable rate in his estimation. Some property in the central business district has sold for as high as $15 per square foot in the last year.

Downtown Spaces Are No Problem

Shortage of parking spaces in downtown Arlington Heights is not a problem.

That's the conclusion reached by a special committee formed to investigate the village parking situation.

Statistics compiled by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson indicated a total of 3,093 parking stalls in the central business district and its periphery.

"It's interesting to see we've never appraised this situation before," he said.

Kennicott Avenue Rezoning Approved

A rezoning request by Miller Builders and Kenroy Realty Company for property on the east and west sides of Kennicott Avenue near Rand Road was given formal approval Monday night by the Arlington Heights Village board.

The board passed an ordinance rezoning Lot 521, on Aleghany Drive, from R-3 single family to R-5 multiple family use and rezoning the southern portion of Lot 524 from B-1 limited business to R-5 multiple-family use.

THE SPECIAL use permit for a gas station on the southwest corner of Rand Road and Kennicott Drive was held up at the request of Howard Borde, attorney for the petitioner. Borde said that Humble Oil Co., which will build the service station, wants to inspect the village's abandonment clause on the facility.

Borde noted that the present clause would declare the station abandoned if it were not open for 60 days, regardless of whether or not all the equipment remained in the station, or if the owner were searching for a new tenant for the station.

The final plans and elevations of the station must also be submitted to the village building commissioner for final approval before the station can be built. (A

Area News Roundup

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS—The Navy revealed this week it will initially want 24 acres for housing at the Army Nike Base at Central and Wilke Roads. The housing will be for Glenview Naval Air Station enlisted personnel and be within the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary School District 15 area.

WHEELING—A survey will be taken in Wheeling to determine how many water mains need to be repaired. A break in a 10 inch main left four industries in the Amerline Industrial park without water for six hours last Friday.

ROLLING MEADOWS—Two major items on the agenda of next Tuesday's city council session will be debate of the proposed three per cent utility tax and adoption of an ordinance redistricting the five wards to even representation of the population.

MOUNT PROSPECT—Village Pres. Dan Congreve has been hit with a $200,000 malicious libel suit brought by Atty. Robert Stanton. Stanton contends he was libeled through statements in letters from Congreve concerning Stanton's re-appointment to the police pension board. Stanton contends he was re-appointed to the board by Congreve, a contention Congreve steadfastly denies.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE—Prince of Peace Methodist Church will hold groundbreaking ceremonies Sunday on its first church building. Chartered six years ago, the sanctuary will be a permanent church home for a congregation that has worshiped in five different places.

HOFFMAN ESTATES—Park District board announced that it proposed to ask for a bond issue for financing administration building construction at the village election next April. Park commissioners said they would meet with village and School District 54 representatives on the possibility of developing a plan for an office center prior to the election.

SCHAUMBURG—Village trustees approved an ordinance this week establishing the village president's position as a full time job effective with the April election of village officers. Pres. Robert Atcher was requested to run for the full-time position and accepted.

PALATINE—Library Director Arthur V. Curley and members of the library board present initial plans for a new library in Palatine to the Village Plan Commission.

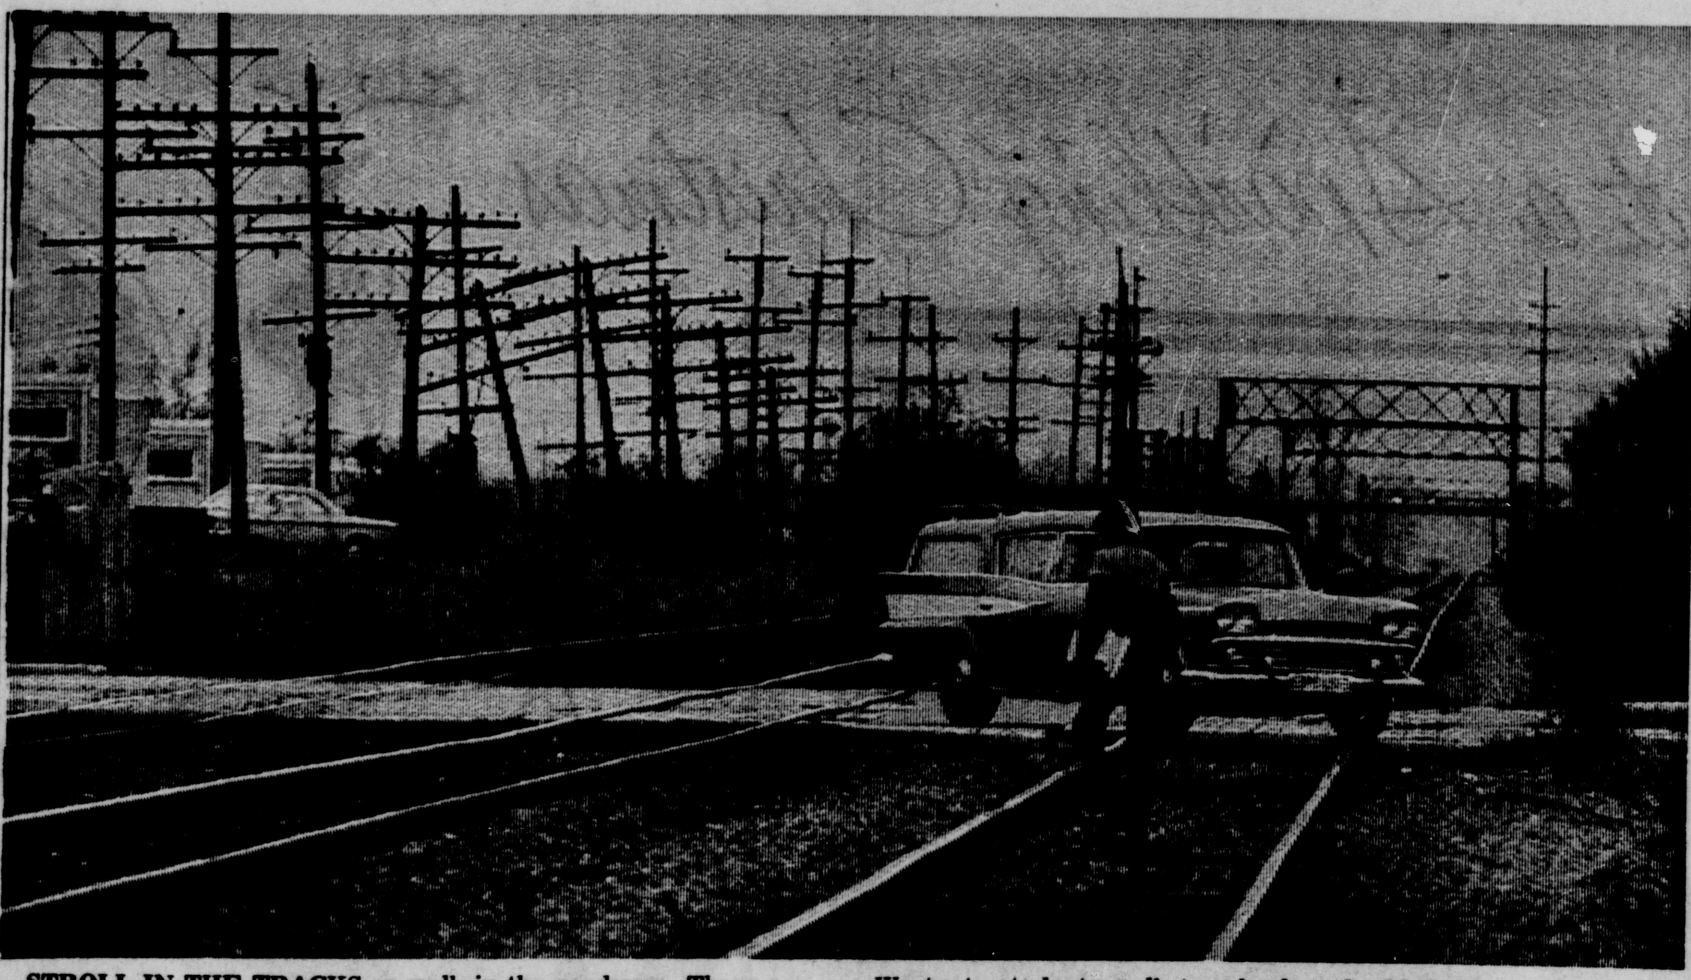
ROSELLE—The Roselle Police Department became Monday one of the first in the area to get village board authorization to participate in the proposed DuPage County Emergency Call-Up Plan for mutual assistance developed by the DuPage County Chiefs of Police Association.

BENSENVILLE—The Fenton High School board and administration are exploring construction methods for a new $125,000 administration center to be paid for out of District 100 building funds. The construction method under consideration is the prefabricated ,or component parts steel plan.

WOOD DALE—Residents in Royal Oaks Subdivision, Route 83, learned in no uncertain terms that they are part of Wood Dale when they met with Wood Dale officials last week. As a homeowner's association, they have pledged to become involved in community and government activities.

ADDISON—With the 1966 general election barely out of the way, voters in Addison are now making plans to decide the fate of a proposed $400,000 library. The referendum is scheduled for Nov. 29.

ITASCA—Spraying of Itasca's elm trees has been tentatively set for next Tuesday. For the first time, the village will use a helicopter to spray the trees against the Dutch Elm disease.



STROLL IN THE TRACKS or walk in the roadway. These are the choices open to Arlington High School students who live south of the Northwest Highway near the school. Euclid Avenue is the only crossing between Wilke Road and Vail Avenue, and there is no provision for pedestrian crossing. Arlington High Principal Bruno Waara points out that most of the Westgate students walk to school, and added that a number of complaints have been received from parents in the area. The Chicago & North Western Ry. now promises the village to provide a pedestrian crossing next summer. The last promise guaranteed that the crossing would be put in last summer. (Staff Photo)

County Building Inspector Cleared of Bribery Charge

A Cook County building inspector, who was arrested in Wheeling in March on "official misconduct" charges for allegedly accepting a bribe, was found innocent Monday in Criminal Court in Chicago.

Sheldon M. Julius, 37, of 3207 W. Division St., Chicago, was suspended by County Board Pres. Seymour Simon immediately after the charges were filed by Wheeling police.

In court Monday, five character witnesses testified to the fact that Julius' reputation for honesty was good.

WHEELING POLICE had charged that Julius approached William Hart, owner of Duo Sign Co. in the village about the bribe money. Julius allegedly told Hart that he would have to pay money for "each sign erected in county territory."

After a discussion, Hart had agreed to pay Julius $50 for each sign.

Then Wheeling Police Officers Thomas Conte and Lt. Robert Llewellyn posed as workers in the sign shop and Conte gave Julius $50 in marked money. The officers arrested him.

Judge Edward F. Healy said, in making his decision on Julius' innocence, that Hart made the charge of attempted bribery only after being warned about possible code violations. Healy added that in view of the testimony of character witnesses, he believed Julius to be innocent.

The case has been continued several times, with the first continuance starting last March.

Meanwhile, after Hart collaborated with police and Julius was arrested and charged, the Cook County zoning department issued him notices of 11 violations on signs he allegedly owned. Only seven of the signs on which violations were issued were actually owned by Hart, he said.

POLICE CHIEF M. O. Horcher said he was quite upset about the ruling by the court. "We can't do any more about this case, but next time we will handle things different," Horcher said. He did not discuss how the next similar case would be handled.

This whole thing has "a foul odor," he added.

Daniel Ferrone, county building inspector administrator, promised an investigation into the case, as did Simon. It was never revealed if such investigations took place.

Arlington Road Off Ramp Vetoed

The Illinois State Toll Highway Commission has decided against installing an off ramp from the Northwest Tollway onto Arlington Heights Road.

Commission Chairman Donald R. Bonniwell said that plans called instead for widening Elmhurst Road to alleviate the present backup of traffic from the ramp onto the tollway. Elmhurst is currently a two-lane road located in the Mount Prospect area.

Bonniwell said that the costs of an exit ramp at Arlington Heights Road would be excessive, adding that such a facility would defeat the purpose of a limited access superhighway.

Bus Service Decision Expected This Friday

A decision on future school bus service is expected to be made by the Arlington Heights Elementary District 25 Board of Education tomorrow (Friday) night.

The bus issue was prompted in September by parents of the Ridge-Patton School attendance area. A group of 57 parents petitioned the board to re-instate bus service for their elementary school children.

Their protest stemmed from a discontinued bus service which had served the area for several years.

The school board asked administrators to study the overall busing problem and to recommend a written bus policy.

QUESTIONS raised by school board officials at the earlier meeting included:

—Should District 25 transport children within a 1.5 mile distance from the school? (The district now provides free transportation to children living 1.5 miles or more from their school in order to receive state assistance.)

—Is the present $5 monthly charge for bus riders adequate to meet bus expenses?

—What can be done about the increase of paying riders in winter months?

—Should the district expect a financial loss in providing "extra" bus transportation?

The school board is expected to enact a general bus policy and make a decision on the Ridge-Patton bus issue.

ARLINGTON Heights lawyer Donald Norman will represent the Ridge-Patton area parents at the meeting. Earlier, 57 parents signed petitions saying they would be willing to pay "a reasonable" fee for bus transportation on a semester or yearly basis.

They indicated if they did not receive transportation services from the school they would investigate contracting for private service with a local bus company.

Meeting time is 7:30 p.m. at the administraiton building, 301 W South St.

Cub Scout Pack 58 in Elk Grove Village held a Space Derby at their November meeting in Rupley School gymnasium.

Each Cub Scout fashioned his own space ship from a block of wood included in the space kit. These were flown along a guide wire stretched across the length of the hall and the winning entries were judged according to the distance traveled.

Prizes were awarded to the three Cub Astronauts whose space vehicles out-distanced the rest of the field: Mark Keplinger, first; Mark Garlish, second; and Don Johnson, third.

Achievement awards were presented to Cub Scouts Mike Tucker and David Anderson who received Wolf Badges; and Mike Panella, who received a Lion Badge and Gold Arrow.

Apartment Lawsuit Hearing Is Nov. 25

Arlington Heights' court fight to block development of a highrise apartment complex south of the village will resume at 11 a.m. on Nov. 25.

The case, first heard by Circuit Court Judge Daniel A. Covelli Monday, is part of the village's fight to curb county zoning power within a 1.5 mile radius of the village limits. The village filed its suit last July.

The property involved, a 32-acre tract between Kirchoff and Central Roads, west of Kennicott Avenue, is less than a mile from the village limits.

Under state statute a municipality has the right to oppose county rezoning of land within 1.5 miles of its limits. When such an objection is filed, three-quarters of the county board is required to approve the rezoning request.

SPEAKING AT THE time the village's suit was filed, Village Atty. Jack Siegel said the village had not been informed that the rezoning was coming before the county board and had not been able to present its case.

The village's consistent opposition to such zoning cases is based on the contention that the county allows building developments to be constructed and leaves the municipality with all the problems of providing police and fire protection and utilities.

Siegel said Tuesday that the village hopes to wind up the case at the Nov. 25 court hearing, but he did not rule out the possibility of another continuance.

In addition to the specific court case against Cook County, Arlington Heights has spearheaded a drive for legislation limiting county zoning within the same 1.5 miles limit.

This action has been endorsed by a number of northwest suburban villages as well as the Northwest Municipal Conference and the Illinois Municipal League.

Village Pres. John G. Woods, will present the Arlington Heights proposal to the Illinois Municipal Problems Commission at its meeting in Des Plaines this morning.

Panel to Study Sex Education

A panel discussion on Sex Education through the Grades will be featured at 8 p.m. Nov. 17 for five Rolling Meadows PTAs. The meeting will be at Carl Sandburg Jr. High School.

Medical, religious and educational views of sex education will be covered by Dr. Louis Leone, Arlington Heights gynecologist and obstetrician; the Rev. J. L. Olson, Bethel Lutheran Church of Palatine, and Mrs. Ruth Staley, teacher at Jonas Salk School. Mrs. Martha Loss, district 15 nurse, will be moderator.

A new Family Living program will be held after the first of the year at Central and Salk schools in Rolling Meadows.

5 Students Have Their Week

Five junior students at St. Patrick's Academy, Des Plaines, are being feted during Youth Appreciation Week, Nov. 12-21, sponsored by the Optimist Club of Des Plaines.

They are Pam D'Andrea, 2150 Des Plaines Ave., Ingrid Nebl, 968 Hollywood, Mary Lane Johnson, 1329 Hazel Court, Barbara Schorsch, 1775 Spruce, and Linda Locke, 1571 Whitcomb.

Among the activities for the five girls are a tour of City Hall, (where they will meet Mayor Herbert H. Behrel), the police department, fire department and water works, a luncheon at the Elks Club, a tour of United Air Lines at O'Hare airport, a tour of the Cook County Jail and a banquet.

DOOR Sponsoring Dinner and Movie

DOOR, Inc., which provides work and training for the mentally retarded, is sponsoring a dinner and late movie at 8 p.m. next Monday and Tuesday at the Union Hotel in Wheeling to raise funds for the organization.

August Stavros, board president of DOOR, said the dinner-movie benefit is slated to help raise operating funds for the "sheltered workshop."

Cost of the dinner and movie is $12 per couple.

Stavros said he could not reveal the name of the movie because then DOOR would be forced to pay royalties on it.

DOOR WAS organized in October 1964 and has a membership of 50, largely concentrated in the Wheeling area. However, members come from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine.

Handicapped persons come to the workshop for training, after which, it is hoped, they will be placed in jobs suited for their abilities.

The organization provides work for training the mentally, physically and emotionally handicapped in an atmosphere of business and industry.

Stavros said the organization needs about $16,000 in salaries and other expenses annually which cannot come from a federal grant which the organization received to buy equipment.

There are 11 persons in the workshop presently, said Stavros, and there would be more if "we had room for them." The workers make chess sets, package things and do other duties.

"IT'S AN ATTEMPT to make citizens useful in society," said Stavros.

The organization received a $15,000 grant from the federal government, but Stavros says this can only be used on equipment and employes hired after the money was awarded.

Tickets for the benefit may be purchased at DOOR, Inc., 729 W. Dundee Road, Wheeling, at the hotel Monday or Tuesday night.

School Meeting Date Changed

The School District 59 board has changed its second November meeting from Monday to Tuesday to be in Juliette Low School.

Board members plan to attend Monday a conference of the Illinois Association of School Boards in the Sherman House, Chicago.

The meeting at 8 p.m. will follow a board tour of the new open-area concept school. Other meetings will continue to be the first and third Mondays of the month.

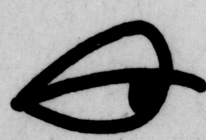
Eye on Arlington

Comes a Time To Cool Tempers

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

How soon do tempers cool once an election's over?

Pretty quickly, election judges at Ivy Hill School's paper ballot Precinct 60 polling place have found.



The five Arlington Heights judges achieved a fame—of sorts—by having the last precinct in the county to finish its election count.

Wednesday after the election they were ducking (sleepily, after 26 hours on the job) a spate of nasty comments from Democratic County Clerk Eddie Barrett. "What were they doing all night, playing ping-pong?" Barrett snapped. Probably glad for a chance to vent his annoyance at the Republican tide, he turned on the suburban precinct that claimed 97 per cent turnout with its vote.

UNDER A COURT ORDER, the Precinct 60 judges finished their count Saturday in Chicago—and found Barrett's tune had sweetened up.

He apologized, gave them another day's pay, sent in sweet rolls and coffee, fended off metropolitan press photographers, and capped it by ordering a buffet luncheon from the Sherman House. It was served by waiters and a maitre d' and was on the cuff. Taxpayers who probably picked up the tab may note an extra drain, but the five Arlington election judges were delighted.

At that, recounting the 2,120 paper ballots took some time. It was 8:30 p.m., Mrs. Phyllis Bishop says, before they headed home by train.

Whether other—Republican—tempers will cool off, too, is something school people would like to know.

THEY'RE WONDERING if the ire aimed at the northwest suburban teachers group for daring to back a Democrat will be turned against school district bond referendums and school board elections.

The school people say that since both Republican state representatives were in no danger, GOP supporters are only vending sour grapes in resenting the Illinois Education Association's decision to back Mrs. Eugenia Chapman's re-election.

One Democrat was sure to win, the IEA leaders point out correctly. They chose to try to "make a difference" by trying to keep education expert Mrs. Chapman representing the 3rd District. Their support was a major factor in her win.

TO THREATS THAT THE IEA work for Chapman justifies GOP entry into school board affairs, cynics in education ranks are likely to retort, "What's new?" School men charge that anti-federal aid agitation at or within school boards is prompted only by political motives, not concern for children's better schooling.

But it will be interesting to see whether Wheeling GOP chairman Eugene Schlickman will still hold firm against activists in his party who urge use of the Grand Old Party's leverage against the schools. He's stood with the wing of the local party that has argued against intrusion of politics in school (and local government) affairs.

HIS ACTIVIST ENEMIES, many of them in what once might have been termed the Novotny camp, have long wanted to use party strength to uphold their own principles in school matters.

Some Republicans used party channels in urging defeat of the Junior College referendum 18 months ago. Others took out against two District 214 board members last April. Neither time did the Republican activists win out.

But the teachers' excursion (successfully, be it noted) may make it harder for Schlickman—should he want to do so—to stem the tide.

County Building Inspector Cleared of Bribery Charge

A Cook County building inspector, who was arrested in Wheeling in March on "official misconduct" charges for allegedly accepting a bribe, was found innocent Monday in Criminal Court in Chicago.

Sheldon M. Julius, 37, of 3207 W. Division St., Chicago, was suspended by County Board Pres. Seymour Simon immediately after the charges were filed by Wheeling police.

In court Monday, five character witnesses testified to the fact that Julius' reputation for honesty was good.

WHEELING POLICE had charged that Julius approached William Hart, owner of Duo Sign Co. in the village about the bribe money. Julius allegedly told Hart that he would have to pay money for "each sign erected in county territory."

After a discussion, Hart had agreed to pay Julius $50 for each sign.

Then Wheeling Police Officers Thomas Conte and Lt. Robert Llewellyn posed as workers in the sign shop and Conte gave Julius $50 in marked money. The officers arrested him.

Judge Edward F. Healy said, in making his decision on Julius' innocence, that Hart made the charge of attempted bribery only after being warned about possible code violations. Healy added that in view of the testimony of character witnesses, he believed Julius to be innocent.

The case has been continued several times, with the first continuance starting last March.

Meanwhile, after Hart collaborated with police and Julius was arrested and charged, the Cook County zoning department issued him notices of 11 violations on signs he allegedly owned. Only seven of the signs on which violations were issued were actually owned by Hart, he said.

POLICE CHIEF M. O. Horcher said he was quite upset about the ruling by the court. "We can't do any more about this case, but next time we will handle things different," Horcher said. He did not discuss how the next similar case would be handled.

This whole thing has "a foul odor," he added.

Bus Service Decision Expected This Friday

A decision on future school bus service is expected to be made by the Arlington Heights Elementary District 25 Board of Education tomorrow (Friday) night.

The bus issue was prompted in September by parents of the Ridge-Patton School attendance area. A group of 57 parents petitioned the board to re-instate bus service for their elementary school children.

Their protest stemmed from a discontinued bus service which had served the area for several years.

The school board asked administrators to study the overall busing problem and to recommend a written bus policy.

QUESTIONS raised by school board officials at the earlier meeting included:

—Should District 25 transport children within a 1.5 mile distance from the school? (The district now provides free transportation to children living 1.5 miles or more from their school in order to receive state assistance.)

—Is the present $5 monthly charge for bus riders adequate to meet bus expenses?

—What can be done about the increase of paying riders in winter months?

—Should the district expect a financial loss in providing "extra" bus transportation?

The school board is expected to enact a general bus policy and make a decision on the Ridge-Patton bus issue.

ARLINGTON Heights lawyer Donald Norman will represent the Ridge-Patton area parents at the meeting. Earlier, 57 parents signed petitions saying they would be willing to pay "a reasonable" fee for bus transportation on a semester or yearly basis.

They indicated if they did not receive transportation services from the school they would investigate contracting for private service with a local bus company.

Meeting time is 7:30 p.m. at the administraiton building, 301 W South St.

Apartment Lawsuit Hearing Is Nov. 25

Arlington Heights' court fight to block development of a high-rise apartment complex south of the village will resume at 11 a.m. on Nov. 25.

The case, first heard by Circuit Court Judge Daniel A. Covelli Monday, is part of the village's fight to curb county zoning power within a 1.5 mile radius of the village limits. The village filed its suit last July.

The property involved, a 32-acre tract between Kirchoff and Central Roads, west of Kennicott Avenue, is less than a mile from the village limits.

Under state statute a municipality has the right to oppose county rezoning of land within 1.5 miles of its limits. When such an objection is filed, three-quarters of the county board is required to approve the rezoning request.

SPEAKING AT THE time the village's suit was filed, Village Atty. Jack Siegel said the village had not been informed that the rezoning was coming before the county board and had not been able to present its case.

The village's consistent opposition to such zoning cases is based on the contention that the county allows building developments to be constructed and leaves the municipality with all the problems of providing police and fire protection and utilities.

Siegel said Tuesday that the village hopes to wind up the case at the Nov. 25 court hearing, but he did not rule out the possibility of another continuance.

In addition to the specific court case against Cook County, Arlington Heights has spearheaded a drive for legislation limiting county zoning within the same 1.5 miles limit.

This action has been endorsed by a number of northwest suburban villages as well as the Northwest Municipal Conference and the Illinois Municipal League.

Village Pres. John G. Woods, will present the Arlington Heights proposal to the Illinois Municipal Problems Commission at its meeting in Des Plaines this morning.

Panel to Study Sex Education

A panel discussion on Sex Education through the Grades will be featured at 8 p.m. Nov. 17 for five Rolling Meadows PTAs. The meeting will be at Carl Sandburg Jr. High School.

Medical, religious and educational views of sex education will be covered by Dr. Louis Leone, Arlington Heights gynecologist and obstetrician; the Rev. J. L. Olson, Bethel Lutheran Church of Palatine, and Mrs. Ruth Staley, teacher at Jonas Salk School. Mrs. Martha Loss, district 15 nurse, will be moderator.

A new Family Living program will be held after the first of the year at Central and Salk schools in Rolling Meadows.

Each Cub Scout fashioned his own space ship from a block of wood included in the space kit. These were flown along a guide wire stretched across the length of the hall and the winning entries were judged according to the distance traveled.

Prizes were awarded to the three Cub Astronauts whose space vehicles out-distanced the rest of the field: Mark Keplinger, first; Mark Garlish, second; and Don Johnson, third.

Achievement awards were presented to Cub Scouts Mike Tucker and David Anderson who received Wolf Badges; and Mike Panella, who received a Lion Badge and Gold Arrow. (E

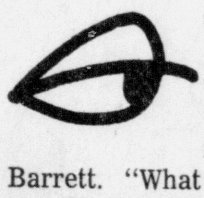
Comes a Time To Cool Tempers

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

How soon do tempers cool once an election's over?

Pretty quickly, election judges at Ivy Hill School's paper ballot Precinct 60 polling place have found.



The five Arlington Heights judges achieved a fame—of sorts—by having the last precinct in the county to finish its election count.

Wednesday after the election they were ducking (sleepily, after 26 hours on the job) a spate of nasty comments from Democratic County Clerk Eddie Barrett. "What were they doing all night, playing ping-pong?" Barrett snapped. Probably glad for a chance to vent his annoyance at the Republican tide, he turned on the suburban precinct that claimed 97 per cent turnout with its vote.

UNDER A COURT ORDER, the Precinct 60 judges finished their count Saturday in Chicago—and found Barrett's tune had sweetened up.

He apologized, gave them another day's pay, sent in sweet rolls and coffee, fended off metropolitan press photographers, and capped it by ordering a buffet luncheon from the Sherman House. It was served by waiters and a maitre d' and was on the cuff. Taxpayers who probably picked up the tab may note an extra drain, but the five Arlington election judges were delighted.

At that, recounting the 2,120 paper ballots took some time. It was 8:30 p.m., Mrs. Phyllis Bishop says, before they headed home by train.

Whether other—Republican—tempers will cool off, too, is something school people would like to know.

THEY'RE WONDERING if the ire aimed at the northwest suburban teachers group for daring to back a Democrat will be turned against school district bond referendums and school board elections.

The school people say that since both Republican state representatives were in no danger, GOP supporters are only vending sour grapes in resenting the Illinois Education Association's decision to back Mrs. Eugenia Chapman's re-election.

One Democrat was sure to win, the IEA leaders point out correctly. They chose to try to "make a difference" by trying to keep education expert Mrs. Chapman representing the 3rd District. Their support was a major factor in her win.

TO THREATS THAT THE IEA work for Chapman justifies GOP entry into school board affairs, cynics in education ranks are likely to retort, "What's new?" School men charge that anti-federal aid agitation at or within school boards is prompted only by political motives, not concern for children's better schooling.

But it will be interesting to see whether Wheeling GOP chairman Eugene Schlickman will still hold firm against activists in his party who urge use of the Grand Old Party's leverage against the schools. He's stood with the wing of the local party that has argued against intrusion of politics in school (and local government) affairs.

HIS ACTIVIST ENEMIES, many of them in what once might have been termed the Novotny camp, have long wanted to use party strength to uphold their own principles in school matters.

Some Republicans used party channels in urging defeat of the Junior College referendum 18 months ago. Others took out against two District 214 board members last April. Neither time did the Republican activists win out.

But the teachers' excursion (successfully, be it noted) may make it harder for Schlickman—should he want to do so—to stem the tide.

Rural Free Delivery has come to stay and the time will come when the mail will be delivered at least once a day at every farmhouse in this county . . . It is a wrong theory that because there is comparatively little mail to be delivered in the rural districts and because the residents are widely separated they should be obliged to go several miles to a post office while the city dwellers have their letters brought to their houses or offices several times a day.

Citizens Unit Gets Homework

Members of Arlington Heights Elementary School District 25's citizens' committee were divided into four study groups and got their first homework assignment Monday night.

AT THE BRIEFING, committee chairman Norval Stephens separated the 22 volunteers into four subcommittees—evaluation and review of District 25's operating budget; review of classroom needs and construction requirements; review of the consequences of the Sept. 26 tax referendum defeat; and evaluation of the background of the "no" vote.

Stephens directed each group to meet separately and report back to a committee-of-the-whole Nov. 28.

A special school board committee, headed by Ted Seiler, spearheaded the formation of the citizens' committee. The board committee will act as liaison between the board of education and the citizens' group.

SUPT. RALPH Clabaugh briefly reviewed the financial operation of the school district. Citizens were given copies of the 1966-67 school budget, the recent financial survey conducted by a University of Chicago team, and referendum fact sheets to add to their committee packets.

A committee member, George Beachan gave a background report of the University of Chicago survey.

MEMBERS OF the citizens' group include: John Allen, 504 S. Donald Ave.; George Beacham, 1516 N. Kennicott Ave.; Joseph Buzzelli, 614 E. Valley Lane; Robert Chaney, 1119 N. Dunton Ave.; Charles Clemins, 1017 Mayfair Road; Joseph Cole, 33 N. Donald Ave.; Richard Cowen, 124 N. Gibbons Ave.; Robert Dallsteam, 2305 N. Lafeyette Ave.; Jack Edwards, 1612 N. Ridge Ave.;

Haddow Ave.; Joseph Wanner, 404 Larkdale Lane; and Marion Letzel, 1237 N. Chestnut Ave.

STEPHENS pointed out the list was not complete. He encouraged the citizens' committee to add others—who could contribute to the group.

Pointing out the diversity of the membership, Stephens said the group consists of persons with strong business backgrounds in such areas as financial analysis, accounting, sales, marketing, planning, and architecture.

Stephens said he has put no time schedule on committee work but added he hoped to have most of the work finished by the end of December.

Clabaugh to Serve On School Panel

Ralph Clabaugh, superintendent of Arlington Heights Elementary District 25, will serve on a three-member panel Monday afternoon at the 52nd annual joint meeting of the Illinois School Board Association and the Illinois School Administrators Association.

The panel, composed of Clabaugh, Mrs. Eugenia Chapman, state representative, and Edward Epstein, president of the Illinois School Board Association, will discuss "Schoolmen, Boards, and Politics."

The three-day convention begins Saturday with a general session at the Sherman Hotel in Chicago. Dr. Joseph Ackermann, president of the National School Boards of Education and Elmhurst School Board president, will speak.

DISTRICT 25 board member, Robert Penn, is a delegate to the Saturday afternoon business session.

Other convention highlights are: Dr. Wendell Pierce, executive director of the Interstate Compact on Education, will speak Sunday at 1:30 p.m. Dr. Ben Hubbard, professor at Illinois State University in Normal, will present an analysis of work done by the Illinois Task Force on Education. Governor Otto Kerner will speak at the closing banquet Monday evening.

District8 25 board members attending the banquet are: Penn, Victor Myer, Charles Bennett, and Robert Buchowski. District 25 administrators attending are: Clabaugh, Robert Campbell, assistant administrator; Peter Bakas, business manager; and Leslie Shadel, assistant business manager.

An appeal to the Illinois Liquor Control Commission made by Thomas Kouros, proprietor of the Arlington Heights Bowling Lanes, Inc., will be continued until December.

His attorney, Paul Knott of Arlington Heights, said he asked the commission for a continuance on the hearing until after the criminal hearing Dec. 9. The liquor hearing originally was set for Nov. 15.

Kouros is scheduled to appear in Circuit Court Dec. 9 on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

IN OCTOBER, Acting Liquor Control Commissioner, Francois Palmatier revoked Kouros' liquor license for 30 days. Kouros was charged with giving liquor to a minor and serving after hours.

The bar of the bowling lanes reopened pending the appeal to the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

The appeal asserts that the findings of Commissioner Palmatier were "capricious, arbitrary, unjust and predetermined."

Arlington Heights police arrested Kouros after a 17-year-old girl charged him with molesting her Oct. 13. Kouros, 38, of 440 Creekwood Drive, Palatine was released on a $2,000 bond.

Township, Village Agree On Thomas Street Paving

Wheeling Township and the Village of Arlington Heights have agreed to put their heads together and get Thomas Street paved.

Meeting with township road commissioner Larry Carrozza last week, the board of local improvements (BOLI) authorized its president, Sam Rudder, to sign an agreement with the township for a joint letting of bids on the portion of Thomas Street between Arlington Heights Road and Dunton Avenue.

The project is to be completed next summer.

The south half of the two block stretch is in the village while the north half is in the township. The village portion of the project will be done by special assessment, and the township's half-street will be financed by county Motor Fuel Tax funds.

CARROZZA said the county would pay $10,700 of the township bill. The difference between the county's allocation and the project cost will be taken from the township's road and bridges funds.

The village is currently fighting the Northwest Medical Center's, 1430 N. Arlington Heights Road, objections to the spread of the assessment.

"I feel we should fight right down to the wire and not give them one dime," BOLI member Harold Klingner said. He said that the village had vacated land for the center at a price of only 25 cents a square foot while land immediately north of the vacated property was selling at $2.25 a square foot.

"I think they're chintzy," he said.

According to Carrozza the township plans to fill in the remaining 1.5 blocks on the township side of the street. He said the township would be able to pave the filled area about six or seven months after the fill has been put in.

Carrozza and township auditor Albert Peters also said the township would be paving Thomas Street from Wilke Road east as well.

REPORTING on the one-block section of Thomas Street between Ridge and Kennicott Avenues, Klingner said that delegates from the Lutheran Home for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton St., would be meeting in January to decide upon dedication of land for the street. He said the Rev. John M. Kempf had told him that the board of directors of the home was recommending the dedication.

Interchurch Service First in Village

Arlington Heights residents can sign up for "Living Room Dialogues" Sunday at the first interchurch worship service ever held in the village.

The "Thanksgiving for Unity" service will take place at 8 p.m. in Arlington High School boys' gymnasium.

Use of a public building, rather than a church, was required by Chicago Archbishop John Cody in giving permission for Catholics to participate in this week's ecumenical activities. It was the only limitation the bishop put on Catholic participation in the inter-church events.

THE WORSHIP service, and other activities preceding it—are sponsored by the AHEAD (Arlington Heights Ecumenical Activities and Discussion) committee of the village's Clergy Fellowship.

Seven clergymen will participate in the unity service.

They are the Robert Strzelecki of St. James Catholic Church, Dr. Paul Stumpf of the First Presbyterian Church, Rev. Joel Henning of St. Simon's Episcopal, Rev. Edward Schreiber of Our Lady of the Wayside, Rev. Donald Pritz of Our Saviour Lutheran, Rev. Robert MacDonald of St. John's United Church of Christ and Rev. Gerald Robinson of the First Methodist Church.

PASTOR PRITZ is chairman of the Clergy Fellowship.

At other meetings this week persons interested in joining "Living Room Dialogues," discussion groups about inter-church activities, will have an opportunity to sign up.

"These groups will use a book approved by official organizations of both the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches," Rev. W. Rowland Koch, AHEAD chairman, said in telling of plans for the discussion meetings.

Meeting in homes, the discussion groups will be limited to 12 to 15 persons each.

Father Strzelecki and Rev. Robinson will direct the program of dialogues, which will continue on a meeting-a-month basis until June. (A

Medicare Home Nursing Program Under Study

The Public Safety Committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board and the Board of Health were scheduled to meet yesterday with representatives of the State of Illinois to discuss the establishment of a medicare program for extended home nursing in Arlington Heights.

Nurses cannot simply offer their services in a community and be reimbursed by the federal government, Maria Coburn, director of Arlington Heights health services, explained to the Herald. The nurse must first be certified by a public health agency acceptable to the state.

Such a provision ensures top-level nursing care, said Mrs. Coburn. She added that her own qualifications as a public health nurse will allow Arlington Heights to run a medicare-backed nursing program through the village public health service office.

IN ADDITION to the nursing service, Mrs. Coburn said that the local agency must also provide one other service. This could be speech correction. psychological counseling or physical therapy.

The local agency may either hire or contract for such additional services, according to Mrs. Coburn.

The medicare program sets certain guidelines and the state does not run the program or appoint personnel at the local level, said the health director.

As long as the agency administering the intensive care nursing program meets federal specifications it is acceptable to the state as well.

Mrs. Coburn noted that the provisions of the nursing program insist that the nurse consult with a physician every two months on the course of treatment being administered to patients under her care.

ADDITIONAL requirements call for: a specific nursing guide to be spelled out by the local community; the qualifications and job specifications of each position to be filled; and an in-training educational program to be administered by the local agency.

"The cost of a nursing visit is left to an intermediary in the area of operation," said Mrs. Coburn. "In the case of Arlington Heights it would be Blue Cross."

The local agency would discuss the costs of service with the intermediary, and the village would have to go along with the original cost estimate, she said. If the final costs are higher for the first year of operation, then the village would have to make up the difference.

"You must operate for a year before you know exactly what the cost of a visit will be," Mrs. Coburn said.

The Wednesday night meeting was requested by the safety committee in order that the village board might have a better idea of the provisions of the medicare program, and expert opinion on the subject from the board of health. (A

Youth Arrested

Arlington Heights police arrested a 16-year-old youth Friday morning after an accident at Central Road and Arthur Avenue in Arlington Heights.

Police charged Barry J. Carlson, 1007 W. Lincoln St., Mount Prospect with speeding and running a boulevard stop when his auto skidded through a stop sign at Arthur Street and struck an auto driven by Rosalie J. Merutka, 54, of 339 Pleasant Hill, Palatine.

Mrs. Merutka was taken to Northwest Community Hospital where she was treated for an injured right knee and released.

Police said Carlson was traveling about 60 miles-per-hour prior to the collision. He told police he applied his brakes when he saw the stop sign, but was unable to stop in time to avoid the collision. (A (M (P

Caucus Will Put Undefeated Election Record on the Line

Arlington Heights' Village Caucus, undefeated since its organization 12 years ago, will start the process of selecting candidates Monday for next April's election.

Lowell Christy, Caucus chairman, has set the nominating committee's initial meeting for 8 p.m. in the Miner Junior High gymnasium.

EVERY registered citizen in the village is eligible to vote at the meeting, at which the Caucus will:

—Elect new officers.

—Choose a selection committee chairman.

—Meet in groups representing each village precinct to choose 22 representatives to the selection committee.

In next April's off-year election, only municipal offices open will be those now held by trustees Jack Walsh, Thomas Hanlon and Carl Mees. None have indicated whether they are interested in serving another term.

The candidate selection committee will reinterview the trustees—if they decide to run again—and will question any other persons nominated for the posts. Nominations are traditionally sought throughout the village from both organizations and individuals, in keeping with the Caucus' purpose of "seeking the best qualified candidates for every job."

The selection committee's choices—two for each post open—will be voted on at a second Caucus public meeting in mid-February.

CANDIDATES chosen by the Town Hall-type meeting next February must subscribe to the village Caucus' general statement of principles but otherwise will form their own Caucus Party—and set up their own party platform.

Formed in the 50s in the wake of early village growth by newcomers seeking to challenge an entrenched village leadership they considered behind the times, the Caucus has never been defeated.

It has been challenged by businessmen's slates and economy movements—and once by a write-in effort backed by Democratic chairman Jimmy Stavros.

A key to the Caucus' success in the past has been its leaders' determination to "let the office seek the man" and to select strictly on nonpartisan grounds.

IN 1965, however, party precinct leaders predominated on the caucus selection committee list and the even victory margins garnered at the Caucus final meeting were pointed to by some observers as evidence that partisan politics had captured—or at least decisively influenced—the Caucus vote.

Local observers will be watching for a similar move this time—or formation of Caucus opposition, either by the Democrats or by an organization like The People, which has expressed interest in taking the Caucus on.

Caucus leaders such as Fred Marks defend the Caucus system, however, as a structure designed to let each village citizen have his say.

The Caucus can only provide the opportunity for citizen selection of village candidates, they say.

OF THE TWO Caucus public meetings, local supporters of the nominating committee say that the first is at least as important as the second—though less exciting.

It is at this meeting that the important interview committee is elected and the chairmen chosen.

Prime candidate for chairman of the Caucus is Paul Knott, vice chairman for the past two terms. Knott was almost nominated for chairman in 1965 but was nudged out of the top spot by Christy by a narrow margin after Christy lost the selection committee chairmanship to Andrew Lofquist.

Other members of the Caucus board include Arthur H. Franzen, treasurer; Mrs. Alice Harms, secretary; Edgar F. Neas, advisory committee chairman; Lester H. Ploetz, advisory committee members; Carl H. Pasquale, publicity, and Robert Lane, finance. (A

Plans Halted

Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) plans to straighten out a 33-foot jog in Eastman Street were stopped short last week when Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson recommended that BOLI not buy the necessary right-of-way from George Poole.

STEPHEN JURCO, attorney for Poole, blocked the project further when he informed BOLI that Poole would not be willing to accept paving of the street as an offset for dedication of the land.

BOLI had proposed to buy a 244-foot-long strip on the north side of Eastman Street, west of Ridge Avenue, from Poole. A total of 8,052 square feet of land were involved. (A

DIABETES WEEK
NOVEMBER 13 TO 20

There are too many unknowing diabetics, so this week is set aside to urge every susceptible person to make a safety check. Because there are no discomfort pains at the onset of diabetes, this disease can cause serious harm before normal discovery.

If there is a history of any diabetics in the family and especially if overweight, diabetes is a hazard. About one out of every 50 has it. A quick easy test is to dip a strip of testing paper in the urine. If there is a color change showing sugar, a more positive test by a physician is a "must." We stock this testing paper in our very complete Diabetic-Aids section.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound yours?

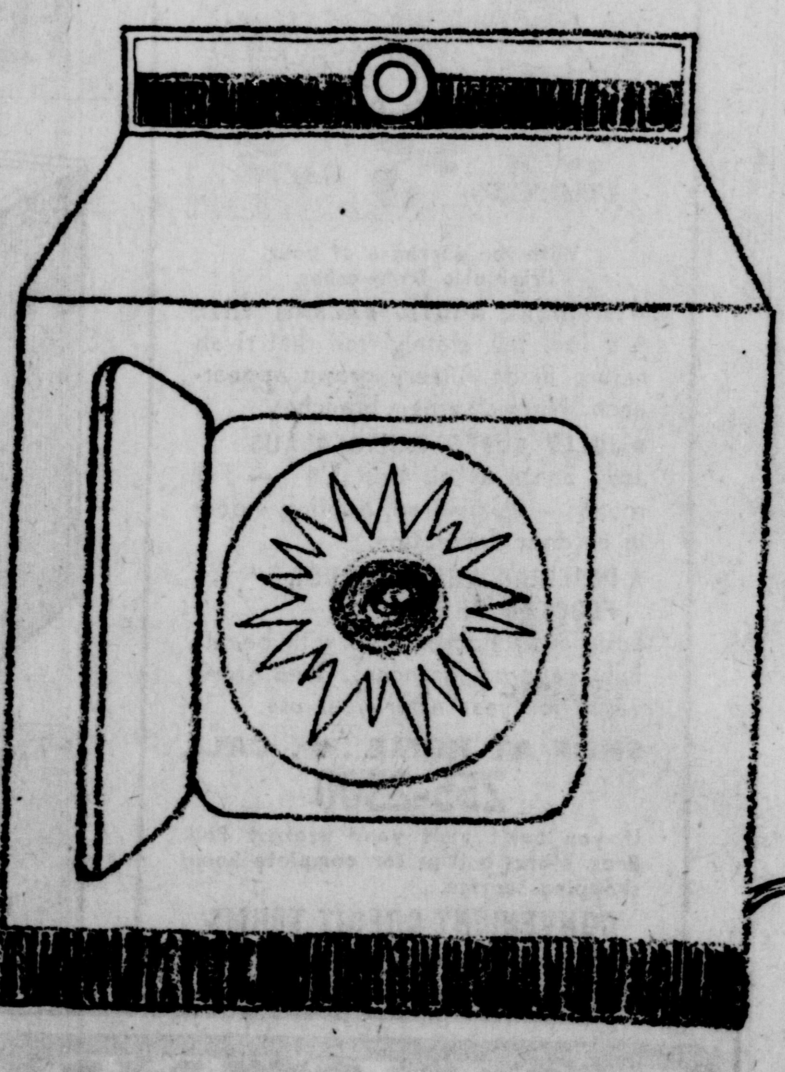
Only electric dryers give you the same kind of gentle heat you get from the sun.



The sun, most people agree, was a pretty bright idea. Hard to improve on.

A little hard to count on, too. Which could be annoying on a rainy day to a woman with two weeks' worth of laundry fresh out of the washer.

So somebody had a bright new idea of his own—the electric clothes dryer. One that would dry clothes fast—and with controlled, flameless heat. Radiant heat, like sunshine.

Now all the little lady has to do is dial the heat she wants—electrically. No worry about scorching, harsh over-drying, fumes, combustion by-products, grayed whites, faded colors, and all like that. Just nice, clean, dry clothes for her family, that's what she's got. And she loves it.

Which gives us a certain glow of satisfaction, too. Being able to bring a little sunshine into an otherwise gray washday.

But then, that's the sort of thing we've been doing for years. Brightening people's lives—the best we can.

North School's 'Fun Fair': Spooks, Scarecrows, Snacks

"Follow the Yellow Brick Road" to North School PTA's Fun Fair Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights Road.

Children and adults can visit the "spook house," baseball toss, ring toss, dip-a-duck, fishing and make-up booths. A pick-a-pocket scarecrow and a balloon lady will add to the fun.

A snack bar will serve hot dogs, soda, cotton candy and other refreshments and the Emerald City Bake Shop will offer baked goods and desserts.

The fun fair will be North School PTA's only fund-raising event of the year.

The spotlight is on money at Thomas Junior High PTA's Nov. 22 meeting. District 25 Supt. Ralph E. Clabaugh will be guest speaker. His topic is "Misconceptions in School Financing."

Meeting time is 8:15 p.m. at the school cafeteria. (A

Interchurch Service First in Village

Arlington Heights residents can sign up for "Living Room Dialogues" Sunday at the first interchurch worship service ever held in the village.

The "Thanksgiving for Unity" service will take place at 8 p.m. in Arlington High School boys' gymnasium.

Use of a public building, rather than a church, was required by Chicago Archbishop John Cody in giving permission for Catholics to participate in this week's ecumenical activities. It was the only limitation the bishop put on Catholic participation in the inter-church events.

THE WORSHIP service, and other activities preceding it—are sponsored by the AHEAD (Arlington Heights Ecumenical Activities and Discussion) committee of the village's Clergy Fellowship.

Seven clergymen will participate in the unity service.

They are the Robert Strzelecki of St. James Catholic Church, Dr. Paul Stumpf of the First Presbyterian Church, Rev. Joel Henning of St. Simon's Episcopal, Rev. Edward Schreiber of Our Lady of the Wayside, Rev. Donald Pritz of Our Saviour Lutheran, Rev. Robert MacDonald of St. John's United Church of Christ and Rev. Gerald Robinson of the First Methodist Church.

PASTOR PRITZ is chairman of the Clergy Fellowship.

At other meetings this week persons interested in joining "Living Room Dialogues," discussion groups about inter-church activities, will have an opportunity to sign up.

"These groups will use a book approved by official organizations of both the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches," Rev. W. Rowland Koch, AHEAD chairman, said in telling of plans for the discussion meetings.

Meeting in homes, the discussion groups will be limited to 12 to 15 persons each.

Father Strzelecki and Rev. Robinson will direct the program of dialogues, which will continue on a meeting-a-month basis until June. (A

Medicare Home Nursing Program Under Study

The Public Safety Committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board and the Board of Health were scheduled to meet yesterday with representatives of the State of Illinois to discuss the establishment of a medicare program for extended home nursing in Arlington Heights.

Nurses cannot simply offer their services in a community and be reimbursed by the federal government, Maria Coburn, director of Arlington Heights health services, explained to the Herald. The nurse must first be certified by a public health agency acceptable to the state.

Such a provision ensures top-level nursing care, said Mrs. Coburn. She added that her own qualifications as a public health nurse will allow Arlington Heights to run a medicare-backed nursing program through the village public health service office.

IN ADDITION to the nursing service, Mrs. Coburn said that the local agency must also provide one other service. This could be speech correction. psychological counseling or physical therapy.

The local agency may either hire or contract for such additional services, according to Mrs. Coburn.

The medicare program sets certain guidelines and the state does not run the program or appoint personnel at the local level, said the health director.

As long as the agency administering the intensive care nursing program meets federal specifications it is acceptable to the state as well.

Mrs. Coburn noted that the provisions of the nursing program insist that the nurse consult with a physician every two months on the course of treatment being administered to patients under her care.

ADDITIONAL requirements call for: a specific nursing guide to be spelled out by the local community; the qualifications and job specifications of each position to be filled; and an in-training educational program to be administered by the local agency.

"The cost of a nursing visit is left to an intermediary in the area of operation," said Mrs. Coburn. "In the case of Arlington Heights it would be Blue Cross."

"You must operate for a year before you know exactly what the cost of a visit will be," Mrs. Coburn said.

The Wednesday night meeting was requested by the safety committee in order that the village board might have a better idea of the provisions of the medicare program, and expert opinion on the subject from the board of health. (A

THE MILWAUKEE ROAD

After Three Years, Kennedy Memory Lives on

by BETTY FORRESTER
Staff Writer

The riderless-horse had made its long march and the torch had been lighted.

"It seems a safe assumption that the name of Kennedy will live on in the northwest suburbs," wrote a somewhat prophetic newspaper reporter three years ago.

At that time, a time of international grief, northwest suburbanites sought ways to memorialize the President whose strange and untimely death had dazed and puzzled many of them. Six thousand or so of them had seen Mr. Kennedy when he had come to dedicate O'Hare International Airport in March of that year. Most of the others knew him through the communications media.

By mid-December, Municipal Drive in Addison had become John F. Kennedy Drive, the Northwest Expressway had been renamed the John F. Kennedy Expressway and Elk Grove's Biesterfield Parkway had been changed to the John F. Kennedy Boulevard. Bensenville's VFW members were talking about naming the upstairs hall in the new addition of their building the John Kennedy Hall, and Hanover Park residents considered naming the Hanover Highlands School for the late president.

Even Roselle Road was considered for a name change.

By March of 1964, the Kennedy half dollars, now almost unavailable, were given out as change at the tollway exits along the Kennedy Expressway.

That fall, children from a number of suburbs put on fun fairs to raise money for the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston, Mass. Their small contributions, $8 from a group of Palatine children and $6.75 from a handful of Mount Prospect youngsters, were sent along.

Now, almost three years after Dallas, the nation has not forgotten the young president.

One popular national magazine frankly states that time seems to enhance rather than diminish the glow of Kennedy's martyrdom.

The complexities of his death with its many how's and why's have not been solved to everyone's satisfaction. New and more severe criticisms of the Warren Commission's report on the assassination have been made. The Ruby trial is not finished.

IN MANY WAYS, the American public has gotten to know their former president better since his death than they did before it.

Picture upon picture of the man, his family, his plans have been presented to the public in more than 200 books written by everyone from his children's nanny to the more politically oriented Pierre Salinger, Theodore Sorensen and Arthur M. Schlesinger.

Since John F. Kennedy's death, other members of his family have come to the fore and kept the Kennedy name in the headlines.

Northwest suburbanites cheered another Kennedy just a month ago when Robert F. Kennedy, the late president's brother and one of the most talked about politicians in the nation, came to Randhurst. Campaigning for Sen. Paul Douglas, Robert F. Kennedy made his first appearance in the northwest suburbs, and the mob forgave him his inexperience with Illinois government.

But the Kennedy name flew around on both sides of the Illinois senatorial campaign. Charles H. Percy, senator elect, was accused, by some of his opponents, of "Kennedy campaigning" or as they described it, using youth and vigor rather than a program to win an election rather than a program.

Northwest suburban book stores present conflicting stories on the popularity of the new Kennedy books. One, the Hilltop Apothecary Shop in Arlington Heights, reports that there is still a steady demand for the 15 or 20 Kennedy volumes. The Palatine Book Shop management said there isn't and never had been a demand for the books there.

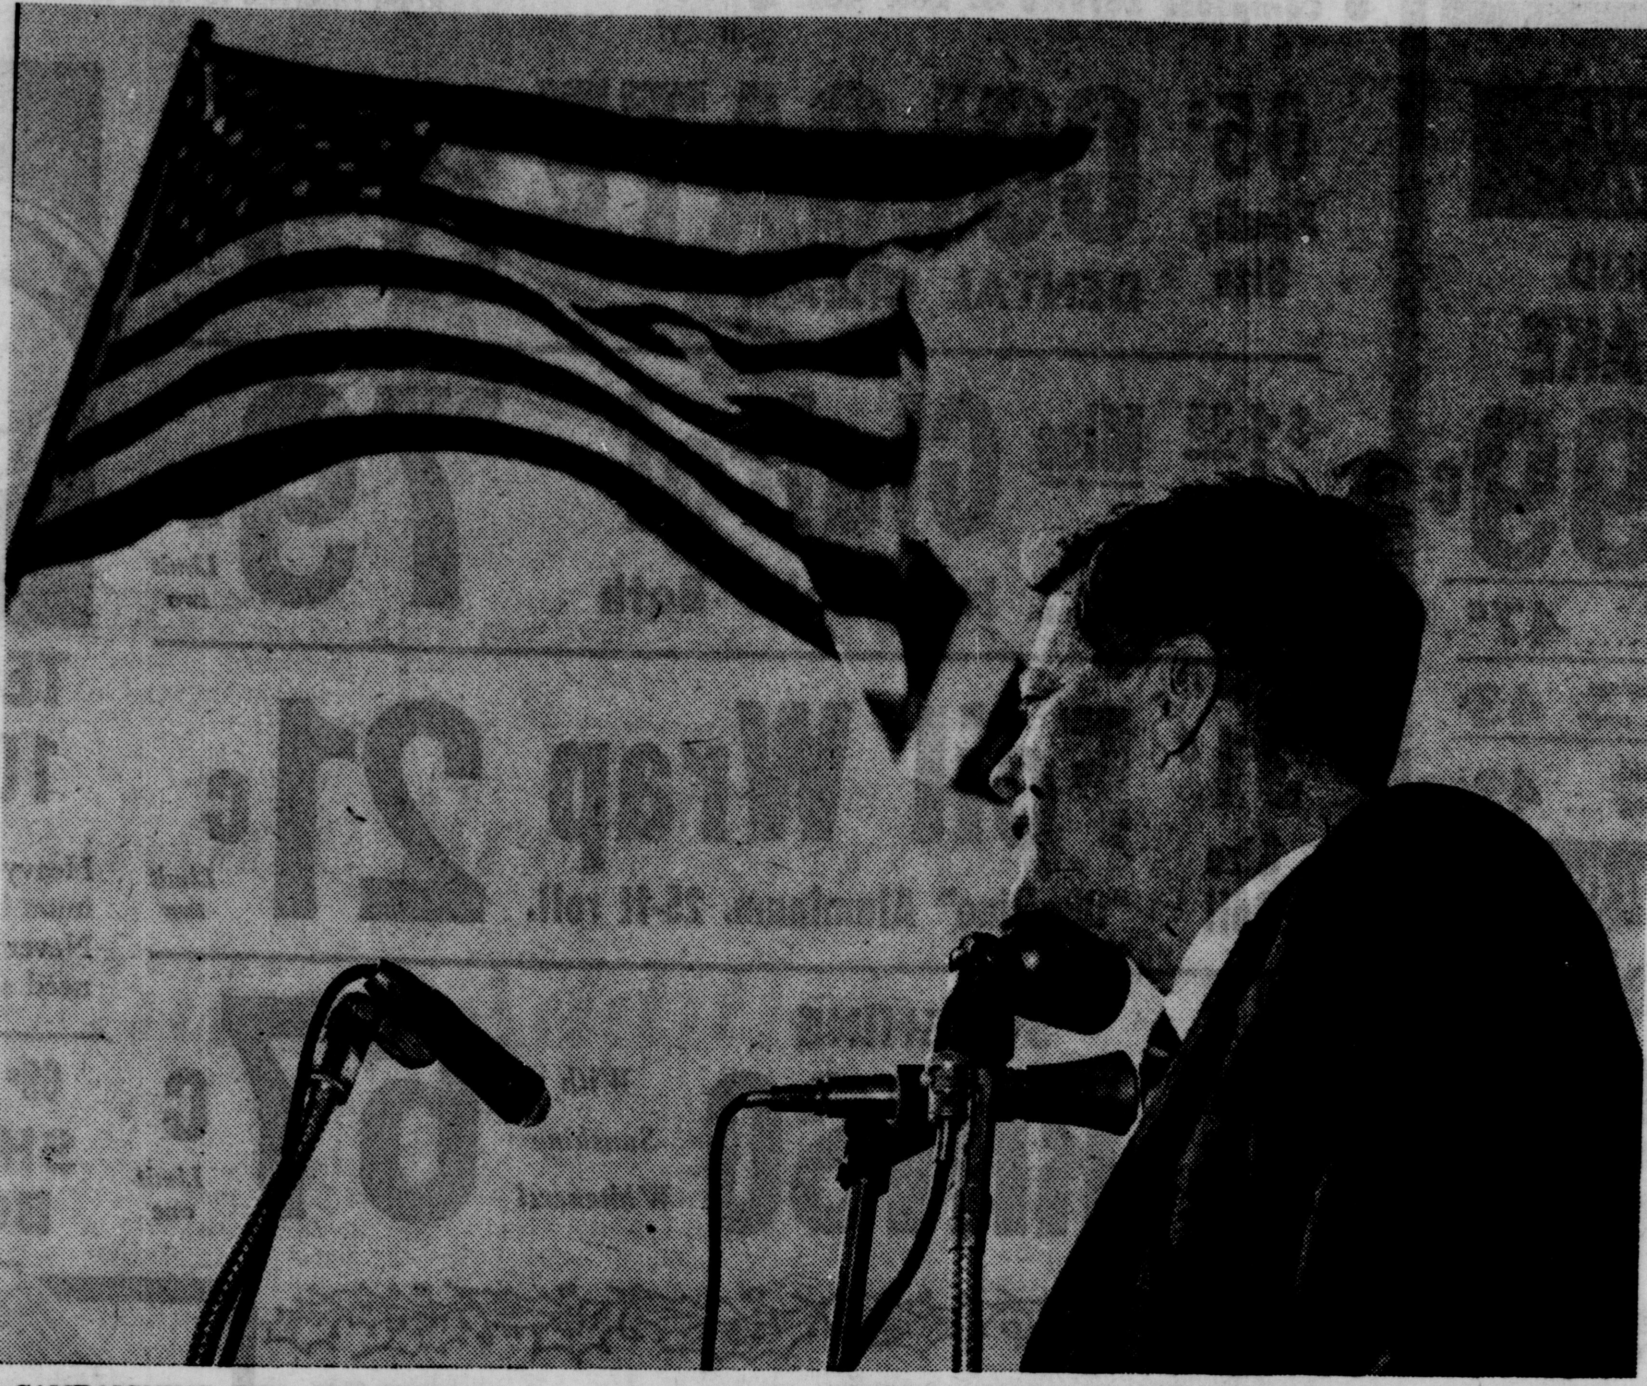
How do Northwest suburbanites feel about John F. Kennedy today? How do they react to the onslaught of Kennedy information that has been reaching them for the past three years?

When asked about the late president, suburbanites didn't answer in one voice.

"You know this is a strong Republican area," said one.

ANOTHER answered, "I just don't know how I feel. How did people react after the death of other presidents?"

But, the reporter was right—the name of Kennedy has lived on in the northwest suburbs, and people, even those who skeptically said they felt the "Kennedy myth" was greater than the man, were still very much "Kennedy conscious."



CAMPAIGNING FOR PRESIDENCY six years ago, then Sen. John F. Kennedy visited the northwest suburbs. Suburbanites still remember vividly the President whose life was snuffed out by an assassin three years ago next Tuesday. President Kennedy's last visit to northwest suburbs was during trip to dedicate O'Hare International Airport in March, 1963. (Staff Photo)

'8½' Substituted

Federico Fellini's "8½" will be shown at Tuesday's New Horizon program instead of the scheduled movie, "La Dolce Vita."

The Rev. Lawrence Farrelly, C.S.V., chairman of the film series, said the scheduled film is being re-released in the public theaters and, consequently, is temporarily unavailable.

Of "8½" and its director, the Rev. Mr. Farrelly said, "Fellini is one of the masters of film art, and the techniques brilliantly demonstrated in '8½' will undoubtedly be studied and used by all serious directors, present and future."

JAMES WICKLUND, head of the English department at Notre Dame High School will introduce the film. Following the film there will be a discussion period.

The program, held at St. Viator High School Auditorium, 1213 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights, will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Admission is $1.

Surge in Automatic Food Vending Told

"Automatic food service was experimental just ten years ago. Today, nearly two million men and women depend entirely on vending every day for their at-work meals and many millions more use venders for at-work snacks or refreshments," according to John K. Auld, of 1009 Watling Road, Arlington Heights, president of Barrington Vending Company.

He spoke Saturday night to the Lake Zurich Chamber of Commerce at Poppe's on Rand Road.

"The automatic merchandising industry now retails nearly $4 billion in merchandise, food and services per year and it is estimated that this figure will double in the 1970s," Auld said.

THREE REASONS for this expected growth, he explained, are the trend toward shorter meal hours for workers, improved vending machines and rising labor costs.

Listing the advantages of automatic selling, Auld said it provides refreshment, food and services seven days a week, 24 hours a day, and in so doing sells the products of American business at hours when they would otherwise be impossible to sell.

Auld characterized food vending as the newest and fastest growing aspect of automatic merchandising. (A

Even Roselle Road was considered for a name change.

By March of 1964, the Kennedy half dollars, now almost unavailable, were given out as change at the tollway exits along the Kennedy Expressway.

That fall, children from a number of suburbs put on fun fairs to raise money for the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston, Mass. Their small contributions, $8 from a group of Palatine children and $6.75 from a handful of Mount Prospect youngsters, were sent along.

Now, almost three years after Dallas, the nation has not forgotten the young president.

One popular national magazine frankly states that time seems to enhance rather than diminish the glow of Kennedy's martyrdom.

The complexities of his death with its many how's and why's have not been solved to everyone's satisfaction. New and more severe criticisms of the Warren Commission's report on the assassination have been made. The Ruby trial is not finished.

IN MANY WAYS, the American public has gotten to know their former president better since his death than they did before it.

Picture upon picture of the man, his family, his plans have been presented to the public in more than 200 books written by everyone from his children's nanny to the more politically oriented Pierre Salinger, Theodore Sorensen and Arthur M. Schlesinger.

Since John F. Kennedy's death, other members of his family have come to the fore and kept the Kennedy name in the headlines.

Northwest suburbanites cheered another Kennedy just a month ago when Robert F. Kennedy, the late president's brother and one of the most talked about politicians in the nation, came to Randhurst. Campaigning for Sen. Paul Douglas, Robert F. Kennedy made his first appearance in the northwest suburbs, and the mob forgave him his inexperience with Illinois government.

But the Kennedy name flew around on both sides of the Illinois senatorial campaign. Charles H. Percy, senator elect, was accused, by some of his opponents, of "Kennedy campaigning" or as they described it, using youth and vigor rather than a program to win an election rather than a program.

Northwest suburban book stores present conflicting stories on the popularity of the new Kennedy books. One, the Hilltop Apothecary Shop in Arlington Heights, reports that there is still a steady demand for the 15 or 20 Kennedy volumes. The Palatine Book Shop management said there isn't and never had been a demand for the books there.

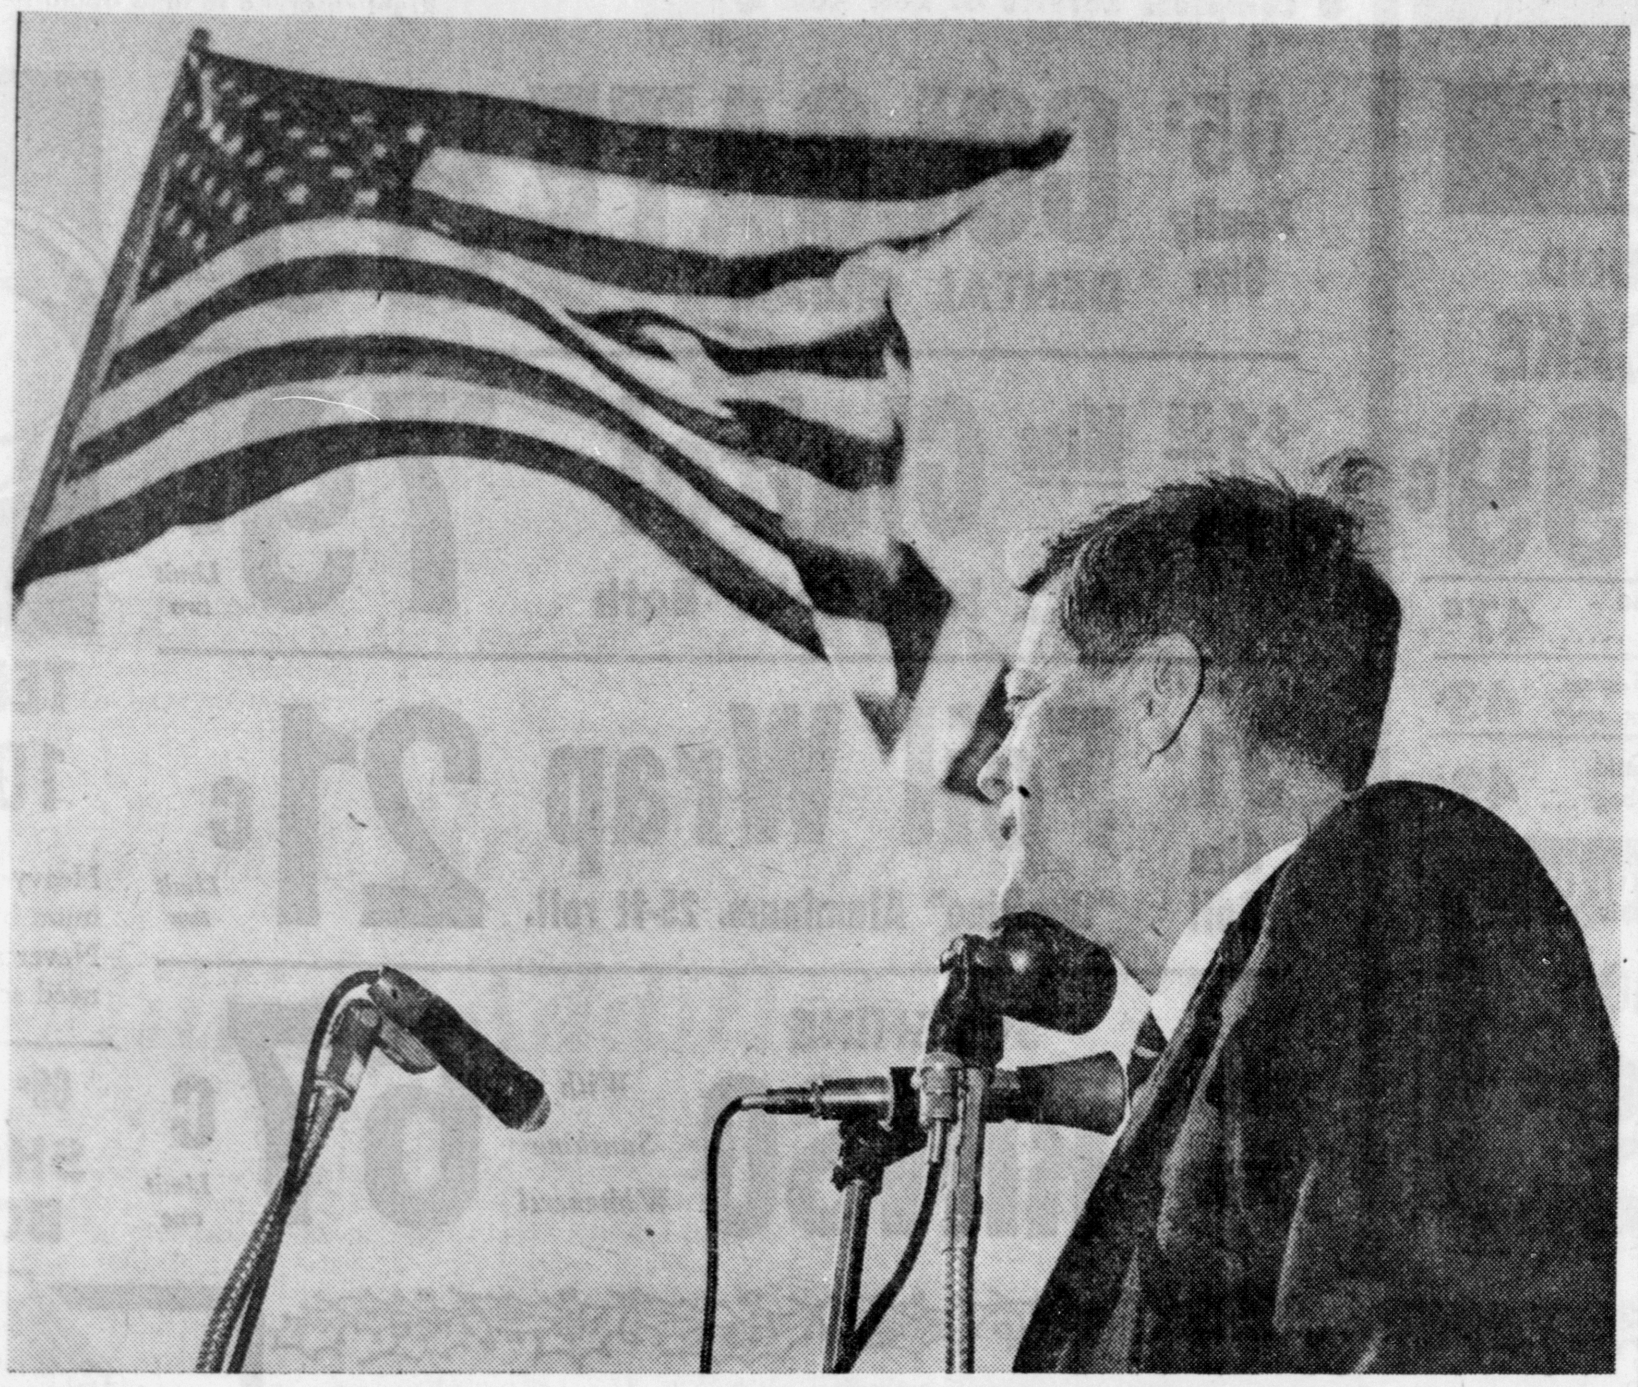
How do Northwest suburbanites feel about John F. Kennedy today? How do they react to the onslaught of Kennedy information that has been reaching them for the past three years?

When asked about the late president, suburbanites didn't answer in one voice.

"You know this is a strong Republican area," said one.

ANOTHER answered, "I just don't know how I feel. How did people react after the death of other presidents?"

But, the reporter was right—the name of Kennedy has lived on in the northwest suburbs, and people, even those who skeptically said they felt the "Kennedy myth" was greater than the man, were still very much "Kennedy conscious."



CAMPAIGNING FOR PRESIDENCY six years ago, then Sen. John F. Kennedy visited the northwest suburbs. Suburbanites still remember vividly the President whose life was snuffed out by an assassin three years ago next Tuesday. President Kennedy's last visit to northwest suburbs was during trip to dedicate O'Hare International Airport in March, 1963. (Staff Photo)

'8½' Substituted

Federico Fellini's "8½" will be shown at Tuesday's New Horizon program instead of the scheduled movie, "La Dolce Vita."

The Rev. Lawrence Farrelly, C.S.V., chairman of the film series, said the scheduled film is being re-released in the public theaters and, consequently, is temporarily unavailable.

Of "8½" and its director, the Rev. Mr. Farrelly said, "Fellini is one of the masters of film art, and the techniques brilliantly demonstrated in '8½' will undoubtedly be studied and used by all serious directors, present and future."

JAMES WICKLUND, head of the English department at Notre Dame High School will introduce the film. Following the film there will be a discussion period.

The program, held at St. Viator High School Auditorium, 1213 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights, will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Admission is $1.

Surge in Automatic Food Vending Told

"Automatic food service was experimental just ten years ago. Today, nearly two million men and women depend entirely on vending every day for their at-work meals and many millions more use venders for at-work snacks or refreshments," according to John K. Auld, of 1009 Watling Road, Arlington Heights, president of Barrington Vending Company.

He spoke Saturday night to the Lake Zurich Chamber of Commerce at Poppe's on Rand Road.

"The automatic merchandising industry now retails nearly $4 billion in merchandise, food and services per year and it is estimated that this figure will double in the 1970s," Auld said.

THREE REASONS for this expected growth, he explained, are the trend toward shorter meal hours for workers, improved vending machines and rising labor costs.

Listing the advantages of automatic selling, Auld said it provides refreshment, food and services seven days a week, 24 hours a day, and in so doing sells the products of American business at hours when they would otherwise be impossible to sell.

Auld characterized food vending as the newest and fastest growing aspect of automatic merchandising. (A

Prepare Specifications For Hersey High School

NEW FOYER AT PROSPECT HIGH SCHOOL fieldhouse is getting a fast cleanup this week in anticipation of its first use Saturday when the Knights play their opening basketball game. Construction of an adjoining service building was completed several weeks ago under the supervision of architectural firm Berger, Kelley Unteed and Associates. (Staff Photo)

(ACME

Architects for Hersey High School, District 214's sixth school, begin a mammoth printing job on Monday.

They'll start cranking out close to a "boxcar load" of blueprints and printed specifications for prospective bidders.

Bids will be opened Jan. 10 on the construction project, for construction of a 2,750-pupil high school on Willow Road just east of Rand — in an area of Prospect Heights just recently annexed to Arlington Heights.

Guarding against likelihood of higher-than-estimated bids, several dozen alternates are included in the bid plans approved at Monday's school board meeting.

THE MAJOR alternates, likely to shrink the project's cost the most, would drop construction of a fieldhouse and facilities for outdoor sports.

L. Scott Kelley, chief architect for the new high school, was optimistic in talking about bid estimates to the High School District 214 board Monday.

He said he hoped the current "escalation" in construction costs is "levelling off."

"I think we're in a far better position taking bids now than four months ago," the representative of Berger, Kelley, Unteed and Associates asserted.

Nevertheless, Kelley noted, the $6.5 million Hersey High School cost estimated for last January's bond referendum allowed for only a "normal" 5 per cent annual rise in construction costs.

IN THE LAST year the cost of building has gone up 20 to 25 per cent, the architect said somberly.

"We may end up with a partial building," board member Arthur Aronson commented.

"This is possible," the architect returned.

School officials noted Tuesday that the building estimates include about $800,000 for equipping the new sixth high school for its first year.

That could be drawn on, Business Mgr. Francis Coleman said, should construction bids run high. But, he noted, it would be the first time since Prospect High was built that the district has had to open a building underequipped.

AT MONDAY'S board meeting school board members voiced their concern about the timing — as well as the cost — of the new Hersey High School's construction.

Opening of the new high school is planned for September, 1968 — and the new school will be sorely needed by that time. All the present five high schools are expected to be overcrowded in 1967-68.

Whether the high school will actually be finished by the fall of 1968 was a question Kelley partly ducked.

"WE TOOK BIDS for Elk Grove on Aug. 25. This would put us four months later than for Elk Grove," the architect declared. Then he added, "But Elk Grove could have been used before that time."

He estimated that completion of the building would take 16 to 18 months from ground-breaking time.

Good weather would be needed to finish in 16 months, however, he declared.

Unanticipated Sewer Main Cost: $160,000

High School District 214 is facing an unanticipated bill of $160,000 for providing sewer and water lines to the sixth high school site.

It will cost $77,427 to drain water to McDonald Creek from the Hersey High School 40-acre site on Willow Road just east of Rand, the school board was told Monday.

Connecting with an Arlington Heights water main on the northeast corner of the property will cost another $22,412.

Sanitary sewers to the site from the Brandenberry Apartment complex on McDonald Road will come to $23,412, the board was informed.

ESTIMATES were given by Roger Patzer of Applied Engineering, the firm hired by the school board to handle the drainage and utilities work for the sixth high school.

Storm water drainage presents the most difficult problem — and the one needing the quickest solving, the board was told.

Architect L. Scott Kelley pointed out that drainage of the site will be a necessity from the start of construction in late winter or early spring.

Patzer has proposed draining the school site to the north with a 33-inch pipe carrying the water to the northeast edge of the property and past an adjoining subdivision.

AFTER THAT, he said, the school board could widen and deepen an existing ditch that reaches McDonald Creek by way of Viola Lane.

Cost of this part of the project would cover the excavation plus replacement of driveways and under-driveway culvert pipes.

Another $36,000 or more would be required for providing a half-street around the school property.

The street is required by Arlington Heights, which recently annexed the site at District 214's request. The village has told the school district it must meet the same site improvement requirements asked of other subdividers. (ACME

HEALTHY TELEVISION

by ED LANDWEHR

I see in the newspaper that a University of Colorado Ophthalmologist (eye doctor) recommends watching television as much as possible. He states that using your eyes is the best way to keep them healthy. Just like your hands, arms and legs, lack of usage may do much harm.

Of course, we hurriedly agree with the good doctor on this watching TV a lot; after all, this is good for a business like LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights. But we'd like to add that nearly worn out fuzzy picture tubes could give you a case of eye squint. Distortion and picture roll wouldn't help your sight either, and least of all, your patience. I guess we'll have to drop a note to the doc about it.

Meanwhile, keep phoning CLearbrook 5-0700, the TV number that gets you prompt and accurate service — the kind that's good for your vision.

Bell Telephone Breaks Ground On a $2-Million Addition

Arlington Heights Village Manager Rudy Hanson and Harold Best, village building commissioner assisted with the groundbreaking ceremony this week for Illinois Bell Telephone's $2-million building annex in Arlington Heights. E. W. Hardy represented the phone company.

The ceremony marked the start of construction on the 13,680-square-foot building, a two-story addition with basement.

The new building will provide equipment and office space to handle the increasing needs of the area, which serves Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Elk Grove Village and Rolling Meadows.

DESIGNED TO cover the rear portion of the present building, the addition will extend the office 40 feet along Vail Avenue, and will be constructed of reinforced concrete with brick facing to match the present structure.

Comr. Best said, "Both surveys and statistics show that Illinois Bell Telephone's confidence in the future of the area is well founded. Building permits in Arlington Heights showed over $6 million in the month of October, and we are getting approximately 5,000 new residents each year."

He continued, "Private surveys indicate that we are probably the fastest growing suburb in the Chicago area, and we will continue to be for some time to come. It is indeed gratifying to see that there will be no lag in communications to mar this continuing boom."

Contract for construction was awarded to Roberts-Lang-Gray, Inc., Chicago. Total cost of the building and initial equipment installed is estimated at $1,013,000.

Hardy, local telephone company manager, said that the first floor of the addition will house telephone equipment. The second floor will provide space for expansion of operating departments and the addition of operator and information service positions as needed.

NEW DIAL equipment with a capacity of 7,500 additional telephone lines will be made available for future use, Hardy continued.

The basement of the project will house two diesel generators which are presently in a trailer on the Vail Avenue side of the present building. These would provide power to keep telephone service running smoothly in case of a major power blackout.

IBT has also leased the second floor of the building being renovated at 116 W. Eastman St., adjacent to the front of the office. After a passageway has been built connecting the two buildings, some of the business operations will be moved there.

Fair Housing Topic For Women Voters

Equal-housing opportunities will be discussed at the unit meetings of Arlington Heights League of Women Voters this month.

The nature of prejudice, national, state and local housing policies and types of legislation in the offing are among the topics in a study outline prepared by Mrs. Stephen Caruso of Prospect Heights. She is chairman of the civil liberties committee.

Equal-housing opportunity is a current agenda item adopted by the state league for a two-year study. Members of leagues throughout the state will be asked to reach consensus on the topic by Feb. 1.

THE LEAGUE plans to present its position — on whether legislation is wanted by members, and if so, what kind — to the state legislature in the spring. In 1965 the legislature had eight fair-housing bills under consideration.

The units are at 1 p.m. Monday, Nov. 28, at Mrs. Arthur Olsen's home, 302 E. Hiawatha Trail, Mount Prospect; 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 29 at the Congregational United Church of Christ, Kirchoff and Kenicott, Arlington Heights, and at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 30 at Mrs. Hal Cress' home, 922 N. Yale, Arlington Heights.

Members of the civil liberties committee include Mrs. John R. Hoppe and Mrs. Eugene Harris of Mount Prospect, Mrs. Henry Bertocchio of Prospect Heights, Mrs. William Trevor of Rolling Meadows, and Mrs. Pat McAdams, Mrs. Don Hansen, Mrs. George Sully and Mrs. George Ireland, all of Arlington Heights. Two Church Choirs Join In Cantata

The First Presbyterian Church's chancel and Westminster choirs will join next Wednesday in presenting a Thanksgiving cantata in the church at 8 p.m.

Their selection is "Song of Thanksgiving," written early this century.

Directing the choirs will be Rev. William Deihl, who joined First Presbyterian as minister of youth and music in September.

IT WILL BE his first major choir production since coming here.

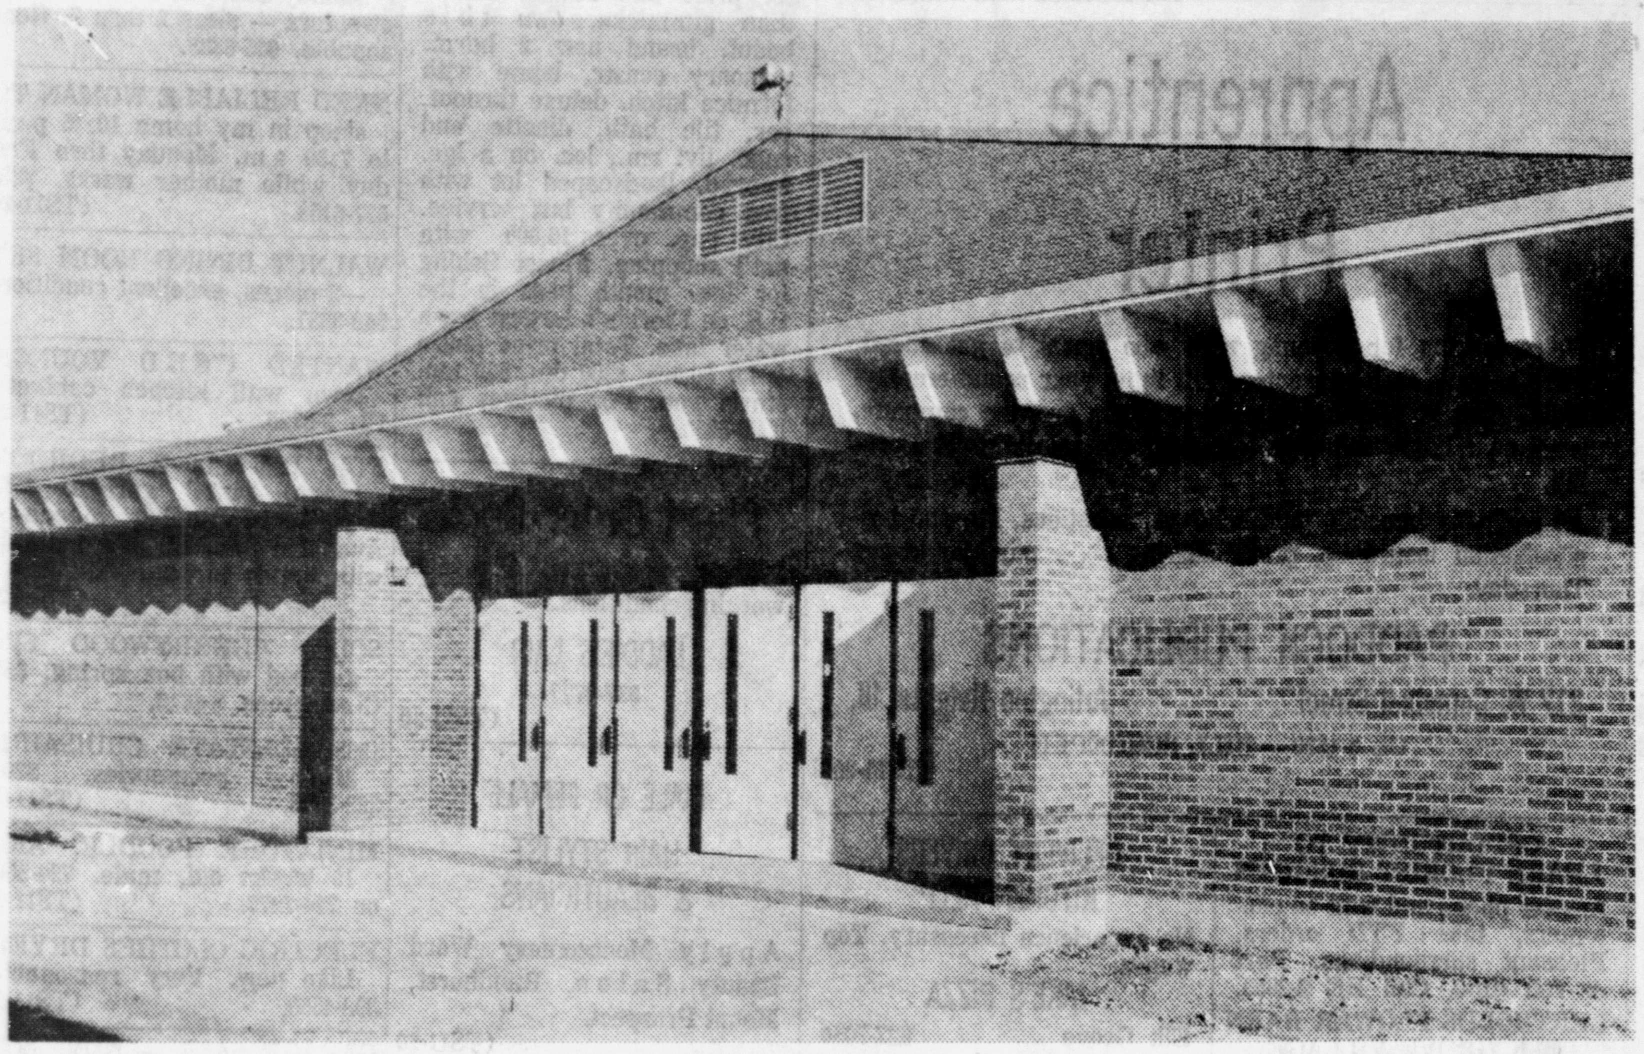
Prepare Specifications For Hersey High School



NEW FOYER AT PROSPECT HIGH SCHOOL fieldhouse is getting a fast cleanup this week in anticipation of its first use Saturday when the Knights play their opening basketball game. Construction of an adjoining service building was completed several weeks ago under the supervision of architectural firm Berger, Kelley Unteed and Associates. (Staff Photo)

(ACME

Architects for Hersey High School, District 214's sixth school, begin a mammoth printing job on Monday.

They'll start cranking out close to a "boxcar load" of blueprints and printed specifications for prospective bidders.

Bids will be opened Jan. 10 on the construction project, for construction of a 2,750-pupil high school on Willow Road just east of Rand — in an area of Prospect Heights just recently annexed to Arlington Heights.

Guarding against likelihood of higher-than-estimated bids, several dozen alternates are included in the bid plans approved at Monday's school board meeting.

THE MAJOR alternates, likely to shrink the project's cost the most, would drop construction of a fieldhouse and facilities for outdoor sports.

L. Scott Kelley, chief architect for the new high school, was optimistic in talking about bid estimates to the High School District 214 board Monday.

He said he hoped the current "escalation" in construction costs is "levelling off."

"I think we're in a far better position taking bids now than four months ago," the representative of Berger, Kelley, Unteed and Associates asserted.

Nevertheless, Kelley noted, the $6.5 million Hersey High School cost estimated for last January's bond referendum allowed for only a "normal" 5 per cent annual rise in construction costs.

IN THE LAST year the cost of building has gone up 20 to 25 per cent, the architect said somberly.

"We may end up with a partial building," board member Arthur Aronson commented.

"This is possible," the architect returned.

School officials noted Tuesday that the building estimates include about $800,000 for equipping the new sixth high school for its first year.

That could be drawn on, Business Mgr. Francis Coleman said, should construction bids run high. But, he noted, it would be the first time since Prospect High was built that the district has had to open a building underequipped.

AT MONDAY'S board meeting school board members voiced their concern about the timing — as well as the cost — of the new Hersey High School's construction.

Opening of the new high school is planned for September, 1968 — and the new school will be sorely needed by that time. All the present five high schools are expected to be overcrowded in 1967-68.

Whether the high school will actually be finished by the fall of 1968 was a question Kelley partly ducked.

"WE TOOK BIDS for Elk Grove on Aug. 25. This would put us four months later than for Elk Grove," the architect declared. Then he added, "But Elk Grove could have been used before that time."

He estimated that completion of the building would take 16 to 18 months from ground-breaking time.

Good weather would be needed to finish in 16 months, however, he declared.

Unanticipated Sewer Main Cost: $160,000

High School District 214 is facing an unanticipated bill of $160,000 for providing sewer and water lines to the sixth high school site.

It will cost $77,427 to drain water to McDonald Creek from the Hersey High School 40-acre site on Willow Road just east of Rand, the school board was told Monday.

Connecting with an Arlington Heights water main on the northeast corner of the property will cost another $22,412.

Sanitary sewers to the site from the Brandenberry Apartment complex on McDonald Road will come to $23,412, the board was informed.

ESTIMATES were given by Roger Patzer of Applied Engineering, the firm hired by the school board to handle the drainage and utilities work for the sixth high school.

Storm water drainage presents the most difficult problem — and the one needing the quickest solving, the board was told.

Architect L. Scott Kelley pointed out that drainage of the site will be a necessity from the start of construction in late winter or early spring.

Patzer has proposed draining the school site to the north with a 33-inch pipe carrying the water to the northeast edge of the property and past an adjoining subdivision.

AFTER THAT, he said, the school board could widen and deepen an existing ditch that reaches McDonald Creek by way of Viola Lane.

Cost of this part of the project would cover the excavation plus replacement of driveways and under-driveway culvert pipes.

Another $36,000 or more would be required for providing a half-street around the school property.

The street is required by Arlington Heights, which recently annexed the site at District 214's request. The village has told the school district it must meet the same site improvement requirements asked of other subdividers. (ACME

Bell Telephone Breaks Ground On a $2-Million Addition

Arlington Heights Village Manager Rudy Hanson and Harold Best, village building commissioner assisted with the groundbreaking ceremony this week for Illinois Bell Telephone's $2-million building annex in Arlington Heights. E. W. Hardy represented the phone company.

The ceremony marked the start of construction on the 13,680-square-foot building, a two-story addition with basement.

The new building will provide equipment and office space to handle the increasing needs of the area, which serves Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Elk Grove Village and Rolling Meadows.

DESIGNED TO cover the rear portion of the present building, the addition will extend the office 40 feet along Vail Avenue, and will be constructed of reinforced concrete with brick facing to match the present structure.

Comr. Best said, "Both surveys and statistics show that Illinois Bell Telephone's confidence in the future of the area is well founded. Building permits in Arlington Heights showed over $6 million in the month of October, and we are getting approximately 5,000 new residents each year."

He continued, "Private surveys indicate that we are probably the fastest growing suburb in the Chicago area, and we will continue to be for some time to come. It is indeed gratifying to see that there will be no lag in communications to mar this continuing boom."

Contract for construction was awarded to Roberts-Lang-Gray, Inc., Chicago. Total cost of the building and initial equipment installed is estimated at $1,013,000.

Hardy, local telephone company manager, said that the first floor of the addition will house telephone equipment. The second floor will provide space for expansion of operating departments and the addition of operator and information service positions as needed.

NEW DIAL equipment with a capacity of 7,500 additional telephone lines will be made available for future use, Hardy continued.

The basement of the project will house two diesel generators which are presently in a trailer on the Vail Avenue side of the present building. These would provide power to keep telephone service running smoothly in case of a major power blackout.

IBT has also leased the second floor of the building being renovated at 116 W. Eastman St., adjacent to the front of the office. After a passageway has been built connecting the two buildings, some of the business operations will be moved there.

Fair Housing Topic For Women Voters

Equal-housing opportunities will be discussed at the unit meetings of Arlington Heights League of Women Voters this month.

The nature of prejudice, national, state and local housing policies and types of legislation in the offing are among the topics in a study outline prepared by Mrs. Stephen Caruso of Prospect Heights. She is chairman of the civil liberties committee.

Equal-housing opportunity is a current agenda item adopted by the state league for a two-year study. Members of leagues throughout the state will be asked to reach consensus on the topic by Feb. 1.

THE LEAGUE plans to present its position — on whether legislation is wanted by members, and if so, what kind — to the state legislature in the spring. In 1965 the legislature had eight fair-housing bills under consideration.

The units are at 1 p.m. Monday, Nov. 28, at Mrs. Arthur Olsen's home, 302 E. Hiawatha Trail, Mount Prospect; 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 29 at the Congregational United Church of Christ, Kirchoff and Kenicott, Arlington Heights, and at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 30 at Mrs. Hal Cress' home, 922 N. Yale, Arlington Heights.

Members of the civil liberties committee include Mrs. John R. Hoppe and Mrs. Eugene Harris of Mount Prospect, Mrs. Henry Bertocchio of Prospect Heights, Mrs. William Trevor of Rolling Meadows, and Mrs. Pat McAdams, Mrs. Don Hansen, Mrs. George Sully and Mrs. George Ireland, all of Arlington Heights. HEALTHY TELEVISION

by ED LANDWEHR

I see in the newspaper that a University of Colorado Ophthalmologist (eye doctor) recommends watching television as much as possible. He states that using your eyes is the best way to keep them healthy. Just like your hands, arms and legs, lack of usage may do much harm.

Of course, we hurriedly agree with the good doctor on this watching TV a lot; after all, this is good for a business like LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights. But we'd like to add that nearly worn out fuzzy picture tubes could give you a case of eye squint. Distortion and picture roll wouldn't help your sight either, and least of all, your patience. I guess we'll have to drop a note to the doc about it.

Meanwhile, keep phoning CLearbrook 5-0700, the TV number that gets you prompt and accurate service — the kind that's good for your vision.

Take Second Step In Beautification

The second step toward beautification of the Chicago Northwestern right-of-way through Arlington Heights was taken by the Village Board Monday, when it voted unanimously to adopt as an ordinance the release conditions set forth by the railroad.

It was necessary for the village to formally accept a release from liability, before any work could be done on the railroad property.

MRS. STEPHEN Jurco, president, and Mrs. Rex Hart, chairman of the conservation and garden committee of the Arlington Heights Women's Club, were there to watch the board adopt the release. Mrs. Hart and her committee were the initiators of the project and had petitioned the railroad for a release.

Village president John Woods said he thought appointment of a beautification committee was in order, and asked Mrs. Hart to aid him by suggesting names for such a committee.

School Board Seat Is Still Vacant

The High School District 214 board has made no decision yet on a replacement for resigned member William F. Griffith of Arlington Heights.

They interviewed one prime prospect before Monday's board meeting behind closed doors but plan to meet with another candidate — or candidates — before reaching a decision.

Hal Armstrong of Mount Prospect, District 214 board president, told Paddock Publications Tuesday that the board hopes to finish interviewing before the middle of next week.

THE SELECTION will be voted on at either their regular board meeting Monday, Nov. 28, or at a special board meeting held earlier. No date for any special meeting has been set.

The board has until Dec. 1, by law, to make its choice.

The school code gives them 30 days after the effective date of Griffith's resignation, on Nov. 1, to choose a replacement.

If they do not fill the post within that time, state law requires the calling of a special election.

One of the factors being considered by the board in weighing possible appointees is his interest — and prospect — as a candidate for election to the school board.

Griffith's term on the board runs out in April.

Terms of two other board members, Armstrong and T. Earl Thompson, also expire next spring. (ACME

School Board Stays In Area Council

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove School Board last week decided to remain in the Arlington Area School Board Association "if it remains active."

Association members have been considering disbanding because attendance from the school boards involved has been "very poor," said Supt. Kenneth F. Gill.

Schaumburg School District 54's board has already decided to drop out of the organization.

THE ASSOCIATION is mainly an "informational group," which occasionally has prominent speakers. Several school boards, including those from Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and Elk Grove Village belong to the organization.

Gill pointed out that the main problem is that school board members themselves have not participated in the activities. "They have sent their administrators to represent them," he added. This is of no benefit to administrators because superintendents have their own organization, he added.

The association president, Mrs. Dennis Malcolmson, died recently, and everything in the organization has come to a standstill, Supt. Gill said.

Some Suggestions For Gift Giving

by MAGGIE IRWIN

It's difficult to believe that a week from today is Thanksgiving and the following day, Friday, Nov. 25, Santa arrives at Randhurst!

Randhurst is going into high gear polishing and cleaning, hammering and painting, getting ready for Christmas. By this time next week you will be able to see the results of all the activity going on out at our water tower, just believe us, it will be beautifully sensational!

If you are appaled at the way time is relentlessly pushing on and you haven't as yet started your Christmas shopping, please let me help you solve some of your gift giving by making a few suggestions.

LORSEY'S, located on our Bazaar Level, has the largest selection of handbags in the Chicagoland area. The styles and colors are outstanding. Here you can purchase a colorful suede shoulder strap bag for your teen-age daughter or get a lovely soft leather handbag for the more mature lady in your family circle.

Colorful carpetbag-type handbags, that have loads of room, are becoming increasingly popular, and beautifully beaded evening bags or brilliant gold or silver mesh ones, make exciting gifts.

In fact, any size, shape, color or material you might want in a handbag can be found at Lorsey's. I saw an elegant black leather single strap purse I particularly liked. It has a small gold-color bar across the top and the clasp is a lovely gold-color rose. If you are looking for purse accessories I am sure you will find what you want, from pillboxes to matching wallets and key case sets, and just wait until you see their line of fashion jewelry.

FOR THAT "certain man" why not select a tie tac, or tie clasp, cuff links, or money clip or perhaps a leather utility kit. The polite courteous service you receive from the sales people make shopping a pleasure and you won't be wasting your time in making a purchase, the only waiting is done by the sales person, waiting for you to make up your mind what particular item you want, the selection is so great.

While you are still on the Bazaar Level, why not stroll around to the Camera Shop and see what they have to offer, for wouldn't it be nice to have visual remembrances of the holiday season?

Police Academy Plans Reviewed by Village

Plans for a northwest suburban police academy based in Arlington Heights is under review by village officials, according to Police Chief L. W. Calderwood.

VILLAGE Manager L. A. Hanson and village attorney Jack Seigel are expected to return the plans to Calderwood within the next few days.

Hanson indicated he was reviewing the proposed academy on the basis of the quality of training to be offered. Neither Seigel nor Hanson could say at this time whether the proposals would need village board consideration.

The training center, supported by police chiefs from Park Ridge to Barrington, is projected as a "commuter school." According to Calderwood, it would serve as a training base for probationary police officers from sponsoring police departments.

A MAJOR advantage of the center, Calderwood pointed out, would be the lower cost of training recruits. Local police departments could send their men to the Arlington Heights center without incurring transportation and housing expenses. Previously, trainees were sent to the Chicago Police Academy or the Police Training Institute, University of Illinois in Champaign.

Calderwood indicated the proposed academy would be of no cost to the village of Arlington Heights. Costs of a four to six week training session (at $25 a week per man) would be incurred by the sponsoring police department.

If the academy becomes approved, the state would provide for financial assistance in the form of matching funds to help defray the cost of training under the Illinois Police Training Act.

MUNICIPALITIES which have showed interest in the proposed academy include: Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Park Ridge, Des Plaines, Wheeling, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Barrington Hills, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Crystal Lake and Wauconda.

The academy would use facilities, such as a classroom and pistol range, located at the Arlington Heights municipal hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Road.

Celebrate 20th Year At Community Camera

Twenty years doing business in the same location is the proud boast of Community Camera, 112-114 N. Evergreen, Arlington Heights.

A number of specials will mark the occasion this weekend, according to Ralph Windheim, owner of the photographic studio and camera shop.

Tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday, Miss Polaroid will be at the store to demonstrate the new Polaroid cameras, and today through Saturday a 20 per cent discount will be offered on all film and flashbulbs. As a super special, Windheim added, the new Kodak Instamatic 804 will be on sale at a considerable savings.

WINDHEIM, a lifetime resident of Arlington Heights, went into the camera business after his term of service in the U. S. Navy during World War II.

He estimates that more than 2,000 wedding shots have been taken in the Community Camera studio since then, in addition to innumerable portraits, commercial work and industrial photographs.

For the past 15 years, he has been assisted in the business by Eleanor Sommer of Des Plaines, and recently another employee, Ron Mazzone of Hoffman Estates, was added to the regular staff.

Part time worker in the store is Allard Deu, a student at Arlington High School.

Windheim lives at 318 S. Evergreen with his wife, Ruth, and two daughters—Christie, 11, and Cathie, 10.

His only prognostication for the future of Community Camera is "We are looking forward to another 20 years."

Group Told Teachers, Schools Can Bargain

No state law now prevents — or requires — school boards from bargaining with teachers' groups, the northwest suburban Illinois Education Association members were told last Wednesday.

COLLECTIVE bargaining for teachers was the program subject at the annual meeting, held in Elk Grove High School.

Panelists were John Haas, former elementary and high school board member who now is chairman of Harper Junior College board; Mrs. Eugenia Chapman, re-elected state representative with teachers' help the day before, and Dr. Donald Thomas, president-elect of the division.

Dr. Thomas, lecturer in school law for the University of Illinois and Bradley University, told his audience that school board rights regarding recognition of a teachers' group for bargaining purposes rests within the common law.

BACKING IT UP, he said, is a recent decision by District Judge Cornelius Harrington in a case involving the Chicago school board's right to call an election to decide whether the IEA or the American Federation of Teachers local should represent the city's teachers.

Harrington ruled that the Chicago school board was within its rights — and his decision was upheld last week by the Appellate Court.

Mrs. Chapman, a member of the House education committee, urged the IEA to seek a law permitting school boards to negotiate with teachers' groups.

THE IEA MUST seek common cause with the teachers' union if it wants to be successful in passing such a bill, she warned.

Both the IEA and the teachers union had negotiations bills introduced in 1965 — and neither passed, she noted.

Major difference between the two bills was in the route suggested in case of stalemate. The IEA bill called for use of the office of public instruction if negotiations between a school board and the teachers' representatives bogged down, while the AFT bill called for use of department of labor machinery.

"IF WE DO WANT to improve communications between teachers and school boards — if we want to provide a process where teachers can be in direct communication with the school board, both teachers' groups must work together," Mrs. Chapman stressed.

Haas cited advantages to school boards in recognizing a teachers' group and bargaining with its representatives for salaries and working conditions.

"I believe it an advantage to both you — the profession — and the community for boards to participate in negotiations with teachers," the Harper Junior College board chairman asserted.

"THERE ARE boards within our own junior college district that would prefer not to deal with representatives of the teachers. They would just as soon shirk this responsibility," Haas declared.

Nevertheless, Haas asserted, "regardless of the legal niceties" school boards should recognize and bargain with teachers' groups. (B10

Students of Mrs. Richard W. Tillinghast of Mount Prospect participated in an informal piano recital party Saturday.

Piano selections for the recital were of the students' own choosing and ranged from Mozart's Minuet to the Batman theme song. Decision on Proposed College Council Dec. 9

The state's Class I and Class II junior colleges will be asked to make a decision Dec. 9 on forming a Council of Colleges to represent junior college board members.

The organization was suggested and promoted by the William Rainey Harper Junior College board which has pledged $5,000 toward the organization's establishment.

A five-member committee of the state's public community colleges decided Tuesday to send a letter to junior college boards informing them of Harper College's pledge. The committee met at Harper College offices in Palatine.

If such a council is formed, member colleges will be asked to help pay first-year expenses, estimated at a maximum of $30,000.

JAMES HAMILL, a committee member and Harper College board member, said the major expense would be salary for a full-time director. Part of the director's duties would be to represent junior colleges at Illinois legislative sessions.

Junior college boards have been concerned that the state legislature might not appropriate fund quotas guaranteed new colleges by the 1965 Junior College Act.

Hamill said the director would also serve as a research man for board-of-trustee common problems, such as current considerations of campus construction costs, tuition charge-backs and architect ratings.

The committee action Tuesday can be taken as a recommendation for a Council of Colleges, Hamill said. Other committee members present were Lee Dulgar, Thorton Junior College president, chairman; Walter Cooper, Morton Junior College president; Mrs. Francis Hickey, Rock Valley Junior College board member; and Carter Hewitt, Peoria Junior College board member.

RICHARD JOHNSON, Harper College board member, proposed an organization for junior college boards at a board meeting Sept. 15. The idea was then presented at a meeting of Class I junior colleges Oct. 22 in downstate Edwardsville.

The Dec. 9 consideration will come at a meeting of the State Junior College Board in Springfield.

The Illinois Association of Junior Colleges, an organization for college administration, voted down Friday an IAJC committee proposal for a similar organization for board members.

Hamill said the IAJC proposal was to make a Council of Colleges and the IAJC an all-encompassing organization under one director. The IAJC may still contribute part of a director's salary, Hamill said.

The push to get a Council of Colleges established is to get a director before the state legislature convenes in January. The IAJC does not plan to hire a director until July 1 and the legislature has convened by then, Hamill said. (B10

Group Told Teachers, Schools Can Bargain

No state law now prevents — or requires — school boards from bargaining with teachers' groups, the northwest suburban Illinois Education Association members were told last Wednesday.

COLLECTIVE bargaining for teachers was the program subject at the annual meeting, held in Elk Grove High School.

Panelists were John Haas, former elementary and high school board member who now is chairman of Harper Junior College board; Mrs. Eugenia Chapman, re-elected state representative with teachers' help the day before, and Dr. Donald Thomas, president-elect of the division.

Dr. Thomas, lecturer in school law for the University of Illinois and Bradley University, told his audience that school board rights regarding recognition of a teachers' group for bargaining purposes rests within the common law.

BACKING IT UP, he said, is a recent decision by District Judge Cornelius Harrington in a case involving the Chicago school board's right to call an election to decide whether the IEA or the American Federation of Teachers local should represent the city's teachers.

Harrington ruled that the Chicago school board was within its rights — and his decision was upheld last week by the Appellate Court.

Mrs. Chapman, a member of the House education committee, urged the IEA to seek a law permitting school boards to negotiate with teachers' groups.

THE IEA MUST seek common cause with the teachers' union if it wants to be successful in passing such a bill, she warned.

Both the IEA and the teachers union had negotiations bills introduced in 1965 — and neither passed, she noted.

Major difference between the two bills was in the route suggested in case of stalemate. The IEA bill called for use of the office of public instruction if negotiations between a school board and the teachers' representatives bogged down, while the AFT bill called for use of department of labor machinery.

"IF WE DO WANT to improve communications between teachers and school boards — if we want to provide a process where teachers can be in direct communication with the school board, both teachers' groups must work together," Mrs. Chapman stressed.

Haas cited advantages to school boards in recognizing a teachers' group and bargaining with its representatives for salaries and working conditions.

"I believe it an advantage to both you — the profession — and the community for boards to participate in negotiations with teachers," the Harper Junior College board chairman asserted.

"THERE ARE boards within our own junior college district that would prefer not to deal with representatives of the teachers. They would just as soon shirk this responsibility," Haas declared.

Nevertheless, Haas asserted, "regardless of the legal niceties" school boards should recognize and bargain with teachers' groups. (B10

Students of Mrs. Richard W. Tillinghast of Mount Prospect participated in an informal piano recital party Saturday.

Piano selections for the recital were of the students' own choosing and ranged from Mozart's Minuet to the Batman theme song. Decision on Proposed College Council Dec. 9

The state's Class I and Class II junior colleges will be asked to make a decision Dec. 9 on forming a Council of Colleges to represent junior college board members.

The organization was suggested and promoted by the William Rainey Harper Junior College board which has pledged $5,000 toward the organization's establishment.

A five-member committee of the state's public community colleges decided Tuesday to send a letter to junior college boards informing them of Harper College's pledge. The committee met at Harper College offices in Palatine.

If such a council is formed, member colleges will be asked to help pay first-year expenses, estimated at a maximum of $30,000.

JAMES HAMILL, a committee member and Harper College board member, said the major expense would be salary for a full-time director. Part of the director's duties would be to represent junior colleges at Illinois legislative sessions.

Junior college boards have been concerned that the state legislature might not appropriate fund quotas guaranteed new colleges by the 1965 Junior College Act.

Hamill said the director would also serve as a research man for board-of-trustee common problems, such as current considerations of campus construction costs, tuition charge-backs and architect ratings.

The committee action Tuesday can be taken as a recommendation for a Council of Colleges, Hamill said. Other committee members present were Lee Dulgar, Thorton Junior College president, chairman; Walter Cooper, Morton Junior College president; Mrs. Francis Hickey, Rock Valley Junior College board member; and Carter Hewitt, Peoria Junior College board member.

RICHARD JOHNSON, Harper College board member, proposed an organization for junior college boards at a board meeting Sept. 15. The idea was then presented at a meeting of Class I junior colleges Oct. 22 in downstate Edwardsville.

The Dec. 9 consideration will come at a meeting of the State Junior College Board in Springfield.

The Illinois Association of Junior Colleges, an organization for college administration, voted down Friday an IAJC committee proposal for a similar organization for board members.

Hamill said the IAJC proposal was to make a Council of Colleges and the IAJC an all-encompassing organization under one director. The IAJC may still contribute part of a director's salary, Hamill said.

The push to get a Council of Colleges established is to get a director before the state legislature convenes in January. The IAJC does not plan to hire a director until July 1 and the legislature has convened by then, Hamill said. (B10

SQUARE DANCE CLUB NEWS

Dorothy Meyer CL 3-2298

THANKSGIVING

Publicity chairmen should have been warned last week that an early deadline exists for the upcoming Thanksgiving issue and your square dance editor apologizes for the oversight. We'll therefore combine two columns in one today, using information based on the schedules received at the beginning of the season. If there is a cancellation on your club's schedule because of next week's holiday, please call CL 3-1520, Ext. 231, today (Thursday) or tomorrow, or CL 3-2298 during the weekend. We'll be able to "kill" an item until 10 a.m. Monday; however, major changes or additions will not be possible. Guest dancers and club members are urged to keep this column for reference next week since it will not be repeated. Thanks, everybody, and have a good holiday.

ROUNDHOUSE SQUARES

IN LINE WITH their well-kept claim that "we're a fun club," the Bensenville dancers are having "Badge Night" Saturday, Nov. 19, and everyone's invited to come along. Proceeding at 8:30 o'clock from the usual meeting place in Fenton High School, the Roundhousers and company will stop at the local fire hall, jail house and a restaurant to earn firehat, jailbird and goony badges. Even the weatherman will get into the act and determine whether showbunny or grasshopper badges will also be awarded; if nondancers influence the weather, snowbunnies can wait. Perhaps Hawaiian-born Bob Kim, club caller, would prefer calling for a grasshopper badge, too.

According to Roundhouse reports, would-be joiners have gotten lost trying to find Fenton High School, and lots of directions have been forthcoming — the school is located on Grove Street in Bensenville, about three blocks south of Irving Park Road and just east of Route 83. Other information or further school-finding directions may be obtained by calling Helen Bates, 766-0796, or Sylvia Koch, 766-3139.

PLAIDS AND CALICOS

Hoffman Estates dancers and guests will dance off that stuffed feeling the night after Thanksgiving, Nov. 25, with lean 'n' limber Bob Kim calling the exercises. Kim will square 'em up at 8:30. The place to go is Lakeview School on Washington Blvd., one mile west of Roselle Road, in Hoffman Estates. Waddle on over.

CIRCLE 8

THERE'LL BE reduce-to-music exercises next Saturday in Wheaton, too, and guests are welcome to join Circle 8 members for the evening's fun. Walt Mulqueen will get things swinging at 8:30 o'clock in Hawthorne School, Wakeman and Washington Streets, in Wheaton. Club presidents, the Richard Smiths, or membership chairmen, the Warren Westrups, will be happy to answer questions about the Nov. 26 dance — or any dance. Call the Smiths at 665-1025, or the Westrups at 653-4828.

GRAND OPENING

Arlington Heights Square Dance Center will celebrate its official grand opening this weekend Nov. 19 and 20, with Louis Calhoun and the Fontana Ramblers of Fontana Dam., N. C., headlining the festivities. Calhoun will call and the Ramblers provide the music for a dance Saturday evening and for Sunday afternoon's jamboree for Chicago area callers and dancers.

Located at 1622 N. Rand Road, the center is the first facility of its kind in the midwest and is devoted exclusively to square dancing. Full information about its schedule of classes and dances may be obtained by mail or by calling the center at 255-4060.

PALATINE SQUARES

Everyone's invited to pop in on the Palatine club a week from Saturday, Nov. 26, and dance to the calls of Jim Stewart. He'll square 'em up at 8:30 in Pleasant Hill School, Illinois and Cedar Streets, Palatine. The club's past history of greeting as many guests as members guarantees visiting dancers a cordial welcome.

BUCKS AND DOES

IN ELK GROVE the place to dance any second, fourth or fifth Saturday night is with the Bucks and Does in Dempster Junior High School, and everybody is welcome to join 'em the last Saturday night this month, Nov. 26. Square-'em-up time is 8 o'clock; the school is located at Route 83 and Dempster Road.

SLOWPOKES

The big excitement among club members in Mount Prospect is their Frank Lane Special, a Nov. 30 event. After a comparatively slow start, ticket sales are zooming and the word is, "Get 'em while the getting's good." A prime time to fetch yours will be tomorrow at Slowpokes' regularly scheduled dance in Euclid School, 1211 Wheeling Road, Mount Prospect. Club caller, Gene Tidwell, will square 'em up at 8 o'clock, and the "rounders," Art and Ruth Youwer, will lead the round dancing between tips.

The Frank Lane Special will be held in Wheeling High School, 900 S. Elmhurst Road, Wheeling, and the maestro will get things swinging at 8 o'clock. Further information about the special or about any Slowpokes dance is available via Dick Brush, 392-2316; Chuck Levecke, CL 3-4509, Les Carne, CL 5-4234, Marion Duncan, 299-7345 (the Bensenville area).

GLENVIEW SQUARES

FOR TOMORROW night only, the Glenview Squares will dance in Pleasant Ridge School instead of in their usual hall in Lyons School. Pleasant Ridge School is located at Sunset Ridge and Kenilworth Avenue, Glenview, and caller Ed Hempel will be located at the mike there at 8 o'clock. Everyone's welcome to celebrate the holiday a few days early at Glenview Squares' "Thanksgiving Turkey Dance."

On display tomorrow night will be the club's new banner, the gift of Taws and Paws Square Dance Club of New Berlin, Wis. A busload of Glenview Squares recently made a Knothead trip to New Berlin, and the banner is just one of the by-products of the visit. We usually explain for the benefit of nondancers that it's okay to call a square dancer a Knothead, provided you pronounce it with a capital K — but somebody forgot to tell the New Berlin police. Trip organizer, Lee Hope, plotted to have the Glenview club escorted out of New Berlin by the local constabulary and he had a bit of trouble explaining to the boys in blue that he was a Knothead, not a knothead. They were finally convinced and provided the escort.

JACKS AND JILLS

Turkey-and-stuffing stuffed dancers in the Meadowdale area are invited to dance it off Nov. 25 to the calls of Walt Byington, squarin' 'em up at 8:30 in Meadowdale Grade School. Round dance enthusiasts will want to arrive early for a half-hour session of instruction with Henry and Susan Held.

The school is located across from Meadowdale Shopping Center, one block east of Highway 25 on Robin Street. Full information about Jacks and Jills activities is available by calling 529-4392. (A15

Man-Made Storm Subject for Film

THE RIHS FAMILY, from left, Wanda, Alfy and Alfred, of 102 S. Maple Lane, Prospect Heights, were the local stars of an American Telephone and Telegraph Company film recently made in this area. (B-10

Picture a heavy storm, man-made by the hoses of the Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights Fire departments, smashing into Northern Illinois, causing some flooding, with high winds battering down many trees and utility poles.

It's early morning at the home of the Alfred Rihs family, 102 S. Maple Lane, Prospect Heights. Rihs is fixing breakfast for his wife Wanda, who (let's say) is expecting a new addition to the family at any time. Eight-year old son, Alfy, is getting ready for school.

Suddenly a tree outside the house can take the battering winds no longer and thunders to the ground. Minutes later the lights flicker, then go out.

INSIDE THE house, there is a moment of panic as Wanda realizes she might not get to the hospital in time. Then, little Alfy, the hero of this part of the story, finds the telephone still works. They are still in touch with the outside world.

How?

.Well, American Telephone and Telegraph Co., the parent organization of Illinois Bell Telephone, is making a movie showing just how telephone service is kept running smoothly in spite of such natural disasters.

IN THE PAST few days, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Prospect Heights have "gone Hollywood" as locales for some of the big scenes in the film.

"Actually, what we are trying to show in the film is not what we can do if something should happen in an emergency such as a storm, but what can't happen because of the preparedness and constant vigilance on the part of Illinois Bell," says Frank Beckwith of New York, AT&T's director on the production.

That's what the rest of the movie is all about.

It shows how plant foreman F. R. Kaapke of Broadview assigns his trucks to specific areas to patrol in storms such as this, and how lineman go out of their way looking for trouble on the lines.

IT ALSO SHOWS how the division plant manager, played by Jack O'Connell of Morton Grove has the emergency generator power sources checked thoroughly so that telephone service will keep running smoothly in case of an electric failure.

But, even more important, most of the telephone lines in this area are buried and pretty much impervious to even the heaviest storms ,which accounts for why the phone was still on after the tree tumbled in the Rihs' yard.

MEANWHILE, back at the Rihs' because the phones lines are still open Mrs. Rihs' mother, played by professional actress Fern Pearsons of Evanston, can be reached at her home in Denver, Colo. She arrives in the nick of time, and Wanda gets to the hospital on time to have her baby.

"This isn't meant to be a big dramatic production, or anything close to one," Beckwith points out. "We are just trying to depict how Illinois Bell people, doing their everyday jobs, are fully prepared to meet emergencies, and how careful planning before the emergency arises has pre-empted any special emergency work when a natural disaster does arise."

"We in the Bell system," he adds, "are proud of the work we do and the service we perform. This film shows just what this work and service is and can mean to the general public in times of stress."

"We picked the Arlington Heights area because it had had many pre-planned emergency measures, and also because the Illinois Bell people here have rightfully earned a good name for the work they do."

"However, I would like to point out that the film also has segments from several other locations throughout the nation that have likewise earned community respect for just doing their jobs during a time of need," Beckwith adds.

Bob Luedtke, local community relations manager for Illinois Bell, who acted as coordinator for the local segments, had a lot to say for the cooperation on the film.

"Everyone worked beautifully in doing their jobs, and, outside of having a little trouble finding a tree (which had to be brought to the Rihs' house by a tree surgeon and removed after the scene), things couldn't have worked out better."

Other people in the film included Ronald Meyer, RR 1, Palatine; S. Bruce Wallace, 1211 N. Highland Drive, Prospect Heights; Donald E. Jeschke, 507 Creekwood Drive, Palatine; Vincent Golbeck, 2308 Birch Lane, Rolling Meadows, and Thomas Larsen, 9561 Dee Road, Des Plaines.

ALSO in the Palatine scenes were Robert Snell, 116 Edgewood Drive, Streamwood; Marcus Dooley, 199 Durham Lane, Hoffman Estates, and Walter Swiatowy, 2193 Sunset, Palatine.

In addition to the Rihs' home, scenes were filmed at the Illinois Bell Mount Prospect garage, the Palatine plant and sales offices and the Western Electric Co. plant in West Chicago.

The entire film will be shown locally when it is completed early next year, and the local "stars" will get to see their debut. (B10

Credit Cards OKd For Administrators

The board of William Rainey Harper Junior College has approved the use of credit cards for administrative members.

The cards will be issued to staff members for telephone calls and travel and related expenses.

THE BOARD adopted a resolution Nov. 10 authorizing the use of credit cards after some original objection to them.

College Attorney Frank Hines said the use of cards is the same as approving expenses before they are made. He recommended such bills be paid from the imprest fund, a fund set up to meet expenses before going to the monthly board meeting.

He had said before the use of credit cards was extending the law but made his recommendation at the board's wish to use credit.

BOARD PRESIDENT John Haas told the administration, "You'll have to work by trial and error to determine control of this."

It was estimated the college could save four-cents federal tax and five-cents state tax per gallon of gasoline by charging gasoline for a state institution.

THE FRINGE benefit committee of the board had recommended the use of credit cards for convenience in travel and record keeping. (B10

The cards will be issued to staff members for telephone calls and travel and related expenses.

THE BOARD adopted a resolution Nov. 10 authorizing the use of credit cards after some original objection to them.

College Attorney Frank Hines said the use of cards is the same as approving expenses before they are made. He recommended such bills be paid from the imprest fund, a fund set up to meet expenses before going to the monthly board meeting.

He had said before the use of credit cards was extending the law but made his recommendation at the board's wish to use credit.

BOARD PRESIDENT John Haas told the administration, "You'll have to work by trial and error to determine control of this."

It was estimated the college could save four-cents federal tax and five-cents state tax per gallon of gasoline by charging gasoline for a state institution.

THE FRINGE benefit committee of the board had recommended the use of credit cards for convenience in travel and record keeping. (B10

The DPL models also have "rally" turn signal-park lights in the grille instead of in the front bumper to differentiate them from other Ambassador models. The wheelbase of the Ambassador line has been increased from 116 to 118 inches, resulting in an increase of two and one-half inches in over-all length of hardtops, convertibles and sedans, and four inches for station wagons.

In addition to the new safety steering package, interiors are re-designed to minimize projections — including new safety-styled instrument panels with recessed controls and safety padding. Safety levels equal or exceed government specifications, making the '67 models the safest and most reliable automobiles available to the public today.

Standard safety features include all-welded single-unit construction, Double-Safety brake system as featured on American Motors cars since 1962, brake system warning light, retractable front seat belts, rear seat belts, four-way warning flashers, padded visors and ceiling, stronger door locks, "lane-changer" position on turn signals, double pivot inside rear view mirror with day-night adjustment and provisions for shoulder-belt installation. MARKING VOWELS as a blackboard exercise is one way to increase proficiency in the English language. Here Miss Jane Malmberg, Forest View High School English teacher, helps (l. to r.) Oscar Lopez and Rich Barreda with a problem.

Special Class Teaches English as 2nd Language

by Linda Lockowitz

A unique English class — the teaching of English as a second language for Spanish speaking students — is being taught to sever students at Forest View High School this year.

The teacher is Miss Jane Malmberg, a former Peace Corps volunteer, who taught English as a second language at a university in the Philippines.

All students in this class are Spanish speaking and all except one are bilingual. They have lived in the United States all or most of their lives and can speak and understand both English and Spanish.

THE PROBLEMS these boys have with the English language are in pronunciation, spelling, reading, verb tenses, common problems that people using another language have. Miss Malmberg's task is to help these boys perfect their English speaking, reading and writing.

"Each student has an individual problem," Miss Malmberg explained. "Much group work is done, but individual attention must also be given to every boy. It will take much time, patience and drilling before those problems can be overcome completely."

One way Miss Malmberg helps these students is through oral sentence pattern drills. She gives a sentence in English and the boys repeat it, substituting other words or changing the tense of the verb. They also write compositions.

Sometimes Miss Malmberg will mimeograph these compositions, hand them back to the class, and have them correct their own mistakes. Basically, the techniques of learning a foreign language are applied to English. At present, the class is working on the sounds of the vowels and they are learning to pronounce words that they do not know or have never seen.

Forest View is the only high school in this area that carries this program. It is used widely in certain areas of Chicago.

The program originated because there was a need for it. The students were experiencing communications difficulties in their regular classes.

RICH BARREDA is the one student in the class who was not brought up speaking both languages. He comes from Guadalajara, Mexico, and is presently staying with an uncle who lives in this area. Rich has had only a little English in his school in Mexico.

Rich's mother sent him to this country so that he could learn to speak English fluently. He will be leaving some time in January or February. Rich has no trouble understanding English, but his problem lies in putting together whole sentences.

Rich holds Miss Malmberg in high esteem. He said that he is really improving his English and that she is doing a fine job with the class. (16Y Donkeys - cheerleaders - donkeys - lettermen - donkeys - coaches - donkeys - basketball-donkeys - mixer. This sums up ning at Forest View High School.

The cheerleaders and the Lettermen's Club are sponsoring a donkey basketball game that will begin at 7:30 p.m.

This event, the first of its kind in this area, will be open to the public.

THE PRICE OF the tickets is $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for students.

There will be four teams with four players on each. The teams will be composed of lettermen, cheerleaders, coaches, and women faculty members. The lettermen versus the coaches and the cheerleaders versus the women faculty will battle it out, with the winners of each holding a run-off game.

The teams will be adorned in helmets (?) and wild uniforms.

The halftime entertainment will be performed by Orchesis, which will dance to "Block Band Jazz."

Following the game, a mixer is to be held in the girls gym, at 50 cents per student. The mixer will end the night of frolicking slapstick at 11 p.m.

The combo that will play is the "Unleashed."

REFRESHMENTS will be sold throughout the game.

The dress for this zany affair is casual with bermudas and slacks in order.

Kim Garrity, varsity cheerleading captain, said, "All the girls (cheerleaders) are looking forward to it and it should prove to be real hectic." She also hopes for a large turnout.

Roger Steingraber, lettermen coach, added, "My players have been put on a strict diet of Mothers Oats and raw carrots." He added that the local druggist was asked to increase his supply of liniment in anticipation of a large increase in business the morning after the game.

Variety Show Is A Fremd 'First'

On Dec. 9-10 Fremd High School will have another "first," a variety show in the cafeteria. The theme will cover a visit to various large cities in the world through the acts.

Randall Knudsen, sponsor of the show, said, "The viewer will be treated to acts ranging from a flute duet accompanied by an interpretative ballet to a classical piano solo."

Barbershop quartets as well as familiar show tunes will be featured. All music will be live and the school's 14-piece pit band will back up each act and play between the acts.

DARREL RUHL will preside as technical director. Neil Pierson is writing the script, and Barb Hagen and Connie Flora will help coordinate the show. Cathy Klep, who did the scenery in the school's first play, will again take charge of the set.

Kathy Ormerod, a student director, commented, "With all the talent in the show, it's going to be the first in a long line of great variety shows William Fremd will put on." (16Y

Larkin High Presents A Mystery

ANN WEST, played by Karen Werth, inherits the house of an eccentric, deceased relative. Hungry for a share of the estate, Ann's jealous relatives begin their campaign to prove her own insanity to Ann.

The adventure is heightened both by the heiress' involvement in a love triangle and by the appearance of an unexpected character who solves a murder mystery and becomes hero of the play.

What's in Candystriping? Work, Satisfaction – Fun

"Candystriping is a lot of fun!"

That is not only the opinion of Pat Van Auken, a senior at Conant High School and a High School Highlights staff member, but also that of many other teenage girls in this area who donate three to four hours per day, one day a week, to help out in a local hospital.

Pat, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Van Auken, 295 Ida Road in Hoffman Estates, works at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

She says that the girl candystripers — and boys — usually begin at 14 or 15 years of age. The girls wear uniforms — red and white striped pinafores.

ACCORDING to Pat, the purpose in having candystripers in a hospital is to help the nurses and doctors in every way possible so as to relieve them for more time to give professional medical attention to their patients.

"We make the patients as comfortable and happy as possible during their stay in the hospital," Pat said. "A floor candystriper starts by selling newspapers to the patients. Then it's picking up menus and delivering ice water to those patients who can have it."

After all this is done, she added, the candystripers help the nurses. Usually it's taking specimens to the laboratory, prescriptions to the pharmacy and requisitions to the X-ray room. If a patient is going home, a candystriper wheels him downstairs to the waiting car.

"We spend time talking to those patients who want someone to talk to," Pat went on. "When the meals come, we help take the trays to the rooms, making sure that everyone gets the meal he ordered. We also feed those patients who aren't able to feed themselves."

Candystripers work at the hospital reception desk, also. There they help with issuance of visitors' passes and the delivering of mail and flowers. They do routine office work, play with children in pediatrics, assist in the cast clinic and fix meal packets in the dietary section.

RECORDS OF the candystriper's time are kept by hospital authorities, Pat said. For the first 25 hours, a candystriper receives a name pin; at 50 hours, a hospital volunteer patch to be worn on the uniform; at 100 hours, a 100-hour pin; at 200 hours, a 200-hour pin, etc.

"This work gives one a chance to meet and help people," according to Pat. "One learns how to do things that she probably wouldn't if she didn't work at the hospital."

She added that in her candystriping work, she has met many teens her own age and made friendships she will never lose.

"I strongly recommend candystriping to any teen who is interested in donating his or her time and still have fun," Pat enthused. "Candystriping isn't for those solely interested in the medical profession either. It's for everybody!" (16Y

Teens Prove Their Worth

by MARYANN BUCZEK

Contrary to popular opinion, there are quite a few adults who really want to believe that most teens are great people, and to help other adults see this fact.

Jim Stagg, disc jockey on WCFL radio in Chicago, is one of these adults. Last week he marched 50 miles, from St. Charles to Chicago's Loop, in order to encourage area teens to volunteer an hour of their time on Muscular Dystrophy Sunday to collect for this worthy cause.

Once before, while working in Ohio, Stagg marched from Akron to Cleveland for an organization. His repeat attempt in Chicagoland originated at the St. Charles Hotel at 5 a.m. and continued until late Monday night, a total of more than 18½ hours.

TWENTY-ONE young people marched the entire 50 miles with Stagg and almost 20,000 took part in some phase of the trek.

Stagg, who was forced to quit the march for about an hour and a half because of high blood pressure, received 96 telegrams from well-wishers in the entertainment field, including popular performers The Byrds, Jerry Lewis, and Lou Christie. While Stagg was resting, his co-worker, Jim Runyon, marched for him.

The total number of young citizens who volunteered by phone during the march was 60,268—about 10,000 more than expected. (16Y

DISTRICT 214 SPEAKER

Bob Richards, dynamic speaker and nationally known athlete, will speak tomorrow (Friday) at three District 214 schools.

Richards is scheduled to deliver his speech, "The Will to Win," first at Forest View High School from 7:50 to 8:50 a.m. His next stop is Prospect High School from 9:15 to 10:15 a.m.

After a luncheon at Old Orchard Country Club, Richards will talk at Wheeling High School from 1:57 to 2:52 p.m. Students from all three high schools are invited to the question-and-answer period at Wheeling's Little Theatre following his talk.

Tickets must be secured prior to this session in order for the students to attend. This press conference is scheduled from 3 to 3:40 p.m.

District 214 administrators have worked 2½ years to secure him as a speaker.

WHEELING HIGH SCHOOL
Spanish Students Meet

"El estudio de Espanol es muy importante." If you are a Spanish student, you know this means that the study of Spanish is very important.

Seven Wheeling High School students think it important enough to meet in the library every Tuesday evening from 7:30-9 to "keep their Spanish alive." They are Don Copland of Prospect Heights, Cheryl Elgy of Prospect Heights, Bill King of Buffalo Grove, and Bob Lee of Wheeling.

Other members of the group are Bonnie Morse of Prospect Heights, Keith Pacheco of Mount Prospect, and Starr Spenelly of Wheeling.

Generaly, students who have had three years of Spanish but are unable to continue with Spanish IV, are given the opportunity to further their study of Spanish by attending these meetings.

All of the students are expecting to enroll in Spanish courses in college next year.

No credit is given for participation in this group; it is conducted on a volunteer basis. The group was originated by Grant Lawrence, Spanish instructor, who also sponsors and meets with the group.

During a typical meeting, students read and discuss many types of literature, hoping to gain a better understanding of Spanish literature. All discussions are conducted in Spanish.

CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The Wheeling High School Folksinging Club's 1966-67 officers are Clark Warren, Prospect Heights, president; Melanie Van Petten, Prospect Heights, vice-president; and Louise Jouse, Prospect Heights, secretary.

The club is making tentative plans for attending a Judy Collin's Concert on March 17.

ELK GROVE HIGH SCHOOL

The first EGHS lettermen received their awards at a special student assembly Tuesday. At this assembly, these boys were presented with their varsity letter in football: juniors: Ray Bauer, Glenn DeBerge, Michael Ernst, Jim Hofmann, Mark Karaffa, John Knopf, Harry Lundin, Roy McClellan, Robert McFarland, Jim Oplt, Larry Pahl, Tom Pomey, Rick Radtke, Chuck Raffaele, Bob Sherer, Jim Shipley, Bruce Swanson, George Taylor, Jim Veltri, Dave Wheeler and Bart Zeitner. Sophomores: Chris Gruber, Jim Holmes, Joseph Kalisz and Bill Sanders.

Varsity cross country letters were presented to sophomores Gary Steen (Capt.), Wayne Wille, Gary Pleickhardt, Bob Texidor and Pat Texidor.

These boys will be invited to join Lettermen's Club. The five present members of the first EGHS Lettermen's Club are Ray Bauer, Tony D'Amico, Tom Mann, Jim Oplt and George Taylor.

PRESIDENT'S COMMITTEE

The president's committee—for the preservation and encouragement of "good citizenship" and "personal achievement" among the members of Elk Grove High School's Freshman Class, is one of Lane Johnson's first responsibilities as president of the first EGHS freshman class.

The committee has a threefold purpose: To establish a list of suggested practices—not rules—that can lead to good citizenship and personal achievement; to promote and encourage the use of these practices toward the betterment of the freshman community at large; and to recognize and honor those students who apply these principles of "Good Citizenship" in their school life, and thereby show a steady growth in their personal achievement.

Jim Camphouse, winner of the American Legion Certificate for School Participation in 1965 at Dempster Junior High, was appointed the first committee chairman.

From 9:30 a.m.-2 p.m., delegates will participate in two council discussion groups and a general assembly for district resolutions. Following lunch, Conant will display its 1965-66 Care Project in the "Halll of Ideas" along with those of the 90 participating schools.

Human Relations Club

LSD, the Warren Commission, and the rights of the senior in Conant are just a few of the topics discussed at Human Relations Club, which meets on Wednesdays at 3:15 p.m. The club's purpose is to discuss and learn about problems or promises of the American society or within the school.

The members of the club and Miss Jill Dennington, faculty advisor, intend to study "Lord of the Rings," a novel by J. R. R. Tolkien in the near future. They also have plans for a tutoring program designed to help children in Palatine and Hoffman Estates.

Constitution Committee

Freshman class president Lane Johnson of Elk Grove High School announced recently the names of the Freshman Constitution Committee. They are Carol Mair, Shari Zirebiny, and Sandy Koeplin.

The committee will meet in the near future to write up the freshman constitution.

Debate Guests

The Ridgewood High School Debate Team was guest of Elk Grove High School Wednesday last week. In the practice debate held in the EGHS Little Theater, the home team won both the negative and the affirmative debate.

PROSPECT HIGH SCHOOL
FTA Visitation

Illinois Teachers College, Chicago North and the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus were the scene of a visit last week by area members of the Future Teachers of America Club.

The girls were given a tour of Chicago Circle Campus by a student guide. They were then given a lecture by a dean on student admission requirements.

The F.T.A. members went on to Illinois Teachers College where they were also given a tour of the campus.

Seventy students from Prospect, Arlington and Forest View visited the colleges.

Business Ed. Club

The Prospect High School Business Education club is planning a Christmas party. This spring the club will hold a tea to which former Prospect graduates will be invited to speak.

Officers are president, Mary Ann Kriske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Kriske, 432 South Evanston, Arlington Heights, senior; vice-president, Ann Christiansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Christiansen, 125 Lancaster, Mount Prospect, senior; recording secretary, Sue Messenger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Messenger, 129 North Douglas, Arlington Heights, junior; corresponding secretary, Barbara Thiergartner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Thiergartner, 419 North Eastwood, Mount Prospect, senior; treasurer, Mary Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Long, 505 We-Go Trail, Mount Prospect, senior.

Sponsors are Mrs. Jeanette Rhoback, Miss Ethyle Bitta and Miss Mary Jo Graf.

Math Conference

Two Prospect High School math teachers, Millard Yount and Donald Purcell, attended a math conference at North Central College in Naperville last week. Students Larry and David Stein, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stein, 212 S. Edward, Mount Prospect, accompanied them.

The conference consisted of two talks before dinner and one afterward. The two before dinner concerned first, prime numbers and secondly, logarithms of negative numbers, while the after-dinner talk dealt with contropositives and converses of statements.

Before they left, Yount had a chance to visit North Central's math library, which he described as "very fine."

SACRED HEART OF MARY HIGH SCHOOL Activities Meeting

Class representatives held a social activities meeting at Sacred Heart of Mary last week. One of the activities approved at the meeting was the Sadie Hawkins Barn Dance, which will take place on Nov. 25.

Another approved activity is the hayride planned for Sunday evening. This event is restricted to juniors and seniors. The chairman is Margo Weber, a senior.

The following activities have been suggested but as yet are unapproved: a Hootenanny sponsored by the Guitar Club, a Student-Faculty show, and caroling at Christmas time in various places. These suggestions will be further discussed at the next social activities meeting Nov. 27.

PALATINE HIGH SCHOOL
Parents Attend School

A whole school day was scrunched into two hours last night for parents of Palatine High students.

The purpose of the evening was to acquaint the adults with their teenager's courses, materials, and study methods. Each student gave his parents copies of his daily schedule so the adults could find the classes. At the classrooms teachers had about 20 minutes for presentation of their outline for the class.

Leonard Newendorp, principal, gave a short address to open first period. During study halls coffee and refreshments were served in the cafeteria. Counselors and librarians were also on hand to represent other school functions.

FREMD HIGH SCHOOL
Cast Is Complimented

Mrs. Karen Selman, director of Fremd High School's first play since the school became a separate school, said last week that she was extremely pleased with the good jobs that the student actors did on such a difficult play.

The actors performing in the recently presented play "The Glass Menagerie" were Pat Jayne, Kathy French, Bruce Brooks and Jim Lawrence.

Plaudits also went to those who worked behind the scenes:

The props were donated by Kathy French, Steve Campeau, Colleen McGrath, Kathy Pinchot, and Gail Wettstein.

The technical adviser was Darrel Ruhl, and Colleen McGrath, president of Drama Club, was the student director. Cathy Klep did the set design and Gail Wettstein was the stage manager. Cheri Greer and Gail Wettstein were co-chairmen of the publicity crew.

Also, Kristine Krieble, Alice Hansen, and Peggy Morrison headed the props committee. John Martin was in charge of set construction. Haig Babayan and Pat Willer were chairmen of the lights and make-up crews, respectively. Tim Carter worked on sound.

FOREST VIEW HIGH SCHOOL
Art Club Plans Ahead

New officers of Art Club at Forest View High School are Kay Kutch, president; Pat Hughes, vice-president; Rick Lewis, treasurer; and Jackie Raschke, bouncer.

One of the major projects again this year will be to sell Christmas cards to the student body. The art students do everything themselves in making these cards. The purpose of selling them is to make money, and it will be a chance for the students to work together.

Since Forest View is not participating in the scholastic contest this year which is annually displayed at Randhurst, the Art Club is looking for stores and other places, to display their talent.

The Art Club is also hoping to take some field trips next spring to such places as the Art Institute, art galleries and studios, and maybe a steel mill.

'Thieves' Take Stage At Elk Grove High

by SHIRLEY SERINI

Thursday evening, at 7:30 the Elk Grove High School Drama Club will present its first play, "Thieves Carnival," in the Little Theatre.

Friday and Saturday, the play will be presented at 8 p.m.

"Thieves Carnival," by Jean Anouilh, is "an excellent lark, loaded with humorous whims, romance and masquerades," according to a reviewer.

The plot unfolds in a palatial home where two attractive young girls—Juliette, played by Karen Doherty, and Eva, played by Pam Metcalf—reside.

Three affectionate thieves, Peterbono, played by Steve Stowell, Hector, played by John Berto, and Gustave, played by Bill Metcalf, invade the household, run by Lady Hurf, portrayed by Barb Costanza.

A lovely romance blooms between one of the girls and the youngest thief. Being honest at heart, the young thief recognizes his doings as wrong, and cannot in conscience, accept the young lady's love.

WHEELING HIGH SCHOOL

Spanish Students Meet

"El estudio de Espanol es muy importante." If you are a Spanish student, you know this means that the study of Spanish is very important.

Seven Wheeling High School students think it important enough to meet in the library every Tuesday evening from 7:30-9 to "keep their Spanish alive." They are Don Copland of Prospect Heights, Cheryl Elgy of Prospect Heights, Bill King of Buffalo Grove, and Bob Lee of Wheeling.

Other members of the group are Bonnie Morse of Prospect Heights, Keith Pacheco of Mount Prospect, and Starr Spenelly of Wheeling.

Generaly, students who have had three years of Spanish but are unable to continue with Spanish IV, are given the opportunity to further their study of Spanish by attending these meetings.

All of the students are expecting to enroll in Spanish courses in college next year.

No credit is given for participation in this group; it is conducted on a volunteer basis. The group was originated by Grant Lawrence, Spanish instructor, who also sponsors and meets with the group.

During a typical meeting, students read and discuss many types of literature, hoping to gain a better understanding of Spanish literature. All discussions are conducted in Spanish.

The president's committee—for the preservation and encouragement of "good citizenship" and "personal achievement" among the members of Elk Grove High School's Freshman Class, is one of Lane Johnson's first responsibilities as president of the first EGHS freshman class.

The committee has a threefold purpose: To establish a list of suggested practices—not rules—that can lead to good citizenship and personal achievement; to promote and encourage the use of these practices toward the betterment of the freshman community at large; and to recognize and honor those students who apply these principles of "Good Citizenship" in their school life, and thereby show a steady growth in their personal achievement.

Jim Camphouse, winner of the American Legion Certificate for School Participation in 1965 at Dempster Junior High, was appointed the first committee chairman.

Intergroup Relations Discussed at Parley

High School Highlights

by JIM MORAN

Over 2,000 students from the Chicagoland area last week attended the eighth annual High School Conference on Intergroup Relations at Thornton Township High School in Harvey. The theme of the conference was "Man, What Are You Scared Of?"

The day opened with a program of songs presented by the Parker High School Ensemble, under the direction of Hugh Flowers.

The keynote address was delivered by Dr. William Graham Cole, president of Lake Forest College, who spoke on "The Continuing Revolution." Dr. Cole pointed out that the present social upheaval was a direct result of the American Revolution.

"THE NEGROES today," said Cole, "ask no special rights and privileges. What they want is merely what is theirs by the tenets of our revolution." Dr. Cole also pointed out that the present American Revolution is basically a nonviolent one.

At a press conference after the address, Dr. Cole explained the meaning of the black power movement. "This power is basically an exercise of the constitutional right of the Negro to protest injustice and to use his political and economic power to secure change."

Dr. Cole also mentioned that Stokely Carmichael, a civil rights leader, has been frequently misrepresented in and goaded by the American press. Carmichael's black power movement still remains in line with the peaceful nature of civil rights protests, according to Dr. Cole.

In discussion groups guided by student leaders and adult moderators, the students discussed human relations problems on a personal basis and attempted to relate the theme to their own lives.

At noon a program was presented by the Interracial Students for Action. It included an introduction to the ISA, and an invitation to join Project Wingspread. This project is an outgrowth of past conferences, and involves educational aid to underprivileged students by members of the ISA.

After lunch the discussion groups resumed and made a practical application of what had been discussed to future meetings of the conference. Students were encouraged to exchange addresses and telephone numbers and to keep in touch with one another.

The closing general session included four scenes from the play "The Pieces" by the Rev. Barry Schneider, O.F.M. The play, which has been presented at colleges and universities across the Midwest, was staged by the Spartan Players, all students at Hales Franciscan High School.

Attending the conference from St. Viator were Ed Erbach, Ralph Anderson, Bob Reardon, Jim Moran, Jim McDonough, and Terry Cuny of Mount Prospect; and Jim Dahl of Arlington Heights, and Jeff Dionesotes of Palatine.

The faculty representative was the Rev. Francis Schooley, CSV. (11Y

2 Prospect Teachers 'Commuting'

by NANCY PONTONI

One of the more unusual sides of teaching can be observed at Prospect High School this year.

Two student teachers of the language department, Miss Gayle Robinson (Spanish I) and Miss Sharon Shelton (French I and II) teach classes in the morning at Prospect and then return to Northwestern University in the afternoon to attend their own classes.

The reason for this split schedule is that the two student teachers are presently working for their M.A. degrees.

Miss Shelton spent her junior year of college studying at the Sorbonne in Paris. While in France, she not only developed her interest in the French language but also learned to appreciate their food, music, clothes and sense of humor.

COMPARING student teaching with half-day teaching, Miss Shelton says, "I enjoy being a half-day teacher more as I have complete freedom in my teaching methods and course organization."

Miss Robinson became interested in the Spanish language while she lived in Argentina as a foreign exchange student in high school. She became very close to her Argentine family, who spoke no English.

Because of her experience with these people, she developed a desire to communicate this feeling to others.

On teaching, Miss Robinson says, "Through teaching Spanish I, I hope to at least acquaint others with a culture that differs from our own. I also enjoy working with people, especially high school students, since they are so imaginative." (11Y

Seek Applicants For Fashion Board

by ELAINE CASPER

Girls! Are you a sophomore, junior or senior, and do you wear size 7, 9, or 11? If so, you may qualify for the Wieboldt's Junior Fashion Board.

There are 15 girls on the fashion board, of which five are from Forest View: Diane Donato, Regina Bonucchi, Diane Knol, Karen Powers and Bonnie Schnitta.

After these girls filled out an application, Miss Nancy Tucker, sponsor, interviewed each girl to see if she qualified. Then they went through a six-week class to be trained in modeling, make-up and hair grooming.

AFTER COMPLETING the course, the girls model for all Wieboldt's fashion events, which includes two fashion shows. Also, they attend the fashion board's bimonthly meetings.

A girl is chosen from the fashion board to represent Wieboldt's for Seventeen magazine on the National Fashion Council.

That representative this year is Cheryl Crandle of Prospect High School. (16Y

And we love our work. So much that we couldn't bear to stop with the slickest-looking split grille ever to grace a Wide-Track, (Or any other car, for that matter.)

We went ahead and made the windshield wipers disappear. The car not only looks cleaner, but the wipers are less subject to icing and freezing, too.

Then we got rid of the vent windows on all Grand Prix hardtops. We replaced them with nifty monograms and a flow-through ventilation system.

We even designed a rather unique hood-mounted tachometer option that's available on all Pontiacs. As are our other new options like stereo tape and stereo radio.

And, of course, our handsome interiors have to be seen to be believed.

All Pontiacs have standard safety features that include a dual master cylinder brake system with warning light, outside rearview mirror, and GM's energy absorbing steering column.

Isn't it time you decided to see your Pontiac dealer? If you love our work the way we do, it's the least you can do.

Intergroup Relations Discussed at Parley

High School Highlights

by JIM MORAN

Over 2,000 students from the Chicagoland area last week attended the eighth annual High School Conference on Intergroup Relations at Thornton Township High School in Harvey. The theme of the conference was "Man, What Are You Scared Of?"

The day opened with a program of songs presented by the Parker High School Ensemble, under the direction of Hugh Flowers.

The keynote address was delivered by Dr. William Graham Cole, president of Lake Forest College, who spoke on "The Continuing Revolution." Dr. Cole pointed out that the present social upheaval was a direct result of the American Revolution.

"THE NEGROES today," said Cole, "ask no special rights and privileges. What they want is merely what is theirs by the tenets of our revolution." Dr. Cole also pointed out that the present American Revolution is basically a nonviolent one.

At a press conference after the address, Dr. Cole explained the meaning of the black power movement. "This power is basically an exercise of the constitutional right of the Negro to protest injustice and to use his political and economic power to secure change."

Dr. Cole also mentioned that Stokely Carmichael, a civil rights leader, has been frequently misrepresented in and goaded by the American press. Carmichael's black power movement still remains in line with the peaceful nature of civil rights protests, according to Dr. Cole.

In discussion groups guided by student leaders and adult moderators, the students discussed human relations problems on a personal basis and attempted to relate the theme to their own lives.

At noon a program was presented by the Interracial Students for Action. It included an introduction to the ISA, and an invitation to join Project Wingspread. This project is an outgrowth of past conferences, and involves educational aid to underprivileged students by members of the ISA.

After lunch the discussion groups resumed and made a practical application of what had been discussed to future meetings of the conference. Students were encouraged to exchange addresses and telephone numbers and to keep in touch with one another.

The closing general session included four scenes from the play "The Pieces" by the Rev. Barry Schneider, O.F.M. The play, which has been presented at colleges and universities across the Midwest, was staged by the Spartan Players, all students at Hales Franciscan High School.

Attending the conference from St. Viator were Ed Erbach, Ralph Anderson, Bob Reardon, Jim Moran, Jim McDonough, and Terry Cuny of Mount Prospect; and Jim Dahl of Arlington Heights, and Jeff Dionesotes of Palatine.

The faculty representative was the Rev. Francis Schooley, CSV. (11Y

Serendipity

A Column Devoted Exclusively to Your Spare-Time Activities

Perhaps the wisest man in the world is the one who can conceive of a good idea and stick to his convictions. Highlighters are not the wisest people in the world.

Two weeks ago, a column christened "Lemme Clue Ya" made its first appearance in these pages. Now the editorial staff of Highlights has decided to rename the column. "Lemme Clue Ya" is dead. Long live "Serendipity."

The title is derived from an old legend called "The Three Princes of Serendip," who in their world travels continually stumbled upon things of value that they did not seek.

The word "serendipity" has come to denote an ability to discover important and beneficial ideas. What's more important or beneficial on the weekend than finding something legal and entertaining to occupy your time?

Weekend Entertainment

Planning to go to a club, but can't decide which one? Well, here's a list of the featured entertainment to help you to decide.

The Conspirators will be at the New Place tomorrow (Friday) and The Black Watch on Saturday.

The Squires will provide the entertainment at the Pink Panther tomorrow with The Byrds at the Green Gorilla. Neither club is open on Saturday this week.

You can see The Little Boy Blues at the Purble Penquin tomorrow and The Squires on Saturday.

At the Crimson Cougar tomorrow The Equestrians will be featured, and The Conspirators will be there on Saturday.

The Cellar has two guest bands scheduled for this weekend. Tomorrow Sir Winston and the Commons from Indiana will provide the music, and Saturday the Byrds, a popular group in the Chicagoland area will entertain.

If you are a Saturdays Children fan, you can see The Children perform in McHenry at a new club called the Sunday club. The Children will be there on Sunday from 7 p.m. till 10 p.m. The club is located on Route 31 in the old McHenry roller rink. Another Chicago group, The Flock, will be there, too.

—Compiled by Maryann Buczek

New Palatine Club

Arlington has The Cellar, Des Plaines has the Hut and the Green Gorilla, Algonquin has the New Place, and by the end of November, Palatine should also have its own teenage nightclub.

The club, as yet unnamed, will be open to all high school students in the Palatine Township district and will be located on the corner of Bothwell and Slade, the location of the now defunct Story Club. It will be open on Friday and Saturday nights.

Harry Carthum, youth activities coordinator for the park district, had expected the lease to be signed last week, but as of this moment the lease is still unsigned.

THE PARK district has signed it, but the holders of the lease cannot be found. Their signatures are the last necessary step before work on the nightclub is opened.

Although a list of rules of conduct for the club have not been set up, Carthum expressed the desire of the park district to avoid a group takeover. At present he is auditioning groups to play for the teen club; he would like interested groups to contact him either at his home or at the park district.

A Good Movie!

David Lean's magnificent "Dr. Zhivago" has been out since last year, but is still as popular as ever. The motion picture is full of human emotion. Its actors display the awe, terror, love, and sorrow of the crucial period during the Russian Revolution.

The setting is in Russia. Dr. Zhivago lives during the troubled times at the outbreak of the revolution and during its consequences. Army revolts, irrational killings, starvation, and epidemics characteristic of these times are compellingly exhibited.

Omar Sharif, an Egyptian star, takes the part of Zhivago, the central figure of the movie. Zhivago, a physician and poet, marries Tonia, played by Geraldine Chaplain. Later, Zhivago falls in love with Julie Christie as Lara, whom he meets through his medical profession in the revolution.

"Dr. Zhivago" is a masterpiece. The film, through its superb script, acting, music, and direction reaches a peak close to perfection. The viewer can not regret one minute spent observing human life in such tragic times.

Read a Good Book

If you're sick of the "little green martian with his deathly ray gun" type science fiction, one of the best science fiction books available is "the Martian Chronicles" by Ray Bradbury.

The Martians in this story, which is more chilling than most of today's thrillers, are very real people trying to defend themselves from the deadly Earth people through the use of their most highly developed weapons: telepathy, hallucinations and mind-reading.

As an added twist of conventional technique, the "bad guys" represented by the Earth men, conquer the "good guys" or the Martians. The Earth people don't win by intelligence or by power; their weapon is a simple childhood disease which wipes out the majority of the Martians.

From that point, the book becomes enough to put the reader on the verge of tears, particularly because it portrays so well the corruption in our world and the fact that some men poison nearly everything they touch.

"The Martian Chronicles" is a exceptional book, well written with an absorbing plot by a master of the bizarre. Even for those who are not real science fiction fans, it is an exciting experience and well worth the time it takes to read.

Fashions on Parade

The fashion look for teens is "worldly," reflecting fashion trends the world around.

London has been influential in this area for several years. One London look is the Carnaby Street look with wool mini skirts and paisley blouses.

Paris is becoming more and more influential in current teen fashions.

A "Hot Line" from Paris is stripes!- Bold and blazing bands of color "splashed" on skirts, slacks, and shirts.

A London version of the Paris "Hot Line" is called "Neon." Blending of vibrant colors together achieve "glowing neon" effect in fashion.

What's in now?

The boys seem to favor dark colored shirts with prints and trim slacks in a variety of fabrics from burlap to suede. These come with wide belts of nonmatching fabric.

The "in" gals like "Hiphugger" skirts and "poor boy" sweaters, sometimes with long textured tights to get that "total look."

FOR RECORD LOVERS

Donovan's latest album release "Sunshine Superman" (on the Epic label) is a refreshingly different collection of original music.

With the Dylan school of influence, Donovan creates a mood with each of his songs. The beauty lies not only in the lyric and melody of the work, but in his very personal way of interpreting his own music.

"Sunshine Superman," his recent and very successful single record, is included in the album as a teaser for the perspective listener.

A long 6½-minute ballad, "Legend of A Girl Child Linda," is typical of the true folk music style. It is a poignant story of aging children sung as a traditional fairy tale. While the melody of this cut could become monotonous, the words are well worth paying attention to, and can be interpreted differently by each listener.

THE INFLUENCE of India is evident in the visionary story of the "Twelve King Fishers." A very definite bongo beat with Ravi Shankar undertones give the record a personality of its own.

Bongos and guitar again play an important part in the ballad about a "Ferris Wheel." If you listen well, you'll feel as though you are actually in a ferris wheel.

"The Trip" and "The Fat Angel" are Donovan's impressions of Los Angeles and the West Coast. The first sports an almost conventional rock beat, while the second leans toward the Calypso flavor.

As a finale, Donovan uses a song called "Celeste." In his words, "Celeste is my name for the lady weaver of all the skies who weaves our fates on a silver loom in the silent room of eternal love."

If you have an isolated taste in music and you only like rock or solid beat material, this album will do nothing for you. If you enjoy thinking about what you are listening to at times and you are about ready to experience something new, "Sunshine Superman" is exactly what you are looking for.

It's guaranteed to exercise your imagination.

Two weeks ago, a column christened "Lemme Clue Ya" made its first appearance in these pages. Now the editorial staff of Highlights has decided to rename the column. "Lemme Clue Ya" is dead. Long live "Serendipity."

The title is derived from an old legend called "The Three Princes of Serendip," who in their world travels continually stumbled upon things of value that they did not seek.

The word "serendipity" has come to denote an ability to discover important and beneficial ideas. What's more important or beneficial on the weekend than finding something legal and entertaining to occupy your time?

Weekend Entertainment

Planning to go to a club, but can't decide which one? Well, here's a list of the featured entertainment to help you to decide.

The Conspirators will be at the New Place tomorrow (Friday) and The Black Watch on Saturday.

The Squires will provide the entertainment at the Pink Panther tomorrow with The Byrds at the Green Gorilla. Neither club is open on Saturday this week.

You can see The Little Boy Blues at the Purble Penquin tomorrow and The Squires on Saturday.

At the Crimson Cougar tomorrow The Equestrians will be featured, and The Conspirators will be there on Saturday.

The Cellar has two guest bands scheduled for this weekend. Tomorrow Sir Winston and the Commons from Indiana will provide the music, and Saturday the Byrds, a popular group in the Chicagoland area will entertain.

If you are a Saturdays Children fan, you can see The Children perform in McHenry at a new club called the Sunday club. The Children will be there on Sunday from 7 p.m. till 10 p.m. The club is located on Route 31 in the old McHenry roller rink. Another Chicago group, The Flock, will be there, too.

New Palatine Club

Arlington has The Cellar, Des Plaines has the Hut and the Green Gorilla, Algonquin has the New Place, and by the end of November, Palatine should also have its own teenage nightclub.

The club, as yet unnamed, will be open to all high school students in the Palatine Township district and will be located on the corner of Bothwell and Slade, the location of the now defunct Story Club. It will be open on Friday and Saturday nights.

Harry Carthum, youth activities coordinator for the park district, had expected the lease to be signed last week, but as of this moment the lease is still unsigned.

THE PARK district has signed it, but the holders of the lease cannot be found. Their signatures are the last necessary step before work on the nightclub is opened.

Although a list of rules of conduct for the club have not been set up, Carthum expressed the desire of the park district to avoid a group takeover. At present he is auditioning groups to play for the teen club; he would like interested groups to contact him either at his home or at the park district.

A Good Movie!

David Lean's magnificent "Dr. Zhivago" has been out since last year, but is still as popular as ever. The motion picture is full of human emotion. Its actors display the awe, terror, love, and sorrow of the crucial period during the Russian Revolution.

The setting is in Russia. Dr. Zhivago lives during the troubled times at the outbreak of the revolution and during its consequences. Army revolts, irrational killings, starvation, and epidemics characteristic of these times are compellingly exhibited.

Omar Sharif, an Egyptian star, takes the part of Zhivago, the central figure of the movie. Zhivago, a physician and poet, marries Tonia, played by Geraldine Chaplain. Later, Zhivago falls in love with Julie Christie as Lara, whom he meets through his medical profession in the revolution.

"Dr. Zhivago" is a masterpiece. The film, through its superb script, acting, music, and direction reaches a peak close to perfection. The viewer can not regret one minute spent observing human life in such tragic times.

Read a Good Book

If you're sick of the "little green martian with his deathly ray gun" type science fiction, one of the best science fiction books available is "the Martian Chronicles" by Ray Bradbury.

The Martians in this story, which is more chilling than most of today's thrillers, are very real people trying to defend themselves from the deadly Earth people through the use of their most highly developed weapons: telepathy, hallucinations and mind-reading.

As an added twist of conventional technique, the "bad guys" represented by the Earth men, conquer the "good guys" or the Martians. The Earth people don't win by intelligence or by power; their weapon is a simple childhood disease which wipes out the majority of the Martians.

From that point, the book becomes enough to put the reader on the verge of tears, particularly because it portrays so well the corruption in our world and the fact that some men poison nearly everything they touch.

"The Martian Chronicles" is a exceptional book, well written with an absorbing plot by a master of the bizarre. Even for those who are not real science fiction fans, it is an exciting experience and well worth the time it takes to read.

Fashions on Parade

The fashion look for teens is "worldly," reflecting fashion trends the world around.

London has been influential in this area for several years. One London look is the Carnaby Street look with wool mini skirts and paisley blouses.

Paris is becoming more and more influential in current teen fashions.

A "Hot Line" from Paris is stripes!- Bold and blazing bands of color "splashed" on skirts, slacks, and shirts.

A London version of the Paris "Hot Line" is called "Neon." Blending of vibrant colors together achieve "glowing neon" effect in fashion.

What's in now?

The boys seem to favor dark colored shirts with prints and trim slacks in a variety of fabrics from burlap to suede. These come with wide belts of nonmatching fabric.

The "in" gals like "Hiphugger" skirts and "poor boy" sweaters, sometimes with long textured tights to get that "total look."

FOR RECORD LOVERS

Donovan's latest album release "Sunshine Superman" (on the Epic label) is a refreshingly different collection of original music.

With the Dylan school of influence, Donovan creates a mood with each of his songs. The beauty lies not only in the lyric and melody of the work, but in his very personal way of interpreting his own music.

"Sunshine Superman," his recent and very successful single record, is included in the album as a teaser for the perspective listener.

A long 6½-minute ballad, "Legend of A Girl Child Linda," is typical of the true folk music style. It is a poignant story of aging children sung as a traditional fairy tale. While the melody of this cut could become monotonous, the words are well worth paying attention to, and can be interpreted differently by each listener.

THE INFLUENCE of India is evident in the visionary story of the "Twelve King Fishers." A very definite bongo beat with Ravi Shankar undertones give the record a personality of its own.

Bongos and guitar again play an important part in the ballad about a "Ferris Wheel." If you listen well, you'll feel as though you are actually in a ferris wheel.

"The Trip" and "The Fat Angel" are Donovan's impressions of Los Angeles and the West Coast. The first sports an almost conventional rock beat, while the second leans toward the Calypso flavor.

As a finale, Donovan uses a song called "Celeste." In his words, "Celeste is my name for the lady weaver of all the skies who weaves our fates on a silver loom in the silent room of eternal love."

If you have an isolated taste in music and you only like rock or solid beat material, this album will do nothing for you. If you enjoy thinking about what you are listening to at times and you are about ready to experience something new, "Sunshine Superman" is exactly what you are looking for.

It's guaranteed to exercise your imagination.

Gal Volleyball Team Challenges Area Leagues

The women's volleyball team sponsored by Rolling Meadows Park District has offered an open challenge to other women's teams in the area.

A group from Arlington Heights has already accepted the chalienge, and the two teams will meet next Tuesday evening in the gymnasium of Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Other teams are asked to contact the park district office, 392-4380, and establish a date for a game. (B10

Student's History Article Published

by CAROLE CAMERON

Appearing in the November issue of the Illinois History magazine is an article by Bob Robinson, a senior at Prospect High School.

The magazine is a publication for teen-agers sponsored by the Illinois State Historical Society.

The theme of the issue is "Illinois State Parks." Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Robinson Jr., 503 S. Edward, Mount Prospect, entitled his article "Last of the White Pines." His theme dealt with the early settlement of the eastern coast of North America and the abundant white pine forests covering the area from Maine to Minnesota and as far south as Georgia.

BECAUSE OF THE great need for pine wood, the logging companies soon stripped the countryside of its pines, leaving only one section of these trees remaining in the North American continent.

This area is located on a series of rocky bluffs, nine miles west of the Illinois town of Oregon and has been designated as White Pines Forest State Park.

Responsible for encouraging his students to submit their articles to the magazine is Alex Schmidt, Prospect High School American history and economics teacher. He had Bob as a student for American history last year. (11Y

Fees Adopted by Clinic Directors

The Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Clinic's board of directors has adopted a new fee schedule that will make the facilities of the clinic available to all residents of the seven community area served by the clinic.

The new schedule has no maximum salary stipulations but does incorporate a sliding scale based on net family income, according to Harrison Hanson, board president. Before the fee revision, families with a net income of over $10,000 were not eligible for the clinic's services, he said.

WITH THE NEW schedule, families with a net income of $10,000 are charged $10 a visit. The fee is increased by $2 per clinic visit for each additional $1,000 net family income.

Families with a net income of over $15,000 or above who come to the clinic will be furnished with the names of private psychiatric facilities in the area. Hanson said the choice between private and clinic service will be left up to the individual.

Although rates for families with a net income under $10,000 have been raised slightly, the basic premise that no one will be turned away because he is unable to pay for treatment is still in effect, Hanson said.

The clinic, presently located at 1711 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, serves the northwest communities of Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman - Schaumburg, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling - Buffalo Grove, as well as their surrounding areas. (B10

America's Freedom – A Working Idea

The idea behind our country today is freedom; freedom to speak, freedom to act, freedom to be, and freedom not to be. Perhaps one of the least restrictive freedoms of all is the freedom to define freedom.

Oh, they've been trying for centuries. And they will keep on trying. Freedom was the greatest curse ever released from Pandora's magic box.

Freedom evolved from the word "no." But if freedom meant no more than a natural hatred of restraint, it would no longer be a useful idea.

Freedom is only possible when it respects the freedom of all persons rather than just the individual. In order to have freedom, we have to give up a little of it.

THE FOUNDERS OF OUR COUNTRY knew what they were doing when they used the word "freedom" to help define guidelines for our government. They were not anarchists who wished to abolish law and order to promote the freedom of man.

They developed what could be called "ordered freedom." In this, individual freedoms were maintained by recognizing an orderly way of life based on justice.

Then progress stepped into the picture and complicated the whole thing. Enter the 20th Century. Stress was placed on intellectual freedom, which is good in theory but undeveloped in practice.

Intellectualism invaded the young set and became confused with radicalism. Its chief device was protest.

Protest is important in a workable society in order to make the voice of the people heard. But protest should not be abused as a synonym of practical freedom.

Freedom is becoming an overworked concept. All the marches, picketing and demonstrating are losing their former punch. Besides that, they are accomplishing the opposite of their objective.

There are so many demonstrations being held that they are becoming a laughing matter. The public is continually being asked to support this or that. But no one person can back everything.

IT'S TIME TO DEFINE freedom again.

Freedom should be based on order and justice. Justice is the principle by which man is assured of the things that belong to him.

Order is the principle by which peace and decency are maintained. We must settle for the freedom of civilized man.

Student's History Article Published

by CAROLE CAMERON

Appearing in the November issue of the Illinois History magazine is an article by Bob Robinson, a senior at Prospect High School.

The magazine is a publication for teen-agers sponsored by the Illinois State Historical Society.

The theme of the issue is "Illinois State Parks." Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Robinson Jr., 503 S. Edward, Mount Prospect, entitled his article "Last of the White Pines." His theme dealt with the early settlement of the eastern coast of North America and the abundant white pine forests covering the area from Maine to Minnesota and as far south as Georgia.

BECAUSE OF THE great need for pine wood, the logging companies soon stripped the countryside of its pines, leaving only one section of these trees remaining in the North American continent.

This area is located on a series of rocky bluffs, nine miles west of the Illinois town of Oregon and has been designated as White Pines Forest State Park.

Responsible for encouraging his students to submit their articles to the magazine is Alex Schmidt, Prospect High School American history and economics teacher. He had Bob as a student for American history last year. (11Y

Gal Volleyball Team Challenges Area Leagues

The women's volleyball team sponsored by Rolling Meadows Park District has offered an open challenge to other women's teams in the area.

A group from Arlington Heights has already accepted the challenge, and the two teams will meet next Tuesday evening in the gymnasium of Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

Other teams are asked to contact the park district office, 392-4380, and establish a date for a game. (B10

Fees Adopted by Clinic Directors

The Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Clinic's board of directors has adopted a new fee schedule that will make the facilities of the clinic available to all residents of the seven community area served by the clinic.

The new schedule has no maximum salary stipulations but does incorporate a sliding scale based on net family income, according to Harrison Hanson, board president. Before the fee revision, families with a net income of over $10,000 were not eligible for the clinic's services, he said.

WITH THE NEW schedule, families with a net income of $10,000 are charged $10 a visit. The fee is increased by $2 per clinic visit for each additional $1,000 net family income.

Families with a net income of over $15,000 or above who come to the clinic will be furnished with the names of private psychiatric facilities in the area. Hanson said the choice between private and clinic service will be left up to the individual.

Although rates for families with a net income under $10,000 have been raised slightly, the basic premise that no one will be turned away because he is unable to pay for treatment is still in effect, Hanson said.

The clinic, presently located at 1711 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, serves the northwest communities of Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman - Schaumburg, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling - Buffalo Grove, as well as their surrounding areas. (B10

THE DELUXE STATION WAGON, two-door sports coupe (fastback) and two-door sedan, are the three body styles of the General Motors "Opel Kadett' line, built in Germany, and sold by major Buick dealers in the United States. The new models feature a number of improvements, including dual master-cylinder brakes, telescopic steering shaft and four-way flasher system. Choice of four interior trim styling is available. Optional features available include a special "performance" engine package and front disc brakes. According to R. S. Withers, Buick's general sales manager, the "Americanized" styling of the Opel Kadett line has been very well accepted; the "fastback" styling of the sports coupe model, particularly, appeals to American car buyers. The Buick-Opel dealer organization now includes 1,250 dealers, largest for any imported car. The area dealer for the Opel Kadett line is Bill Cook Buick, Euclid and Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights.

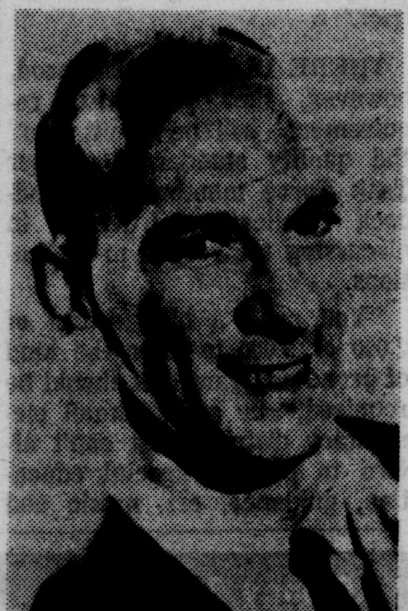
Weber to Emcee Wheeling Hop



CLARK WEBER

Clark Weber, WLS disc jockey, will emcee a record hop from 8 to 11 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 23 in the Wheeling High School field house.

All District 214 high school and junior high students are invited to attend. School dress is to be worn.

Weber will give away free records and may bring a guest personality. Also featured will be dance contests and a popular Wheeling high school combo "The Poor Boys."

REFRESHMENTS including hot dogs will be served.

Tickets are $1 and can be bought at various high schools or at Wheeling. Tickets will also be sold at the door. Anyone wanting additional tickets may call Mrs. Roe Fridley, 392-9044.

This record hop is a fundraising project of the Instrumental League (parent band boosters group).

Ted Falen, 1108 Greenfield Lane, Mount Prospect, president of the Instrumental League, thanked the 400-Car Wash on N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, for its Nov. 13 sponsoring of a "car wash day" for the benefit of the Wheeling band.

Said Falen, "All these fundraising projects of the Instrumental League (parent band boosters) such as the Clark Weber record hop on Nov. 23, are not only to send our award-winning band back to the Aquatennial next summer, but will help purchase additional uniforms not included in the district budget."

CONFIRMING this, Dean DePoy, director, said "Our Marching Band last year had 110 members. This year we have approximately 184. Some uniforms are needed and they are expensive."

Projects chairman Alberta Klocke said other league projects coming up soon are a Dec. 15 performance by the Hough Vocalaires, a bake sale at the Dec. 18 Christmas Concert, and a Jan. 14 spaghetti dinner. (11Y

This record hop is a fund-raising project of the Instrumental League (parent band boosters group).

Ted Falen, 1108 Greenfield Lane, Mount Prospect, president of the Instrumental League, thanked the 400-Car Wash on N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, for its Nov. 13 sponsoring of a "car wash day" for the benefit of the Wheeling band.

Said Falen, "All these fund-raising projects of the Instrumental League (parent band boosters) such as the Clark Weber record hop on Nov. 23, are not only to send our award-winning band back to the Aquatennial next summer, but will help purchase additional uniforms not included in the district budget."

CONFIRMING this, Dean DePoy, director, said "Our Marching Band last year had 110 members. This year we have approximately 184. Some uniforms are needed and they are expensive."

Projects chairman Alberta Klocke said other league projects coming up soon are a Dec. 15 performance by the Hough Vocalaires, a bake sale at the Dec. 18 Christmas Concert, and a Jan. 14 spaghetti dinner. (11Y

Task Force Reports

Quash Move for Unit School Districts

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

Suburban supporters of dual districts won out at the Illinois Task Force on Education's final meeting. The Task Force, winding up an 18-month study in an all-day session last Thursday in the Palmer House, decided:

—To strike all recommendations giving preference to unit K-12 districts over dual districts with separate taxing bodies operating elementary and secondary schools.

—To take no stand on recommended student population within a school district.

The Task Force final report, due in December to Gov. Otto Kerner—a co-sponsor of the study with the School Problems Commission and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Ray Page—will still emphasize the advantages of unit K-12 school districts.

Task Force members told Paddock Publications that the final report will cite figures to show the desirability of pre-school through 12th grade education being under a single school administration.

But the Task Force will not recommend either forced district reorganization or use of financial inducements to encourage unification of dual districts—the common form of school system in Chicago's suburban ring.

INSTEAD, THE Task Force will recommend:

—That the chief state school agency set up specific, objective standards for schools for both a minimum and a quality education program.

—That a school district meeting the quality standards, no matter what its size and no matter whether it is a dual or K-12 district, be given doubled state aid. This aid should be provided for both regular school operating expenses and capital improvements school construction, the Task Force agreed.

—That school districts meeting the minimum education standards continue to receive state aid at the present levels—up to $330 per pupil for operating expenses only.

—That schools not meeting minimum standards receive no state aid at all.

THE TASK Force will recommend that schools meeting quality standards receive up to $600 per pupil for elementary pupil and $750 per high school pupil.

Schools would be required to levy a certain tax level (a measure of 'local effort," Task Force members explained) and the state aid given would represent the difference between the $600 and the amount their district could raise on the "effort level" tax.

An "equivalent level" of state aid for school construction and bond interest payments will be recommended by the 57-member Task Force.

Task Force member Harold Norman, school attorney who lives in Glenview, said he was "greatly relieved" over the Task Force decision to eliminate population standards and preference from unit districts.

Citing the north shore's many small but excellent school systems, he said, "You and I both know that a quality program doesn't come necessarily with size—or by having a unit district."

THERE IS A good likelihood, however, that population requirements will be "built into" the quality standards, another Task Force member told Paddock Publications Tuesday in discussing the recommendations.

"You need a high school of 2,000 or 3,000 to offer the kind of broad program that should be required," he said. "Small elementary districts just can't afford to provide special education, guidance, art, music and other specialized programs needed."

Task Force members who discussed the report with this newspaper stressed increased state aid as the key to all other recommendations.

"This whole thing depends upon state funding," one asserted. "Local districts have done about all they can do. For every improvement—preschool training, broader programs, vocational courses, guidance and smaller classes—the answer in every case is money!"

The state aid for school construction will help induce the suburbs to abandon dual districts, this newspaper was told.

"This is the answer to the 5 per cent bonding power limit which has kept suburban areas like Arlington Heights from forming unit districts," a Task Force member pointed out. "Right now you can't afford to have a unit district because you couldn't put up the buildings you need under the five per cent bonding limit."

The Task Force will recommend that the state aid for buildings be flexible, with the amount determined by the financial need of the district and the varying cost of construction within the state.

A SUGGESTION that a "bootstrap" for school districts interested in self-improvement be built into the new state aid program will be part of the Task Force report.

The state school agency "may" (not "must") allow school districts wishing to meet quality standards to submit a plan and receive increased state aid to help them reach those goals, the Task Force will recommend.

Air 'Blackmail' Charge On State School Board

Charges and countercharges are being tossed about this week regarding Illinois Task Force on Education's decision to back off from recommending that an appointed State Board of Education be set up in this state.

Today a minority report favoring an appointed state board was filed with Task Force executive director William P. McLure of the University of Illinois.

Among the signers are noted Glenview school attorney Harold Norman and Mrs. Walter G. Kimmel, state PTA chairman who spoke in the northwest suburbs several weeks ago.

THEY ARE protesting the Task Force's decision Thursday, at its final session, to leave up to the Legislature whether to appoint or elect a state board of education in Illinois.

The state board of education, similar to those found in 48 other states, would appoint the state superintendent and serve as the chief policy-making body for the state's schools.

Democratic Gov. Otto Kerner has favored appointment of the board, while Republican State Supt. Ray Page, in his successful campaign for re-election, has gone on record as favoring an elected state board of education.

John O'Neill, associate state superintendent and Page's chief spokesman on the Task Force, threatened a "walkout" Thursday if the committee plank favoring appointment of the state board were okayed.

HE TOLD the committee that Page would withdraw his co-sponsorship of the Task Force if it held with this specific recommendation — on which Page claimed a "mandate from the people" because of re-election.

"I've never seen such blackmail tactics!" Task Force member Anthony J. Scariano of Park Forest said angrily Monday when contacted by Paddock4 Publications.

"He told the Task Force point blank that if that recommendation were adopted he, in behalf of Page, would bolt the Task Force—and withdraw sponsorship," Scariano added.

O'Neill, contacted by Paddock Publications, chuckled at the "blackmail" charge. "I figured that's what they'd say!" the former Arlington Heights resident added.

"RAY PAGE is honorary chairman of the Task Force," the associate superintendent said. "It would be indeed a peculiar thing if he were asked to recommend — as chairman — a position to which he personally was diametrically opposed."

Task Force support for an appointed superintendent is politically-inspired rather than reflecting any "unbiased viewpoint," O'Neill told Paddock Publications.

He charged that Kerner had "stacked" the Task Force appointing a 4-1 majority of Democrats. Further, he pointed out, the sub-committee which recommended the appointed board had been headed by Donald Prince, who resigned to become Page's Democratic opponent.

O'Neill did add that Prince had resigned from the Task Force after the primary. By then, he said, "the die was cast" regarding the Task Force recommendations.

O'Neill's view of the Task Force, and the administrative structure committee, was strongly challenged by Norman.

"I'm a Republican, and so is Mrs. Mary Meany. I don't know the politics of the others," Norman said.

The minority report favoring an appointed state board is being circulated by Mrs. Kimmel, who became chairman of the administrative structure subcommittee when Prince became a candidate.

THE STATEMENT asserts that there are "more advantages than disadvantages" to the appointment method. "Appointment has a greater appeal to the highly qualified. Many refuse to seek this office but would welcome appointment," the statement adds.

Among other signers are Scariano and former Glencoe Supt. Paul Misner, vice chairman of the Task Force; Guy Cornwell, executive secretary of the Tri-County Division of the Illinois Association of School Boards; Vernon Heath, Robinson manufacturer; William C. Bell, president of the Rock Island School board; Mrs. Meany, a Republican state representative from Chicago; John McGill, University of Illinois Professor of education, and Miriam Ringo, assistant to Gov. Kerner. (A15

Secrecy Again As Group Meets

by NANCY BENCO
Staff Writer

The doors were barred to the public when Illinois' 57-member Task Force on Education met for the last time Thursday.

Standing in the Monroe Ballroom of Chicago's Palmer House, William P. McClure, executive director of the Task Force, told this reporter, "This meeting is closed."

McClure upheld his stand by saying that 1965 state statutes making all legislative committee sessions public did not apply to Task Force meetings.

"That applies to agencies of the state government and we are not an agency," he added.

His stand was a reversal of a comment he made to the press after so-called secret sessions of the Task Force on Sept. 16 and 17. Then, he told Paddock Publications the press could have attended the meetings.

The challenge to that invitation Thursday proved the public would not be admitted. The doors of the ballroom closed at 10:30 a.m. with only Task Force members in attendance.

McClure, director of the Bureau of Educational Research at the University of Illinois, led the Task Force in its final review of reports.

The day-long session began about 10:30 a.m. and was expected to end at 5 p.m. Task Force members wrapped up 18 months of work into a final report, which is to be presented to the three Task Force sponsors, Governor Otto Kerner, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Ray Page and the School Problems Commission.

The final 250-page technical report will be pared down into digest form for the public. It is expected to get into circulation in December.

Priest Speaks To Church Club

"Escape from Escapism" was the title of a talk by Fr. William Walsh, OSM, at last Thursday evening's meeting of St. Thomas of Villanova Catholic Women's Club, Palatine. The program also included the installation of 63 new members in the club.

Father Walsh, in his 28th year of church work, has had a large range of priestly duties. He has served as a parish priest, a vocation director and is now retreat master at Stone Bridge Priory in Lake Bluff. He also spent four years in Ireland promoting vocations to the Servite Order. (S

Local Artist to Exhibit At AAUW Meeting Tonite

A local artist, Mrs. Hedvic Vlasak of Mount Prospect, will exhibit her paintings at the meeting of the Northwest Suburban branch of the American Association of University Women today (Thursday). The program about perception "On Seeing and Hearing" will be presented by Miss Carol Harding of Mundelein.

Mrs. Vlasak, a member of the Mount Prospect and Des Plaines art leagues and the North Shore art guild, exhibits frequently at the Countryside Gallery in Mount Prospect and other suburban locations.

Residents of the area frequently discover a familiar picturesque scene captured in one of Mrs. Vlasak's paintings. She has done pictures of several of the bridges in and around Mount Prospect, the stone pillars on Route 83 near Golf Road, and numerous buildings and scenes in the nearby River Trails Nature Center.

OILS, PASTELS and watercolors are the media most frequently used by Mrs. Vlasak. Her paintings are mostly landscapes and still lifes. "I like to paint things the way they really look," she said. "That way other people can recognize them, too." Her friends and family can testify to recognizing and enjoying her paintings; her Christmas cards are frequently in the form of miniature winter landscapes done in water colors.

Children as well as adults in the area have come to know Mrs. Vlasak as she frequently serves as a substitute teacher. She received a B.A. in physics and mathematics, and an M.A. in art and education, so she is qualified in several fields.

The AAUW meeting begins at 8:15 in the South Park Lodge, Howard and White Streets, Des Plaines. Further information regarding the group may be obtained by contacting Mrs. G. W. Hrbek, 253-0226. (S

"You need a high school of 2,000 or 3,000 to offer the kind of broad program that should be required," he said. "Small elementary districts just can't afford to provide special education, guidance, art, music and other specialized programs needed."

Task Force members who discussed the report with this newspaper stressed increased state aid as the key to all other recommendations.

"This whole thing depends upon state funding," one asserted. "Local districts have done about all they can do. For every improvement—pre-school training, broader programs, vocational courses, guidance and smaller classes—the answer in every case is money!"

The state aid for school construction will help induce the suburbs to abandon dual districts, this newspaper was told.

"This is the answer to the 5 per cent bonding power limit which has kept suburban areas like Arlington Heights from forming unit districts," a Task Force member pointed out. "Right now you can't afford to have a unit district because you couldn't put up the buildings you need under the five per cent bonding limit."

The Task Force will recommend that the state aid for buildings be flexible, with the amount determined by the financial need of the district and the varying cost of construction within the state.

A SUGGESTION that a "bootstrap" for school districts interested in self-improvement be built into the new state aid program will be part of the Task Force report.

The state school agency "may" (not "must") allow school districts wishing to meet quality standards to submit a plan and receive increased state aid to help them reach those goals, the Task Force will recommend.

Air 'Blackmail' Charge On State School Board

Charges and countercharges are being tossed about this week regarding Illinois Task Force on Education's decision to back off from recommending that an appointed State Board of Education be set up in this state.

Today a minority report favoring an appointed state board was filed with Task Force executive director William P. McLure of the University of Illinois.

Among the signers are noted Glenview school attorney Harold Norman and Mrs. Walter G. Kimmel, state PTA chairman who spoke in the northwest suburbs several weeks ago.

THEY ARE protesting the Task Force's decision Thursday, at its final session, to leave up to the Legislature whether to appoint or elect a state board of education in Illinois.

The state board of education, similar to those found in 48 other states, would appoint the state superintendent and serve as the chief policy-making body for the state's schools.

Democratic Gov. Otto Kerner has favored appointment of the board, while Republican State Supt. Ray Page, in his successful campaign for re-election, has gone on record as favoring an elected state board of education.

John O'Neill, associate state superintendent and Page's chief spokesman on the Task Force, threatened a "walkout" Thursday if the committee plank favoring appointment of the state board were okayed.

HE TOLD the committee that Page would withdraw his co-sponsorship of the Task Force if it held with this specific recommendation — on which Page claimed a "mandate from the people" because of re-election.

"I've never seen such blackmail tactics!" Task Force member Anthony J. Scariano of Park Forest said angrily Monday when contacted by Paddock4 Publications.

"He told the Task Force point blank that if that recommendation were adopted he, in behalf of Page, would bolt the Task Force—and withdraw sponsorship," Scariano added.

O'Neill, contacted by Paddock Publications, chuckled at the "blackmail" charge. "I figured that's what they'd say!" the former Arlington Heights resident added.

"RAY PAGE is honorary chairman of the Task Force," the associate superintendent said. "It would be indeed a peculiar thing if he were asked to recommend — as chairman — a position to which he personally was diametrically opposed."

Task Force support for an appointed superintendent is politically-inspired rather than reflecting any "unbiased viewpoint," O'Neill told Paddock Publications.

He charged that Kerner had "stacked" the Task Force appointing a 4-1 majority of Democrats. Further, he pointed out, the sub-committee which recommended the appointed board had been headed by Donald Prince, who resigned to become Page's Democratic opponent.

O'Neill did add that Prince had resigned from the Task Force after the primary. By then, he said, "the die was cast" regarding the Task Force recommendations.

O'Neill's view of the Task Force, and the administrative structure committee, was strongly challenged by Norman.

"I'm a Republican, and so is Mrs. Mary Meany. I don't know the politics of the others," Norman said.

The minority report favoring an appointed state board is being circulated by Mrs. Kimmel, who became chairman of the administrative structure subcommittee when Prince became a candidate.

THE STATEMENT asserts that there are "more advantages than disadvantages" to the appointment method. "Appointment has a greater appeal to the highly qualified. Many refuse to seek this office but would welcome appointment," the statement adds.

Among other signers are Scariano and former Glencoe Supt. Paul Misner, vice chairman of the Task Force; Guy Cornwell, executive secretary of the Tri-County Division of the Illinois Association of School Boards; Vernon Heath, Robinson manufacturer; William C. Bell, president of the Rock Island School board; Mrs. Meany, a Republican state representative from Chicago; John McGill, University of Illinois Professor of education, and Miriam Ringo, assistant to Gov. Kerner. (A15

by NANCY BENCO
Staff Writer

The doors were barred to the public when Illinois' 57-member Task Force on Education met for the last time Thursday.

Standing in the Monroe Ballroom of Chicago's Palmer House, William P. McClure, executive director of the Task Force, told this reporter, "This meeting is closed."

McClure upheld his stand by saying that 1965 state statutes making all legislative committee sessions public did not apply to Task Force meetings.

"That applies to agencies of the state government and we are not an agency," he added.

His stand was a reversal of a comment he made to the press after so-called secret sessions of the Task Force on Sept. 16 and 17. Then, he told Paddock Publications the press could have attended the meetings.

The challenge to that invitation Thursday proved the public would not be admitted. The doors of the ballroom closed at 10:30 a.m. with only Task Force members in attendance.

McClure, director of the Bureau of Educational Research at the University of Illinois, led the Task Force in its final review of reports.

The day-long session began about 10:30 a.m. and was expected to end at 5 p.m. Task Force members wrapped up 18 months of work into a final report, which is to be presented to the three Task Force sponsors, Governor Otto Kerner, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Ray Page and the School Problems Commission.

The final 250-page technical report will be pared down into digest form for the public. It is expected to get into circulation in December.

Priest Speaks To Church Club

"Escape from Escapism" was the title of a talk by Fr. William Walsh, OSM, at last Thursday evening's meeting of St. Thomas of Villanova Catholic Women's Club, Palatine. The program also included the installation of 63 new members in the club.

Father Walsh, in his 28th year of church work, has had a large range of priestly duties. He has served as a parish priest, a vocation director and is now retreat master at Stone Bridge Priory in Lake Bluff. He also spent four years in Ireland promoting vocations to the Servite Order. (S

A local artist, Mrs. Hedvic Vlasak of Mount Prospect, will exhibit her paintings at the meeting of the Northwest Suburban branch of the American Association of University Women today (Thursday). The program about perception "On Seeing and Hearing" will be presented by Miss Carol Harding of Mundelein.

Mrs. Vlasak, a member of the Mount Prospect and Des Plaines art leagues and the North Shore art guild, exhibits frequently at the Countryside Gallery in Mount Prospect and other suburban locations.

Residents of the area frequently discover a familiar picturesque scene captured in one of Mrs. Vlasak's paintings. She has done pictures of several of the bridges in and around Mount Prospect, the stone pillars on Route 83 near Golf Road, and numerous buildings and scenes in the nearby River Trails Nature Center.

OILS, PASTELS and watercolors are the media most frequently used by Mrs. Vlasak. Her paintings are mostly landscapes and still lifes. "I like to paint things the way they really look," she said. "That way other people can recognize them, too." Her friends and family can testify to recognizing and enjoying her paintings; her Christmas cards are frequently in the form of miniature winter landscapes done in water colors.

Children as well as adults in the area have come to know Mrs. Vlasak as she frequently serves as a substitute teacher. She received a B.A. in physics and mathematics, and an M.A. in art and education, so she is qualified in several fields.

The AAUW meeting begins at 8:15 in the South Park Lodge, Howard and White Streets, Des Plaines. Further information regarding the group may be obtained by contacting Mrs. G. W. Hrbek, 253-0226. (S

Four Happy Junior Misses

Tears mingled with girlish laughter Sunday evening as four excited teenagers heard themselves declared winners in the 1966-67 Paddock Publications Junior Miss Pageant.

The four girls, who now will compete in the Illinois Junior Miss Pageant next month, are Elizabeth Anne Hughes, Arlington Heights' Junior Miss; Susan Courtney, Mount Prospect's Junior Miss; Kathy Molbeck, Hoffman Estates' Junior Miss, and Linda Marshalla, Bloomingdale's Junior Miss.

Announcement of the four winners followed the talent presentations by the 19 finalists in the auditorium of Elk Grove High School.

With typical teen-age good sportsmanship, the 15 other candidates crowded around the winners to offer congratulations as proud parents and friends watched from the audience.

The 19 girls were judged earlier on poise and appearance, youth fitness and mental alertness. Scholastic achievement also counted in the scoring.

The girls got a glimpse of what may be in store for them when Kathy Benysh of Roselle, the current Illinois' Junior Miss, spoke. Miss Benysh, now a freshman at Northwestern University, won the Roselle Pageant last year and went on to take the Illinois' title and finish fourth runner-up in the national Junior Miss competition at Mobile, Ala.

In winning her title, Elizabeth Anne, a senior at Arlington High and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hughes, 410 S. Lincoln, delighted both audience and judges with a humorous skit.

Susan Courtney, a senior at Prospect High and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy B. Courtney, 606 S. Pine St., combined her vocal and dramatic talents in a skit about pioneer women to win her Mount Prospect title.

Kathy Molbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Molbeck, 134 Kingman Lane, displayed her musical abilities singing "I Have Confidence" from "The Sound of Music." Kathy, a senior at Conant High, will represent Hoffman Estates in the Illinois Pageant.

The winner of the Bloomingdale title, Linda Marshalla, performed on the balance beam. A senior at Lake Park High School, she is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Marshalla, 5N041 Medinah Road.

A MESSAGE TO CLASSIFIED USERS

Before you call an ad-visor to place your

PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS AD

consider this:

You are about to invest money for an ad and you are entitled to get results. To accomplish this it is necessary for you to TELL ALL about the details of your offer. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that prevent results:

1. DON'T OMIT THE ADDRESS

Many out-of-town readers will write you, but will not spend money for a long distance call.

2. DON'T OMIT THE PHONE NUMBER

Many readers will call you but do not find it convenient to come to your home.

3. DON'T USE BLIND BOX NUMBERS

Avoid them if at all possible. They are difficult to answer and many people are suspicious of them.

4. DON'T CONCEAL THE PRICE DESIRED

Surveys show that a high percentage of readers will not answer an ad unless the price is given.

5. DON'T LEAVE HOME ON THE DAYS YOU ADVERTISE

Many good prospects will not call the second time if your phone is unanswered.

6. DON'T OMIT IMPORTANT WORDS TO SAVE MONEY

Readers can't guess on important details. Remember, a well written informative ad will get results faster and amount to much less in the long run.

7. DON'T OVERLOOK OUR LOWER RATE FOR CONSECUTIVE INSERTIONS

You'll get the biggest parade of readers at the lowest price. Your Needs Satisfied thru Paddock Publications Classified.

Fail to Rob Theater

Bowl Burglarized, Escape with $600

Burglars escaped with some $600 from the Thunderbird Bowl at 821 E. Rand Road in Mount Prospect early Sunday morning, then were apparently thwarted in an attempt to rob the Mount Prospect Cinema at 827 E. Rand.

Two men were in the cinema when a husband and wife janitor team arrived about 4:20 a.m. Sunday, police reported.

The burglars held Mr. and Mrs. Heinz Dalibozak of 1515 W. Euclid Ave., at gunpoint and fired a shot apparently to scare them before taking $10 from Mrs. Dalibozak's purse and leaving in the Dalibozak car. The car was found later in front of apartment buildings on Kensington Road near Wheeling Road.

A .32 CALIBER pistol with a silencer attached was found in Palatine later Sunday and turned over to Mount Prospect police. It answered the description of the weapon used in the Cinema robbery, police said. An empty shell casing found in the theater showed it was a .32 caliber gun, according to police.

The dial had been punched off a safe in an upstairs office at the cinema, but it had not been opened, police said. The pair gained entry to the theater by breaking in a rear door.

The burglary at the Thunderbird Bowl was discovered by two cleanup men who arrived shortly after 4 a.m. Sunday. Entry was apparently gained through a rear door.

Robert D. Weiner and Richard Gathrew found several cash registers looted and various vending machines broken open, police said.

STEVE ANGELIAN, manager of the bowling lanes, set the loss at around $600, not counting the money taken from the vending machines.

Sgt. William Broderick and Patrolmen Eugene Hooten, Ralph Timm and Edward Nastek were the first to arrive at the scene after the Dalibozaks phoned police to report the armed robbery.

Sgt. Joe Bopp, head of the department's detective bureau, and Det. Richard Yost are now handling the investigation. (M

Thieves Hit Autos, Home

Thieves stole several items from cars in Mount Prospect during the past week.

Robert D. Blumberg of 3247 W. Berteau, Chicago, had a spare tire and jack stolen from the trunk of his car Sunday night. The auto was parked in the lot at the Randhurst Cinema, police said.

FRIDAY EVENING, Robert Reilly of 843 Old McHenry Road, Wheeling, reported a sample case of brushes was taken from his car parked in the Randhurst Center lot. He estimated his loss at $65.

A $45 man's topcoat was stolen from William Surman of 203 N. Lincoln Lane, Arlington Heights, sometime between Nov. 4 and Nov. 7. He told police the coat could have been stolen at any of three places he visited recently, Wheeling High School, Randhurst Center, or the Mount Prospect Village Hall.

Mrs. Clarence Bydall of 900 E. Evergreen St., told Mount Prospect detectives that a $275 ladies wrist watch, a $100 bracelet and several old coins valued at $20 were the only items stolen from her home by burglars Sunday, Nov. 6. The family inventoried its belongings to discover what was stolen. (M

Male Tresses Are Blamed for Fight

Two Mount Prospect youths have been charged with battery following a fight at Prospect High School last Wednesday afternoon.

They are Randy Palibicki, 18, of 417 S. Main St., and Gary Del Re, 17, of 317 N. School St.

Del Re reportedly struck Mark R. Hanson, 16, of 429 S. Prindle Ave., Arlington Heights. Hanson had to have four stitches taken at Northwest Community Hospital to close a cut inside his mouth, police said. The complaint was signed by Mark's mother, Mrs. Robert J. Hanson.

POLICE REPORTED Palibicki is accused of striking Steven Boll, 16, of 508 S. Pine St., Mount Prospect, who was standing nearby holding Hanson's school books.

The complaint against Palibicki was signed by Mrs. Steven H. Boll, whose son suffered a fractured nose and a cut lip in the altercation, police said.

The incident occurred when Palibicki reportedly took exception to Hanson's long hair, police said.

The two youths were released on $300 bond each and will appear in Mount Prospect court Dec. 1.

William Rowe Jr. of 704 S. I-Oka Ave., Mount Prospect, was the victim in a fight Saturday night. He suffered a broken jaw after being assaulted at McDonald's Drive-In on Rand Road in an area soon to be annexed to the village. He was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital early Sunday morning. He told police he did not know his assailant. (M

Lab Expert Retained in Health Post

Densil Brown of Prospect Heights has been retained as a special consultant for Mount Prospect's Health Department, Village Mgr. John Mongan has announced.

Brown, who operates a private laboratory in the Northwest Medical building, 1060 W. Northwest Highway, Mount Prospect, will be called on to assist the present village health inspector, Lt. Fred Hedlund of the police department, whenever the need arises, particularly in the inspection of food handling operations, Mongan said.

HE IS A graduate chemist, obtaining his B.S. degree from Butler University. He also earned a medical technologist degree from Gradwohl School of Technology. He has had 11 years experience as a laboratory director.

Mongan said the acquiring of Brown's services brings a level of professionalism to the health department that has not been available in past years. (M

Wheeling GOP Club To Hear Alderman

Chicago Alderman Jack I. Sperling, prominently mentioned as a possible candidate for Mayor of Chicago, opposing Richard Daley in next May's election, will be guest speaker at the Wheeling Township Regular Republican Club meeting tonight, (Thursday).

The meeting, open to the public, is set for 8:30 p.m. at the VFW Hall, Yale Avenue and Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights.

Ald. Sperling has been elected alderman three times in the 50th ward. In 1958 he ran unsuccessfully for the County Board of (Tax) Appeals but led the Republican ticket.

DURING ONE of his terms he and Alderman John Hoellen of the 47th ward were the only two Republicans in Chicago's City Council. He has been noted as a leader of the "economy bloc" in that body and as a vocal adversary of Mayor Daley and other Democratic leaders.

Sperling gained national recognition when, after Mayor Daley had spoken by invitation at Harvard University, he asked for and got equal time to speak to Harvard students and faculty.

Thomas W. Novotny, club president, also announced that the evening's program would include a discussion of open occupancy legislation, arranged by William J. Moore, program chairman. (ACM

Francis S. Lorenz, state director of public works and buildings, has set aside until May 1, 1967, the state's plan to prohibit all parking on Northwest Highway in the village.

Lorenz set the new date in a letter to Village Pres. Dan Congreve received this week.

VILLAGE ENGR. Ben Hemmeter had sent Lorenz a letter earlier outlining the village's plans for off-street parking facilities.

"It is indicated (by Hemmeter) that 175 new off-street parking spaces will be added to the business district.

"In view of the steps you have taken to expand off-street parking, we will extend the present agreement until May 1, 1967, at which time Northwest Highway parking prohibitions will be imposed," Lorenz said. (M

Schlickman Plans a 'First' For the State Legislature

A "first" for the Illinois General Assembly is in the planning, with State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights playing a key role.

Schlickman will be one of the leaders of a two-day seminar planned Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 in Monticello for all new members of the state Senate and House of Representatives.

The recently re-elected Arlington Heights state representative says it will be the first such seminar at the state level for freshmen legislators.

THE ONLY similar seminar took place at the federal level in 1964 for freshmen Congressmen.

That seminar was sponsored by the American Political Science Association, which will be a co-sponsor for the Illinois General Assembly seminar with the Illinois Legislative Council.

Key speakers for the legislators' seminar will be Jesse Unruh, Democratic leader of the California House of Representatives, and R. L. DeStefano, Republican leader of the Rhode Island Senate.

Schlickman heard both of them speak at a Rutgers University legislative seminar in Florida this summer. He was one of two Illinois legislators who attended the Florida meeting.

PLANNING the event with Schlickman, a member of the Illinois Legislative Council, will be State Rep. John Conolly of Gurnee, State Sen. Paul Simon of Troy, Prof. Sam Gove of the University of Illinois, and Donald G. Tacheron of the American Political Science Association.

The two-day meeting will include discussion of legislative process and procedures, work with constituents and the press, conditions in Springfield, prospects for legislation and need for legislative reform.

Speakers at the meeting will include Gov. Otto Kerner, Dr. Evron Kirkpatrick of the American Political Science Association, and various legislative leaders — including Democrat Paul Elward and Republican Russell Arrlington. (B10

Trustees Study Solicitor Problem

Trustee Roy Bressler suggested that legislation be passed to prevent local residents from forceful solicitors.

"I would recommend that the matter be considered by the public safety committee," he said. His suggestions included bonding solicitors who work in the village and restricting soliciting to daylight hours.

VILLAGE PRESIDENT John Woods agreed that soliciting is a serious problem but that any restrictive legislation is "fraught with serious constitutional problems."

Woods said the Northwest Municipal Council is seeking broader legislation to provide protection for the suburbanite.

"One of the best deterrents is the light that can be thrown on such practices by the press," Woods said.

But he also charged that newspapers in general are in the forefront fighting legislation against door-to-door solicitation.

Commuter Group Meets Tomorrow In Chicago

The board of directors of the Commuters Association of Chicagoland will meet at 5 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) at 72 W. Randolph St., Chicago, according to H. E. Durrenberger of Northbrook, president of the association.

The commuters organization was founded in 1952 to promote better traveling conditions for commuters and all citizens, Durrenberger explained, and to take whatever action may be necessary to further this end.

The public is invited to attend the meeting. (A15

Schlickman Plans a 'First' For the State Legislature

A "first" for the Illinois General Assembly is in the planning, with State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights playing a key role.

Schlickman will be one of the leaders of a two-day seminar planned Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 in Monticello for all new members of the state Senate and House of Representatives.

The recently re-elected Arlington Heights state representative says it will be the first such seminar at the state level for freshmen legislators.

THE ONLY similar seminar took place at the federal level in 1964 for freshmen Congressmen.

That seminar was sponsored by the American Political Science Association, which will be a co-sponsor for the Illinois General Assembly seminar with the Illinois Legislative Council.

Key speakers for the legislators' seminar will be Jesse Unruh, Democratic leader of the California House of Representatives, and R. L. DeStefano, Republican leader of the Rhode Island Senate.

Schlickman heard both of them speak at a Rutgers University legislative seminar in Florida this summer. He was one of two Illinois legislators who attended the Florida meeting.

PLANNING the event with Schlickman, a member of the Illinois Legislative Council, will be State Rep. John Conolly of Gurnee, State Sen. Paul Simon of Troy, Prof. Sam Gove of the University of Illinois, and Donald G. Tacheron of the American Political Science Association.

The two-day meeting will include discussion of legislative process and procedures, work with constituents and the press, conditions in Springfield, prospects for legislation and need for legislative reform.

Speakers at the meeting will include Gov. Otto Kerner, Dr. Evron Kirkpatrick of the American Political Science Association, and various legislative leaders — including Democrat Paul Elward and Republican Russell Arrlington. (B10

Commuter Group Meets Tomorrow In Chicago

The board of directors of the Commuters Association of Chicagoland will meet at 5 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) at 72 W. Randolph St., Chicago, according to H. E. Durrenberger of Northbrook, president of the association.

The commuters organization was founded in 1952 to promote better traveling conditions for commuters and all citizens, Durrenberger explained, and to take whatever action may be necessary to further this end.

The public is invited to attend the meeting. (A15

Trustees Study Solicitor Problem

Trustee Roy Bressler suggested that legislation be passed to prevent local residents from forceful solicitors.

"I would recommend that the matter be considered by the public safety committee," he said. His suggestions included bonding solicitors who work in the village and restricting soliciting to daylight hours.

VILLAGE PRESIDENT John Woods agreed that soliciting is a serious problem but that any restrictive legislation is "fraught with serious constitutional problems."

Woods said the Northwest Municipal Council is seeking broader legislation to provide protection for the suburbanite.

"One of the best deterrents is the light that can be thrown on such practices by the press," Woods said.

But he also charged that newspapers in general are in the forefront fighting legislation against door-to-door solicitation.

Notes from Arlington Acres

Sad news reached Arlington Acres early this week of the sudden death of Mr. Louis Brown in Portland, Ore. The Browns had lived at 413 S. Gibbons until they moved to Portland a year ago last summer. Burial was Tuesday in Memorial Park in Evanston. Sincere sympathy is extended to Dee and their daughter, Pam.

An indoor swimming pool may be a status symbol in certain quarters, but the Frank Strengs and their neighbors in the 500 block S. Waterman didn't appreciate the instant pools formed in their basements last week after the heavy rains. The only redeeming feature of what could have become a minor disaster was the spirit of camaraderie established by the common problem of bailing out.

Mrs. James Thorstad, 412 S. Phelps, is spreading the good news that her sister, Mary Kelly of Skokie, was the winner of the mink coat at the Holy Family Hospital benefit brunch at the Post and Paddock a week ago Sunday. Since "Aunt Mary" is very much a part of the lives of the Thorstads and their eight children, she is well known to their friends and neighbors who are delighted with her good fortune.

MRS. TONY FARINA, 421 S. Forrest, planned on sharing the celebration of her Nov. 7 birthday by dining out with friends a week ago Saturday, and was perplexed when one couple was inexplicably late. The reason was apparent, however, when they finally arrived and brought with them a number of friends and relatives for an early celebration of the Farinas' silver wedding anniversary Nov. 23. When Esther and Tony recovered from the surprise, they found they were greeting guests from as far away as Watseka, and that even the problem of feeding the group was taken out of their hands as everything needed to make the party a success was brought in by the guests.

Birthday Club members met Wednesday evening of last week at the home of Mrs. Ray Fritz, 420 S. Phelps, to congratulate Mrs. Larry Wendt, 2023 E. Grove, on her recent birthday and to present her with a gift. After cake and coffee were served, the members drew the names which will pair hostesses and guests of honor for the birthday get-togethers next year.

Dinner guests of the Craig Thompsons, 508 S. Phelps, on Friday were Craig's sister and family, the Breck Spinners of Park Ridge. It was a farewell dinner for the Spinners who are moving to New York, and since they hadn't seen Sharon Thompson since her Nov. 2 birthday, that event was an added reason for the family get-together with a birthday cake served for dessert.

SATURDAY afternoon the Thompsons attended the Little League midget football game at Arlington High School stadium to watch their son, Bob, play with the North Side All Stars in the game against the South Side All Stars.

A houseguest of the Jack Curtins, 420 S. Forrest, is Isabelle's sister, Mrs. William Love of Dixon, whom they hope to persuade to stay over Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Love arrived in time to attend a gala dinner at the Curtin home Sunday, in honor of the Nov. 13 birthday of their son, Tom. Other guests included an older brother and his family. To make the family's best wishes unanimous, Toms' sister, Sue Ford, phoned from her home in Santa Clara, Calif. For everyone, the occasion was particularly festive because Tom, a Navy veteran, spent his last two birthdays aboard ship.

MARGI AND KRISTI Knutsen, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Knutsen, 432 S. Prindle, celebrate birthdays eight days apart and combined two parties into one super slumber party Friday night. Margi's guests were Janie Kestner, Sandy Kunz and Teresa Verley, and Kristi's friends were Sharon Cooper, Debby Kunz and Sue Ashbrook. Since Margi was 13 Nov. 12 and Kristi will be 11 Nov. 20, they share the same party interests: records and dancing interspersed with snacks and soft drinks and topped off with a pizza supper and a birthday cake at midnight. This was followed by snacks and milk which, in turn, was followed by, at what seemed to the girls' parents only a few hours later, a hearty breakfast.

The younger Knutsen girls, Kari and Konni, were included in the plans Sunday, when the family dined out in honor of both birthdays.

The Lyle Longrie family, 429 S. Forrest, drove to Oconto, Wis., to spend the weekend with Lyle's parents. Although they live in town, there are brothers and sisters on nearby farms and the Longrie children, Marcia, Mark and Keith, enjoyed visiting them. Marcia was persuaded to help milk a cow and the boys were pressed into service cribbing corn.

BILL Brittain, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Brittain, 409 S. Gibbons, was 11 Nov. 8 and received the best wishes of his family at a quiet dinner at home.

Last weekend was more exciting, however, as Bill accompanied his parents and sister, Lyn-El, to Peoria to be with his brother, Max Jr., for Parents Weekend at Bradley University. The Brittains particularly enjoyed a luncheon at the Sigma Nu fraternity house, where they spent most of their time, and were their son's guests for the football game.

The Robert Kremers and their son, Gary, 417 S. Prindle, were guests of their daughter, Barbara, and son-in-law, Michael Banks, at their home in Des Plaines Wednesday evening of last week. The occasion was Barbara's Nov. 9 birthday.

A happy Nov. 7 birthday was wished to Bill Verley by his parents and sister, Teresa, at a family dinner at the Verley home, 436 S. Prindle, that evening. (A

Fred and Netty Wellman and daughters, Linda and Sandra, 1217 N. Chicago, recently enjoyed a week's business and pleasure trip to Lansing, Mich. There they visited both their parents, the Lyle Wellmans and the Anton Kohlers. A belated birthday party was given for Sandy Wellman, who was 2 Oct. 9. While Fred took care of his business, Netty visited in Alma, Mich., the former home of the family.

VISITING THE Robert Petersons, 1210 N. Yale, this week was Diane's father, William Lichner of Louisville, Ky. Mr. Lichner was attending a convention in Chicago and visited his daughter and family several times during the week.

Bill and Freya Jones, 1227 N. Illinois, showed their afghan hound the past two Sundays. Last Sunday they brought home two trophies from the Steel City Kennel Club match in Gary. One trophy was for best of breed and the other for best hound.

On Nov. 6 the Joneses traveled to Pecatonica, Ill., where they entered their dog in the Rock River Kennel Club dog show. Bill's sister and husband and his sisters-in-law from Freeport came to the dog show to watch the Joneses' dog perform.

Sidelights Of Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights, Scarsdale & Estates, Stonegate

Mary O'Leary
CL 9-3827

Maryann Buczek
CL 5-5033

The Scarsdale-Stonegate area shows little sign of life this week. If, as a few local residents have said, they are resting up for the holiday season, then there should be an extremely active Thanksgiving in store for the area.

Three local women are spending at least one day a week offering their helping hands at the American Indian Center in Chicago. Mrs. William Starck, chairman of the project, Mrs. Edwin McGill and Mrs. Foster Pedersen regularly assist in the care of young Indian children and bring food for them. Anyone interested in participating in such a worthwhile endeavor may contact Mrs. Starck at 392-4530, Mrs. McGill at 259-3150 or Mrs. Pedersen at CL 9-2891.

Goodbye and best wishes go with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ekstrom, 1106 Mayfair, who are moving today (Thursday) to Timber Lake.

YOUNG GREG Monti, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Monti of 1012 N. Highland, is participating in a junior weekend at St. Joseph College in Rensselaer, Ind. this week. There will be a football game and special activities planned for the students.

Harold Nebel just returned from Indianola College in Iowa, where he spent the weekend with his daughter, Dawneen. Pi Beta Phi Sorority sponsored a Dad's Weekend for the girls and their fathers and the activities included a dinner and theatre date, with a party afterward. Mr. Nebel also attended a football game and cheered along with his daughter who serves as captain of the cheerleading squad.

Twenty-two-year-old William Osterman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Osterman recently returned home after completing a three-year hitch in the United States Marine Corps. He plans to try out for the local fire department in the near future. Bill's younger brother, Tom, is still stationed in Chulai, 40 miles south of Dunang, with a few months left before he comes home.

The Jerome Rauch family just moved from their home at 110 Dunton to a new residence at 1015 N. Yale, in the Ridge Park subdivision. Mr. and Mrs. Rauch just celebrated their 14th anniversary, too. Mrs. Rauch had her parents as guests, as well as her two bachelor brothers and her aunt and cousin.

Mrs. Earl Riley celebrated her birthday last week with a family party Tuesday that included Richard Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Riley and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Birk.

The next night Mrs. Riley was treated to a surprise dinner downtown by her husband.

THE THOMAS Roberts visited Drake University in Des Moines last weekend to see their daughter, Karen, who is a junior. The Kappa Sigmas gave a luncheon and party for the girls at the house and their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Rocca traveled to The Homestead in Hot Springs, Va. for a combination business and pleasure trip. While Mr. Rocca was busy with business, Mrs. Rocca took part in some tours and other activities planned for the ladies.

Paul Rocca is going to Knox College in Galesburg this weekend to see the campus and get information about the school. Paul, a senior at St. Viator High School, will also stop to visit friends in the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Studstrup returned from San Diego looking proud and happy. It seems they went out to see their son, Steve, graduate from the Marine Corps boot camp. Steve will now be stationed at the Marine Aviation Center in Memphis.

TAMRA TAYLOR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taylor, celebrated her fourth birthday last week with a family party and lots of presents and decorations. Although Tamra's relatives could not come to Arlington for this birthday, their best wishes were with her.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Ungry went to Dubuque to visit their daughter, Beverly, who attends the University there. They first stopped in Cedar Rapids to pick up their other daughter, Janet, a teacher, and then it was on to Dubuque for a special occasion. Beverly was to play the role of Stella, one of the four female leads in Tennessee Williams' popular play, "A Streetcar Named Desire." Beverly is a sophomore majoring in drama.

Marilyn Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Meyer, was hostess at a slumber party in her mother's living room Thursday evening. The party's most interesting feature was a phenomenon referred to as wall-to-wall girls. The occasion? No school next day, of course.

The Meyer family also went to Montague, Mich. for a weekend visit with Mrs. Meyer's relatives. It was a quiet visit, with no special highlights besides relaxation. (A

Notes from Arlington Acres

Sad news reached Arlington Acres early this week of the sudden death of Mr. Louis Brown in Portland, Ore. The Browns had lived at 413 S. Gibbons until they moved to Portland a year ago last summer. Burial was Tuesday in Memorial Park in Evanston. Sincere sympathy is extended to Dee and their daughter, Pam.

An indoor swimming pool may be a status symbol in certain quarters, but the Frank Strengs and their neighbors in the 500 block S. Waterman didn't appreciate the instant pools formed in their basements last week after the heavy rains. The only redeeming feature of what could have become a minor disaster was the spirit of camaraderie established by the common problem of bailing out.

Mrs. James Thorstad, 412 S. Phelps, is spreading the good news that her sister, Mary Kelly of Skokie, was the winner of the mink coat at the Holy Family Hospital benefit brunch at the Post and Paddock a week ago Sunday. Since "Aunt Mary" is very much a part of the lives of the Thorstads and their eight children, she is well known to their friends and neighbors who are delighted with her good fortune.

MRS. TONY FARINA, 421 S. Forrest, planned on sharing the celebration of her Nov. 7 birthday by dining out with friends a week ago Saturday, and was perplexed when one couple was inexplicably late. The reason was apparent, however, when they finally arrived and brought with them a number of friends and relatives for an early celebration of the Farinas' silver wedding anniversary Nov. 23. When Esther and Tony recovered from the surprise, they found they were greeting guests from as far away as Watseka, and that even the problem of feeding the group was taken out of their hands as everything needed to make the party a success was brought in by the guests.

Birthday Club members met Wednesday evening of last week at the home of Mrs. Ray Fritz, 420 S. Phelps, to congratulate Mrs. Larry Wendt, 2023 E. Grove, on her recent birthday and to present her with a gift. After cake and coffee were served, the members drew the names which will pair hostesses and guests of honor for the birthday get-togethers next year.

Dinner guests of the Craig Thompsons, 508 S. Phelps, on Friday were Craig's sister and family, the Breck Spinners of Park Ridge. It was a farewell dinner for the Spinners who are moving to New York, and since they hadn't seen Sharon Thompson since her Nov. 2 birthday, that event was an added reason for the family get-together with a birthday cake served for dessert.

SATURDAY afternoon the Thompsons attended the Little League midget football game at Arlington High School stadium to watch their son, Bob, play with the North Side All Stars in the game against the South Side All Stars.

A houseguest of the Jack Curtins, 420 S. Forrest, is Isabelle's sister, Mrs. William Love of Dixon, whom they hope to persuade to stay over Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Love arrived in time to attend a gala dinner at the Curtin home Sunday, in honor of the Nov. 13 birthday of their son, Tom. Other guests included an older brother and his family. To make the family's best wishes unanimous, Toms' sister, Sue Ford, phoned from her home in Santa Clara, Calif. For everyone, the occasion was particularly festive because Tom, a Navy veteran, spent his last two birthdays aboard ship.

MARGI AND KRISTI Knutsen, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Knutsen, 432 S. Prindle, celebrate birthdays eight days apart and combined two parties into one super slumber party Friday night. Margi's guests were Janie Kestner, Sandy Kunz and Teresa Verley, and Kristi's friends were Sharon Cooper, Debby Kunz and Sue Ashbrook. Since Margi was 13 Nov. 12 and Kristi will be 11 Nov. 20, they share the same party interests: records and dancing interspersed with snacks and soft drinks and topped off with a pizza supper and a birthday cake at midnight. This was followed by snacks and milk which, in turn, was followed by, at what seemed to the girls' parents only a few hours later, a hearty breakfast.

The younger Knutsen girls, Kari and Konni, were included in the plans Sunday, when the family dined out in honor of both birthdays.

The Lyle Longrie family, 429 S. Forrest, drove to Oconto, Wis., to spend the weekend with Lyle's parents. Although they live in town, there are brothers and sisters on nearby farms and the Longrie children, Marcia, Mark and Keith, enjoyed visiting them. Marcia was persuaded to help milk a cow and the boys were pressed into service cribbing corn.

BILL Brittain, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Brittain, 409 S. Gibbons, was 11 Nov. 8 and received the best wishes of his family at a quiet dinner at home.

Last weekend was more exciting, however, as Bill accompanied his parents and sister, Lyn-El, to Peoria to be with his brother, Max Jr., for Parents Weekend at Bradley University. The Brittains particularly enjoyed a luncheon at the Sigma Nu fraternity house, where they spent most of their time, and were their son's guests for the football game.

The Robert Kremers and their son, Gary, 417 S. Prindle, were guests of their daughter, Barbara, and son-in-law, Michael Banks, at their home in Des Plaines Wednesday evening of last week. The occasion was Barbara's Nov. 9 birthday.

A happy Nov. 7 birthday was wished to Bill Verley by his parents and sister, Teresa, at a family dinner at the Verley home, 436 S. Prindle, that evening. (A

EYE-STRAIN CAN CAUSE HEADACHES

Authorities have reported that some headaches are due to eye-strain and caused by the excessive effort necessary to overcome existing visual disturbances. The effort of seeing with poor, uncorrected vision can lead to fatigue, irritability and upset nerves.

About sixty-five per cent have visual troubles. Few people over forty have perfect vision. It is wise to have an eye examination about every two years. When medication is indicated we can fill any prescription. After using any eye preparation it is important the container be immediately closed to prevent dangerous contamination.

Police Counselors To Be Plainclothes

The uniforms of two Arlington Heights policemen will soon be spending most of the time in the closet.

That's the case for officers Gerald C. Stille and Paul Buckholz, assigned to Arlington and Forest View High Schools as police counselors.

Like the police counselor working at Elk Grove High School since school started this fall — the two men will be in plain-clothes for most of their work of preventing trouble — inside or outside school buildings.

LIKE ELK Grove police counselor Jose Gonzales Jr., the two men will be armed.

Police officials, in working out arrangements for the new police counselor appointments at High School District 214 schools, have insisted that arms are as much a part of a policeman's equipment as a badge.

Like the Flint, Mich., policeman, who visited here this summer to explain that city's police counselor system, the local men say, "Our men don't expect to use their guns — but they should have them. They might need them some day to protect a child."

Some board members admitted qualms about uniforms and weapons during discussion of the need for a police counselor system here.

The questions were expected to be raised again at an evaluation meeting Wednesday in Elk Grove High School.

SPEAKERS WERE to be Gonzales, the Elk Grove Village police chief and administrators at that school.

Among persons expected to attend the meeting were Stille and Buckholz, Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood, and Wheeling officials who have tentatively approved assignment of a policeman to the high school there. (AME

District 214 Announces Police Counselor Names

Two Arlington Heights policemen will take on new duties next Monday as high school police counselors.

Detective Paul Buckholz Jr. will serve as police counselor at Forest View High School.

Patrolman Gerald C. Stille has been assigned as a police counselor at Arlington High School.

Their selection, out of six applicants for the jobs, was announced Monday at the High School District 214 board meeting by Supt. Edward H. Gilbert.

The school district will pay five-sixths of the salary and expenses for each man in his new position—the first such assignment by the Arlington Heights police force.

DISTRICT 214 principals sought creation of the police counselor position, pioneered in the Flint, Mich., schools. They said such a man was needed to help the school staff cope with the "four T's"—traffic, truancy, trouble and theft.

With the growth of school population, instructors and high school administrators have had increasing problems in coping with unruly youngsters, not all of them from within the school itself.

Forest View Principal Larry Jenness and Arlington High Principal Bruno Waara interviewed all Arlington Heights policemen interested in the new school position.

At Monday's board meeting they had nothing but compliments for every applicant.

"I couldn't be more impressed. If these six men are representative of the force, every Arlington Heights resident has a right to be proud of the police department that serves them," Jenness said.

THE TWO principals said they picked the most experienced of the six men who applied and then consulted with Police Chief L. W. Calderwood, who concurred in their selection.

"We were looking for maturity, good judgment, an interest in young people and some experience in working with them," Jenness told the school board.

"We were also interested in finding someone who would fit in well with our teaching staff."

Stille, the new Arlington High police counselor, is a resident of 1645 N. Evergreen. On the Arlington Heights police force for 9 years, he attended the University of Iowa for three years.

Buckholz, a resident of Rolling Meadows, has a son who is a Forest View graduate and a daughter who is a senior there now.

RECENTLY PROMOTED to detective, Buckholz is a Navy veteran. He was on the Winnetka police force for 18 months before coming to Arlington Heights seven years ago.

As a detective, the new Forest View police counselor has been in contact with that high school in the course of his work.

"I have been most impressed with the way he conducted investigations," Jenness said. (ACME

Police Counselors To Be Plainclothes

The uniforms of two Arlington Heights policemen will soon be spending most of the time in the closet.

That's the case for officers Gerald C. Stille and Paul Buckholz, assigned to Arlington and Forest View High Schools as police counselors.

Like the police counselor working at Elk Grove High School since school started this fall — the two men will be in plain-clothes for most of their work of preventing trouble — inside or outside school buildings.

LIKE ELK Grove police counselor Jose Gonzales Jr., the two men will be armed.

Police officials, in working out arrangements for the new police counselor appointments at High School District 214 schools, have insisted that arms are as much a part of a policeman's equipment as a badge.

Like the Flint, Mich., policeman, who visited here this summer to explain that city's police counselor system, the local men say, "Our men don't expect to use their guns — but they should have them. They might need them some day to protect a child."

Some board members admitted qualms about uniforms and weapons during discussion of the need for a police counselor system here.

The questions were expected to be raised again at an evaluation meeting Wednesday in Elk Grove High School.

SPEAKERS WERE to be Gonzales, the Elk Grove Village police chief and administrators at that school.

Among persons expected to attend the meeting were Stille and Buckholz, Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood, and Wheeling officials who have tentatively approved assignment of a policeman to the high school there. (AME

District 214 Announces Police Counselor Names

Two Arlington Heights policemen will take on new duties next Monday as high school police counselors.

Detective Paul Buckholz Jr. will serve as police counselor at Forest View High School.

Patrolman Gerald C. Stille has been assigned as a police counselor at Arlington High School.

Their selection, out of six applicants for the jobs, was announced Monday at the High School District 214 board meeting by Supt. Edward H. Gilbert.

The school district will pay five-sixths of the salary and expenses for each man in his new position—the first such assignment by the Arlington Heights police force.

DISTRICT 214 principals sought creation of the police counselor position, pioneered in the Flint, Mich., schools. They said such a man was needed to help the school staff cope with the "four T's"—traffic, truancy, trouble and theft.

With the growth of school population, instructors and high school administrators have had increasing problems in coping with unruly youngsters, not all of them from within the school itself.

Forest View Principal Larry Jenness and Arlington High Principal Bruno Waara interviewed all Arlington Heights policemen interested in the new school position.

At Monday's board meeting they had nothing but compliments for every applicant.

"I couldn't be more impressed. If these six men are representative of the force, every Arlington Heights resident has a right to be proud of the police department that serves them," Jenness said.

THE TWO principals said they picked the most experienced of the six men who applied and then consulted with Police Chief L. W. Calderwood, who concurred in their selection.

"We were looking for maturity, good judgment, an interest in young people and some experience in working with them," Jenness told the school board.

"We were also interested in finding someone who would fit in well with our teaching staff."

Palatine Band Plays This Sunday

The Palatine Village Band will perform the first concert of its winter season Sunday at 3 p.m. in Cutting Hall at Palatine High School.

Fred O. Elliot will be directing.

The program will include old and new band compositions with the featured number Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, considered a masterpiece of dramatic music, according to Elliot, but not often heard.

The Vienna Court Theatre in 1910 asked Beethoven to compose incidental music for Goethe's drama based on the life of Count Egmont, who was executed for his devotion to his native Netherlands during the Spanish Inquisition. This overture is one of 10 numbers written for this drama.

SOLOIST for Sunday's concert will be trombonist Albert Issacs Jr., 430 S. Dryden Ave., Arlington Heights. He will play "Danza Alegra" by James F. Burke.

The approximately 50 musicians who comprise the Palatine Village Band come from surrounding communities from Lake County to DuPage. Performances are free. New members are welcome, and persons interested may call Paul Siegrist, 358-2518, for information.

Collection Premieres At Findlay

The American premiere exhibit of 38 new Bernard Buffet paintings, miniatures and gouaches will climax the "Spectrum of Art" series of exhibits at the Findlay Galleries, Inc., 320 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, from tomorrow (Friday) through Christmas Eve.

This will mark the debut of the most comprehensive exhibit of new paintings by the young French artist in over four years.

Aligning the talent of Bernard Buffet with works of post-impressionists, Findlay Galleries, Inc. will show simultaneously a French Room exhibit of paintings and graphics by Chagall and paintings by Vlaminck.

Represented exclusively in America by Findlay Galleries, Buffet's latest paintings embrace a range of subjects from harbor scenes and still lifes to architectural and nature studies. The artist, celebrated for his early zealous use of black and white in spiky style, reveals how recent years have propelled him into a more vivid world of color, introducting such subjects as "Paysage aux Ombelles," a landscape with feathery yellow ombelles, blue and red blooms, and "Iris Bleus," blue irises against a strong yellow background.

THE THREE witches are Gertrude, portrayed by Sheila Baker of Arlington Heights; G'Tha, played by Polly Johnson of Palatine, and Gorina, Betty Brooks of Arlington Heights. Gertrude is the de-witch wishing witch.

Others who will be seen in rather impoverished family are his mother, Mary Spellman of Mount Prospect; his father, John Grayson, VT's vice president, and his two sisters, Jean and Betsy, played by Carrie Nemecek and Susan Beckius.

Others who will be seen i "Witch's Lullaby" are Patrick O'Dea as the town constable, Bonnie Luster as a townswoman and Arlene Nemecek as Mrs. Fitch, the town gossip.

ROBERT HAWLEY will preside as a judge, and Dick Baker will play a storekeeper. The parts of two small village girls will feature Pat Swim and Donna Jernberg.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

by

BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

Hogarty Kicks For Distance . . .

Prospect High grad Jim Hogarty is getting a big kick out of his final year of football for the Air Force Academy Falcons.

Although the Air Force outfit isn't making a big splash on the gridiron scene, winning only four of its first nine games, Hogarty has been a standout in the punting department after a slow start.

The rugged 6-2, 201-pounder, who earned all-league honors at end for Prospect on the Knights' 1962 Interim League championship entry, enjoyed his finest hour in the 15-7 Air Force victory over Navy.

Hogarty, who averaged 38.7 on 60 punts as a junior, punted six times against the Midshipmen for 301 yards, a fancy 50.2 average.

One punt carried 67 yards and might have broken his own record had the ball not scooted over the 10-yard line and then bounced back out of bounds on the Navy 11.

Hogarty, a defensive end when he isn't involved in the kicking game, helped keep Navy bottled in its own end of the field much of the game with his tremendous punting. Shortly after that boot to the Navy 11 the Falcons recovered a fumble to set up a key field goal.

The victory over Navy, ranked the high-point in 11 years of topsy-turvy football at the Air Force Academy, was accomplished before 46,801 fans in the Falcon stadium and gave Coach Ben Martin's club back-to-back victories over Army and Navy in the service academy rivalry.

Air Force surprised Army in Chicago's Soldier Field last fall, 14-3, with Hogarty contributing one clutch 67-yard punt in that triumph. Jim boomed four punts better than 60 yards as a junior, including a Falcon record of 69 yards.

Off to a slow start as a senior with sub-par performances in some of the early Air Force outings, Hogarty found the range against Navy.

"And what a welcome sight it was," said Air Force coach Ben Martin who also handles the punters. "We knew there was pressure on Hogarty (after the slow start), and you don't coach this out of a kid. You leave him alone."

Hogarty played his football under J. O. Jackson at Prospect High School. He caught seven touchdown passes as a senior, all from quarterback Ken Groh. He was the leading rebounder for Dick Kinneman in basketball and also a stickout in baseball under Chuck Aldrich.

Jim still does some pitching for the Air Force nine.

Forest View graduates Jim Baumgardt and Chuck Boesenberg had a big day last Saturday as Rose Polytechnic (Terry Haute, Ind.) handled Culver-Stockton in a wild 58-28 encounter. Baumgardt, an all-league selection at end in the Mid-Suburban last fall, caught two touchdown passes totaling 120 yards, and Boesenberg, the Falcons' 1965 signal-caller, kicked all the extra points and a 23-yard field goal.

Illini vs. NU . . . Frisk vs. Knox

All good football buffs are expected to sit home this Saturday and watch the titanic struggle on television between mighty Michigan State and mighty Notre Dame.

Right? Wrong. We know of at least two avid football fans who will not watch that game on television.

In a tremendous show of loyalty to our alma maters, Northwestern University grad Ken Knox, our associate sports editor, and University of Illinois grad Bob Frisk will witness what promises to be something less than a titantic struggle at Dyche Stadium in Evanston.

Now, let it be said here that graduates of Northwestern and Illinois work well together. But this is the first time we've ever sat together at a Northwestern-Illinois game so our association will receive its severest test.

Because Illinois is favored, we've already prepared our little excuse if they lose. "You see, Ken, it's been a case of one injury after another this year and. . ."

Actually, Knox is in a great position. If Illinois wins, he can always say, "Why, they should always win. You know about those tough entrance requirements at Northwestern and. . . ."

And if Northwestern wins. . . well, let's not even think about that. It could be a long ride home.

While the nation watches Michigan State and Notre Dame collide in a television spectacular, a few loyal fans, loyal to their alma maters, will trek to stadiums throughout the country.

But you can be sure that despite our unswerving loyalty to the University of Illinois and our "intense" interest in this battle with Northwesern Saturday, we'll have our transistor radio tuned to that Michigan State-Notre Dame feature.

Arlington High School is scheduled to pick up Maine West as its non-conference football opponent when the contract ends with Barrington. An excellent choice. Any Kenny Olson-coached team is a formidable opponent.

Lundstedt on Top 500 List . . .

It should come as no surprise that Prospect High School whiz Tom Lundstedt has been named one of the top 500 high school basketball players in the country by one cage publication.

Lundstedt was brilliant as a junior, averaging 22.3 points per game in taking former All-Stater George Pomey right out of the school record book.

The 6-4 senior was at his best in the most important games last winter, averaging 29.4 points per game in eight holiday and state tournament contests.

The colleges have already labeled Lundstedt one of the big prizes in the recruiting wars.

Other Chicago area boys named to that "Top 500" list were 6-4 Rufus Woods of North Chicago, a standout in sectional play at Arlington High last winter; 6-7 Greg Jackson of Chicago St. Phillip; and 6-4 Tyrone Walls of Antioch.

The Paddock area should feature three of the finest performers in prep play this winter in Prospect's Lundstedt, Arlington's Steve Allen, and St. Viator's Frank Hogan.

And another season begins . .

Arlington High track and cross country coach Bruce Samoore should have been happy to hear that the two-mile run has been added to the state track meet. Samoore is loaded with bright young distance runners — like Dave Swanson, Rich Saxton, and Scott Butler — and now he has one more event in which to utilize these talents.

Ten Years Ago This Week . . .

Arlington rocked Woodstock in the basketball opener, 77-33, as Tommy Jacobsen whipped in 27 points, 21 in the first half . . . Bob Lockwood added 19 for coach Howard Lester's Cardinals . . . Bob Creviston, a 6-3, 200-pound tackle, was named captain of the 1957 Arlington varsity football team.

Wildcats in Road Contest

Owens Sends Wheeling Against Rangy Hosts

by Keith Reinhard

Does success, like some tangible powder, rub off from one varsity team to another during the year?

Mike Owens would like to answer that question affirmatively and then proceed to pilot his Wheeling fivesome to conference contention in 1966-67.

With Wildcat grid play safely—and successfully—tucked into the Mid-Suburban League logbook for the year, fan interest focuses at Highland Park this Saturday when Wheeling visits the Little Giant den to initiate the cage season.

A towering Highland Park crew will provide Owens and his team with a strong indication of the possibility of this aura of success.

At any rate, the Wildcat trend — in both basketball and football — looks upward. Only in their third year of action, the Wildcat basketball squad moved to a 5-17 mark with their first full complement of seniors last season, after jumping into the varsity wars in 1964-65 with a 1-19 showing.

TO BOOST Wheeling up over the .500 mark this year, Owens will call upon a host of new turning lettermen and put a strong concentration on defense in hopes of offsetting the lack of height certain to affect the Wildcat offensive attack.

Among the certainties in the starting Wheeling lineup is veteran Rex Peterson, a 5-11 hustler who could develop into the team playmaker at one of the guard positions. Also impressing Owens at practice sessions thus far is Greg Fedyski, who finished up with the varsity last year and is also a capable and aggressive ball handler.

In addition to Peterson, forwards Scott Bishoff and Skip Grandt are letter earners returning to the Wildcat lineup. Bischoff, at six foot even, avgame in 65-66 and is sure to play a major role in Owens' plans. Grandt at 5-11 will win another starting forward berth only by outdoing transfer letfooter who gained all-conference honors in Michigan.

Only junior among the chief components of the squad is Phil Smith, at 6-3, most likely candidate to hold down the center slot all season.

OTHER MATERIAL Owens has to work with includes Jeffsen (6-3), Rick Bruce (6-1) and Winterburg (6-0), George Thorsen (6-3), Rick Bruce (6-1) and Dan Devito (5-9).

Their formidable foe to open the campaign with will have a definite size advantage. Led by 6-5 junior center Brad Lind, the Highland Park starting five will probably tower over Wheeling to improve an 11-10 mark in 65-66 which included league matches in the rugged Suburban League.

Coached by Fred Dickman, the Little Giants even have height at the guard positions in 6-3 senior Steve Steinberg and 6-1 senior Jim Friedman.

YOUTH IS ALSO a glownng factor in the Highland Park makeup. Starting at forwards for Dickman will be lanky sophomores Art Elliott (6-4) and Kim Hammerberg (6-3).

Others likely to see action against Wheeling are Bob Bows (6-2), Mike Scornavacco (5-6) and Bruce Zimmerman (5-6), hte latter possibly starting in place of Friedman.

If the credentials of Wheel-

PROSPECT DAZZLER. Tom Lundstedt, 6-4 senior at Prospect High School, looms as a leading candidate for All-State honors in basketball in the 1966-67 season. Lundstedt (13), shown here delivering a jump shot in action last winter, fired in 580 points as a junior in leading the Knights to a 21-5 record. He set six school marks and tied another in averaging 22.2 points per game.

Lundstedt Is Key Returnee

Libertyville to Visit Knights in Cage Debut

by Keith Reinhard

Trophies aren't the type of objects people like to part with.

Last year, they sliced one right down the middle when Mid-Suburban League basketball play reached a climax and gave one section to Forest View, the other to Prospect.

Rather than release their half of the prize, the Knights have every intention of reuniting both pieces in their own showcase this winter.

With these sentiments, head cage coach Dick Kinneman launched the 1966-67 season at Prospect with preparations to subdue an old foe this Saturday night and continue a success story that stretches over seven years and reached all the way to the top in 65-66.

PREPPING FOR conference play by hosting Libertyville's Wildcats this weekend, Kinneman's group is in an extremely solid position to see their wishes come true.

Although stung by the graduation of all but two of their members of a season ago, the Knights will welcome the return of one of the best in state in 6-4 Tom Lundstedt.

Using Lundstedt and rangy returnee Dave Kingman as a nucleus, Kinneman has a good start toward molding another winning combination and enhancing the 119-29 personal mark he has compiled in a half-dozen years at the Prospect helm.

Lundstedt's showing in 1965-66 exposes him as dangerous threat to capture most league individual laurels this winter and possibly retool the Prospect High School all-time basketball standards he already is a prominent part of.

Last year, the 6-4 all-conference pick paced the MSL in scoring while inserting seven marks in the school record book.

HELPING Lundstedt under the boards, Kingman at 6-6 will provide the Knights with a powerful 1-2 rebounding punch.

Although positions of these two lettermen are nailed down, Kinneman continues to work seriously with ten other turnouts vying for starting berths to be ready by the time Libertyville stalks into town Saturday.

Included in the group are four playmakers competing for the one guard slot available on the Prospect 1-2-2 offense. They are 5-10 Dave Whitlock, 5-10 John Phillips, 5-8 Gary Andrews and 5-9 Tom Walters.

ANDREWS IS one of only three juniors on the team. Another is 6-1 Mike Anderson, who has impressed coach Kinneman enough to be a probable starter Saturday.

Also likely to get the nod is Mike Mueller. The 6-2 senior was used sparingly on the varsity squad last season. His chief competition is provided by junior Butch Leonard at 6-1 and seniors Clyde Whitcomb (6-1) and Dan Carda (5-11).

Others in contention for places on the squad are 6-3 Gary Woodward, 6-2 Ed Haskell and 5-7 Forest Haney.

ALTHOUGH Prospect's opener with the Wildcats is a non-conference bout, their interest in capturing it will be enhanced by revenge after suffering a 58-55 defeat in last season's lidlifter. The previous year, Prospect's varsity quintet escaped with a two-point triumph over Libertyville, but this year's seniors are more likely to remember their first confrontation with the Wildcats as freshmen, also in a losing cause.

Libertyville, coached by Larry Leon, posted a 12-10 mark overall in 65-66 and finished second in the North Suburban League. Five lettermen return from that team and all of them will be starting Saturday.

Although not as tall as Prospect, the Wildcats are touted as a strong defensive unit and Leon hopes to impress this upon Prospect.

In addition to the starting five, captain Craig Schwerman (6-3), John Konefes (6-3), Mike Nutting (6-0), Bruce Jordan (5-9), and Jim Mueller (5-9) — all seniors — supporting roles are played by juniors Steve Holmgren (6-1) and Rick Sitz (5-10) and seniors Rick Bland (6-4) and Neal Tackeberry (6-2).

Opener Tuesday

Lion Varsity Small But Could Surprise

by BOB FRISK

Something that always delights the fans in the pre-game basketball warmups is when some rangy young man goes high to stuff the ball down through the hoop.

Through the years at St. Viator High School you could count on a Charley Grandt or Paul Dumke or Paul Pomplun to excite the crowd with this dunking technique.

That was in the past. You won't find much stuffing going on in the Lion warmups this winter. There just isn't much size and that worries head man Larry Nomellini.

"THIS WILL be the smallest team," says Nomellini, "that I've had here. We'll have to compensate with our hustle, speed, ball-handling, and shooting."

Although he admits that the lack of size is the major problem area, Nomellini is cautiously optimistic as he drills his cagers in preparation for the season opener next Tuesday evening against Grant.

"The boys work well together," he emphasizes, "and since we started workouts October 1 we've only had what I would call three bad practices.

"I COULD BE wrong, but I don't anticipate that this team will make many floor errors throwing the ball away without getting a shot. And the shooting has been good so far in practice."

When you talk about shooting at St. Viator, the first name that pops up is 6-1 senior guard Frank Hogan, one of the deadliest out-shooters to hit the area in a long time.

Hogan, an All-Paddock area selection as a junior, dumped in 362 points last winter, hitting a snappy .433 from the field with some nifty long-range marksmanship and driving layups. He's a good one, a team leader, a fierce competitor.

HOGAN IS THE key returnee. The major graduation losses were 6-7 Pomplun and 6-4 Dumke, varsity regulars for two seasons. Both Pomplun and Dumke

FORMER PADDOCK area football standouts Jack Frost (left) and Dan Meyer (right) have been key performers on the Northern Illinois University football team again this season. Shown talking with head coach Howard Fletcher, Palatine grad Frost has caught 36 passes for 651 yards and six touchdowns. He pulled down three scoring aerials last Saturday as Northern routed Western Illinois, 44-6. Meyer, an Arlington High grad, set a new career interceptions mark when he pilfered two Western passes. Dan has a career total of 16, one better than the mark set by Al Eck from 1958 to 1960. Quarterback of the Huskies is Forest View grad Mike Griesman. Arneson Greets Two Returning Lettermen

The football season has ended and the weather has become a bit too brisk to spend too much time out of doors.

No longer do footballs fill the air for their place has been taken over by the hard court enthusiasts and basketball has stolen the limelight.

The Falcons of Forest View under the direction of Ken Arneson have been working hard since the opening day of practice almost two weeks ago as they tune up for their opening game with the Proviso West Panthers next Wednesday, November 23.

Coach Arneson was greeted by 13 cage candidates but only two of that number are returning lettermen. One of these two, Howie Brasch, has not as yet reported because of an injury suffered during the football season. KICKIN' IT AROUND

by
BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

Hogarty Kicks For Distance . . .

Prospect High grad Jim Hogarty is getting a big kick out of his final year of football for the Air Force Academy Falcons.

Although the Air Force outfit isn't making a big splash on the gridiron scene, winning only four of its first nine games, Hogarty has been a standout in the punting department after a slow start.

The rugged 6-2, 201-pounder, who earned all-league honors at end for Prospect on the Knights' 1962 Interim League championship entry, enjoyed his finest hour in the 15-7 Air Force victory over Navy.

Hogarty, who averaged 38.7 on 60 punts as a junior, punted six times against the Midshipmen for 301 yards, a fancy 50.2 average.

One punt carried 67 yards and might have broken his own record had the ball not scooted over the 10-yard line and then bounced back out of bounds on the Navy 11.

Hogarty, a defensive end when he isn't involved in the kicking game, helped keep Navy bottled in its own end of the field much of the game with his tremendous punting. Shortly after that boot to the Navy 11 the Falcons recovered a fumble to set up a key field goal.

The victory over Navy, ranked the high-point in 11 years of topsy-turvy football at the Air Force Academy, was accomplished before 46,801 fans in the Falcon stadium and gave Coach Ben Martin's club back-to-back victories over Army and Navy in the service academy rivalry.

Air Force surprised Army in Chicago's Soldier Field last fall, 14-3, with Hogarty contributing one clutch 67-yard punt in that triumph. Jim boomed four punts better than 60 yards as a junior, including a Falcon record of 69 yards.

Off to a slow start as a senior with sub-par performances in some of the early Air Force outings, Hogarty found the range against Navy.

"And what a welcome sight it was," said Air Force coach Ben Martin who also handles the punters. "We knew there was pressure on Hogarty (after the slow start), and you don't coach this out of a kid. You leave him alone."

Hogarty played his football under J. O. Jackson at Prospect High School. He caught seven touchdown passes as a senior, all from quarterback Ken Groh. He was the leading rebounder for Dick Kinneman in basketball and also a stickout in baseball under Chuck Aldrich.

Jim still does some pitching for the Air Force nine.

Forest View graduates Jim Baumgardt and Chuck Boesenberg had a big day last Saturday as Rose Polytechnic (Terry Haute, Ind.) handled Culver-Stockton in a wild 58-28 encounter. Baumgardt, an all-league selection at end in the Mid-Suburban last fall, caught two touchdown passes totaling 120 yards, and Boesenberg, the Falcons' 1965 signal-caller, kicked all the extra points and a 23-yard field goal.

Illini vs. NU . . . Frisk vs. Knox

All good football buffs are expected to sit home this Saturday and watch the titanic struggle on television between mighty Michigan State and mighty Notre Dame.

Right? Wrong. We know of at least two avid football fans who will not watch that game on television.

In a tremendous show of loyalty to our alma maters, Northwestern University grad Ken Knox, our associate sports editor, and University of Illinois grad Bob Frisk will witness what promises to be something less than a titantic struggle at Dyche Stadium in Evanston.

Now, let it be said here that graduates of Northwestern and Illinois work well together. But this is the first time we've ever sat together at a Northwestern-Illinois game so our association will receive its severest test.

Because Illinois is favored, we've already prepared our little excuse if they lose. "You see, Ken, it's been a case of one injury after another this year and. . ."

Actually, Knox is in a great position. If Illinois wins, he can always say, "Why, they should always win. You know about those tough entrance requirements at Northwestern and. . . ."

And if Northwestern wins. . . well, let's not even think about that. It could be a long ride home.

While the nation watches Michigan State and Notre Dame collide in a television spectacular, a few loyal fans, loyal to their alma maters, will trek to stadiums throughout the country.

But you can be sure that despite our unswerving loyalty to the University of Illinois and our "intense" interest in this battle with Northwesern Saturday, we'll have our transistor radio tuned to that Michigan State-Notre Dame feature.

Arlington High School is scheduled to pick up Maine West as its non-conference football opponent when the contract ends with Barrington. An excellent choice. Any Kenny Olson-coached team is a formidable opponent.

Lundstedt on Top 500 List . . .

It should come as no surprise that Prospect High School whiz Tom Lundstedt has been named one of the top 500 high school basketball players in the country by one cage publication.

Lundstedt was brilliant as a junior, averaging 22.3 points per game in taking former All-Stater George Pomey right out of the school record book.

The 6-4 senior was at his best in the most important games last winter, averaging 29.4 points per game in eight holiday and state tournament contests.

The colleges have already labeled Lundstedt one of the big prizes in the recruiting wars.

Other Chicago area boys named to that "Top 500" list were 6-4 Rufus Woods of North Chicago, a standout in sectional play at Arlington High last winter; 6-7 Greg Jackson of Chicago St. Phillip; and 6-4 Tyrone Walls of Antioch.

The Paddock area should feature three of the finest performers in prep play this winter in Prospect's Lundstedt, Arlington's Steve Allen, and St. Viator's Frank Hogan.

And another season begins . .

Arlington High track and cross country coach Bruce Samoore should have been happy to hear that the two-mile run has been added to the state track meet. Samoore is loaded with bright young distance runners — like Dave Swanson, Rich Saxton, and Scott Butler — and now he has one more event in which to utilize these talents.

Ten Years Ago This Week . . .

Arlington rocked Woodstock in the basketball opener, 77-33, as Tommy Jacobsen whipped in 27 points, 21 in the first half . . . Bob Lockwood added 19 for coach Howard Lester's Cardinals . . . Bob Creviston, a 6-3, 200-pound tackle, was named captain of the 1957 Arlington varsity football team.

Owens Sends Wheeling Against Rangy Hosts

by Keith Reinhard

Does success, like some tangible powder, rub off from one varsity team to another during the year?

Mike Owens would like to answer that question affirmatively and then proceed to pilot his Wheeling fivesome to conference contention in 1966-67.

With Wildcat grid play safely—and successfully—tucked into the Mid-Suburban League logbook for the year, fan interest focuses at Highland Park this Saturday when Wheeling visits the Little Giant den to initiate the cage season.

A towering Highland Park crew will provide Owens and his team with a strong indication of the possibility of this aura of success.

At any rate, the Wildcat trend — in both basketball and football — looks upward. Only in their third year of action, the Wildcat basketball squad moved to a 5-17 mark with their first full complement of seniors last season, after jumping into the varsity wars in 1964-65 with a 1-19 showing.

TO BOOST Wheeling up over the .500 mark this year, Owens will call upon a host of new turning lettermen and put a strong concentration on defense in hopes of offsetting the lack of height certain to affect the Wildcat offensive attack.

Among the certainties in the starting Wheeling lineup is veteran Rex Peterson, a 5-11 hustler who could develop into the team playmaker at one of the guard positions. Also impressing Owens at practice sessions thus far is Greg Fedyski, who finished up with the varsity last year and is also a capable and aggressive ball handler.

In addition to Peterson, forwards Scott Bishoff and Skip Grandt are letter earners returning to the Wildcat lineup. Bischoff, at six foot even, avgame in 65-66 and is sure to play a major role in Owens' plans. Grandt at 5-11 will win another starting forward berth only by outdoing transfer letfooter who gained all-conference honors in Michigan.

Only junior among the chief components of the squad is Phil Smith, at 6-3, most likely candidate to hold down the center slot all season.

OTHER MATERIAL Owens has to work with includes Jeffsen (6-3), Rick Bruce (6-1) and Winterburg (6-0), George Thorsen (6-3), Rick Bruce (6-1) and Dan Devito (5-9).

Their formidable foe to open the campaign with will have a definite size advantage. Led by 6-5 junior center Brad Lind, the Highland Park starting five will probably tower over Wheeling to improve an 11-10 mark in 65-66 which included league matches in the rugged Suburban League.

Coached by Fred Dickman, the Little Giants even have height at the guard positions in 6-3 senior Steve Steinberg and 6-1 senior Jim Friedman.

YOUTH IS ALSO a glownng factor in the Highland Park makeup. Starting at forwards for Dickman will be lanky sophomores Art Elliott (6-4) and Kim Hammerberg (6-3).

Others likely to see action against Wheeling are Bob Bows (6-2), Mike Scornavacco (5-6) and Bruce Zimmerman (5-6), hte latter possibly starting in place of Friedman.

He set six school marks and tied another in averaging 22.2 points per game.

Libertyville to Visit Knights in Cage Debut

by Keith Reinhard

Trophies aren't the type of objects people like to part with.

Last year, they sliced one right down the middle when Mid-Suburban League basketball play reached a climax and gave one section to Forest View, the other to Prospect.

Arneson Greets Two Returning Lettermen

by BOB NORDIN

The football season has ended and the weather has become a bit too brisk to spend too much time out of doors.

No longer do footballs fill the air for their place has been taken over by the hard court enthusiasts and basketball has stolen the limelight.

The Falcons of Forest View under the direction of Ken Arneson have been working hard since the opening day of practice almost two weeks ago as they tune up for their opening game with the Proviso West Panthers next Wednesday, November 23.

Coach Arneson was greeted by 13 cage candidates but only two of that number are returning lettermen. One of these two, Howie Brasch, has not as yet reported because of an injury suffered during the football season. Brasch was one of the big guns last year and if he is unable to return to action soon, his absence will be sorely felt.

Forest View Five

With the type of game the Falcons expect to play this year Cavello, with his speed, will fit right in.

The center position will be managed by 6-2 Mike Messer. Although not very tall as the average center goes today, Messer is a good jumper and could prove to be tough on the boards.

COACH ARNESON has three candidates for the forward jobs and once again Rich Gillespie and Bob Arnold will be battling for a starting berth. At the beginning of the football season these two were both candidates for the quarterback job, but Gillespie got the nod and Arnold moved to halfback where he did a good job. This time it's hard to say who will get the starting job.

The other forward is rangy Ted Lambert. This hard-working senior has unbelievable stamina and can run all day. He is developing into a top notch basketballer and Arneson expects much from him.

The other boys who are candidates for jobs and just waiting for someone to loaf are Mike Martin at guard, Doug Turner at center-forward, Doug Fink at forward, Denny Lynch at guard, Bill Ford at forward, and Gary Crain at center.

BECAUSE THE Falcons lack size this year Arneson plans to play a press and run game. His boys have good speed and are strong on defense. This is a team of good students and they learn fast, according to Arneson.

Most of the boys on this squad have played together for most of four years and they work well together. Their attitude has been excellent and they look forward to compensating for their lack of size and experience with good shooting and hard work.

At this point in the season no one can even guess what the outcome of the basketball season will be.

There will be other teams with more size and there will be other teams with more experience, but there will probably not be many units that will work harder to achieve success than will the Falcons of Forest View.

Lions Lack Size

could hit the boards with authority, and their rebounding and scoring talents will be missed.

The guard slot opposite Hogan should be filled by either senior Tom Epperly (5-11) or junior Pat Zeller (5-10) with soph stick-out John Brawley (5-10), and juniors Ken Balinski (5-8) and Pat Loughman (5-10) also in contention.

Epperly has bounced back effectively after a year-long bout with a leg injury. "He's working hard to make up for that year," said Nomellini, "and he's making good progress. Tom's a good competitor and in about another month he should start coming into his own."

ZELLER IS a capable ball-handler and shooter who was a scoring star last season with the Lion sophs.

Brawley shows a lot of promise although only a sophomore. He'll probably play with the sophs in the preliminary games and suit up with the varsity.

"I wouldn't hesitate using Brawley," Nomellini said. "I've tried to use him against Hogan as much as possible in practices. This type of experience is invaluable."

MANNING THE forward slots next Tuesday in the opener, barring any unforeseen developments, will be veteran senior Dan Collins (6-1) and Greg Polich (6-2).

Collins scored at a 9.2 clip as a junior, working at both forward and guard. He hit .462 from the field to pace the regulars. Dan is a steady who can rebound effectively despite his lack of exceptional size.

Polich is labeled "the most improved player at St. Viator."

"THIS BOY has come a long way," praised Nomellini. "In our workouts his shooting and rebounding have been outstanding, and he shows continuous hustle on the floor."

Other forward candidates are 6-0 Dan Miksta, 6-1 Mike Halsted, 6-1 Mark Pomplun, and 6-0 Kevin O'Connell.

Bill Yaeger, a 6-2, 165-pound junior, is the leader now in the battle for the center berth with 6-3 junior Bill Reising in the backup position.

"AT THE EARLY stages of our practices," Nomellini said, "Yaeger was the most impressive player out there. He jumps well but does need experience. It's just a question of gaining the confidence."

St. Viator will launch its season at home Tuesday evening (8:00) against Grant in an opening round game of the Chicagoland Prep League Thanksgiving Tournament.

If the Lions win, they will play either St. George or Mundelein on Wednesday, Nov. 23, for the championship. If they lose, they will play at 6:30 Wednesday evening.

A victory in the opening bracket would send the Lions to St. Ignatius for the tournament finals. The St. Viator winner will meet the St. Joseph winner on Friday, Nov. 25, at 6:30 p.m.

The Lions will entertain Palatine on Saturday, Dec. 3.

Norm Jones New Coach

Two Pirates Back; Cage Outlook Hazy

by Ken Knox

If Norm Jones were to select a theme song for his maiden appearance as a basketball coach in these regions, it might well be this: "Getting To Know You."

For Jones, a recent arrival from Salem, Indiana, new school, Palatine, his players, and—perhaps most crucial to his success — his opposition. He's even had a challenge in getting to know the gymnasium floorboards, because Palatine — with the school disrupted by expansion work — will practice in the Wood St. gym and play all its home games away, in the Fremd high gym.

Given all that for a premise, Jones has some barriers to mount as the successor to Pirate headman Bud Mueller, and he's ready to admit it.

His task is complicated by the almost-annual misfortune of coaches, graduated material. From the 1965-66 Palatine five — which ended 10-13 but had some splendid moments along the way — there are but two lettered returnees. And only one of them — guard Mike Ferguson — was a regular for the duration.

THE COMPETITION will begin quite soon enough for Jones and the Pirates, with Dundee to visit next Wednesday. That Thanksgiving eve engagement will replace the traditional "Sleigh Bells" game contested annually with Arlington, now that the Cards have joined the Pirates in the Mid-Suburban League. The battle for the sleigh bells will come later, in the first Palatine - Arlington league clash on Dec. 16.

Precious time has been consumed already in the Pirate preparation program, for Jones had to spend several days holding tryouts to distill his personnel, and more time yet verbalizing new Jones-oriented drills and play patterns for the performers. But he saw a quickening of the tempo at the week's beginning, and he is — at this point — pleased at what he's seen.

"We've been accenting conditioning," he said, "and the progress there is good. The attitude and morale are very good. With the boys having to learn a new system, it's taken some time, but now things are stabilizing."

THE NEW SYSTEM will probably involve more running than recent Palatine teams have experienced, because Jones likes a team to run. He calls himself an exponent of the controlled break, which means if you get the opportunity, you break, and fast. But, he cautioned, there'll be no predictable pattern in the Pirate court assault.

The Pirate problem is fast getting to be the need for an actual test, the game competition that can tell a coach better than any practice what he has in his stable.

"I think I know what we have now," Jones reflected. "But I can't make any predictions, because everything is so relative to what the others have."

He has been doing homework on the rest of the offerings in the area, and he's already been struck with the truth that Arlington and Prospect will be among the principal targets in the MSL.

IN READYING for what's ahead, Jones has stripped his candidates down to a dozen seniors. The juniors — unless there is some exceptional showing — will be kept on a junior varsity, where the headman thinks they can benefit far more from the floor experience. They've been turned over to Marc Denny, a 6-8 ex-all-stater at Indiana's Bedford high school who came to Palatine from Salem with Jones. New, too, will be Peter Lysaker in charge of the Palatine sophs, while Terry Gellinger and Pat Brogan of the Fremd staff will handle the Pirate frosh.

Jones' dozen is a generally short group, though Doug Spruance — the principal returnee with Ferguson — stands a good 6-4. That's more of a reason why the team will have to concentrate on attributes like moving and controlling the ball.

Neither Ferguson nor Srpuance scored heavily last season, Ferguson because he concentrated on being a playmaking, defensive type ballplayer, and Spruance because much of his action was in reserve. The 5-9 Ferguson averaged 4.5 points a game, with a single high of 13, while Spruance averaged 5.4, with a one-game peak of 17. So both can score, and Spruance has shown considerable development in the pivot position.

TWO CANDIDATES — 6-1 forward Wayne Render and 5-8 guard John Ekeberg — have both been mostly idle with injuries carrying over from football. Render missed much of the last season with another injury, so remains one of the unknown quantities, while Ekeberg functioned mostly as a playmaker with the JV squad.

One of the principal graduates from the 1965-66 JV team — which was 5-5 in the MSL but lost four games by a combined total of seven points — is Dick Smith. A 6-3 forward, Smith is a proven scorer who led the JVs with 216 points for the campaign.

Jones is also considering at forward Mike Lea, a six-footer confined by injury to managing the varsity squad last year, and reported looking very good. Contending too are 6-2 Dick Schuettner, who saw limited JV action, and John Fiscel, a transfer from Otumwa, Iowa, who's a little over 6-1.

MIKE FERGUSON
Vet Returns

Brian McCartney, standing a high 6-2, has been working out at forward and center. Handicapped some by a calcium deposit in his left hand, McCartney is hoping for more action than he saw in a reserve varsity role last year.

Rounding out the candidates at guard are Tim Sullivan, Fred Bahn and John Bell. Sullivan, an aggressive 5-9, mostly rode the varsity bench, getting only limited action in the season past. Bahn, a six-footer, was chiefly a reserve with the JVs, while Bell is a six-foot transfer.

They are the boys Jones has been getting to know, and who — starting next Wednesday — will begin to know themselves.

New Cougar Season Under New Headman

by KEN KNOX

To say this is a new basketball season at Conant High School is the only way to say it.

It's new, of course, by the calendar. But so is it new by the coach, and by the players, and by what the coach and players hope to engender together.

The 1966-67 season for the cage Cougars—the third in the school's history — begins formally on Saturday evening, Nov. 26, against the fledgling team from Addison Trail. But realistically, it's been underway for two weeks now on the practice floor, with the Cougars knowing full well that training this year especially is an essential preparation.

Chic Anderson, entering year nine in the Dist. 211 system, is at the helm now, replacing Rol Berg. And under Anderson's tutelage is a flock of boys who will quite literally replace the boys who played in the name of Conant the past two years. There is among them only a sprinkling of varsity experience, so the slate is clean.

THE BOYS WHO are gone, in two years of competition together, won 13 times and lost 30, and that of course is part of the challenge in things to be overcome by the new Cougars. The task will be no easy thing for Anderson and his charges, and they realize that.

The varsity candidates were almost exclusively junior varsity players a season ago, and as such they won but four times in 21 efforts. Several of the losses were narrow, but they were losses nevertheless, and the taste that lingers is bitter.

So with all the past history in mind, Anderson is accenting a new and a trim attitude this year, both physically and mentally. And he's happy so far at the progression.

"THE ATTITUDE," Anderson reported, "has been extremely good. The boys want to play, and they know our problems, and how many times they've had to go through defeat."

They want, said the headman, to make something of the challenge spiraling before them, and to that end he remains optimistic. And there must be optimism, because the season will trail through a perilous Mid-Suburban league course, plus six non-league games and tournament play at West Chicago.

Anderson admits to having no shooter of proven outstanding ability in his ranks, so the accent — at least in the early going — will have to be on rebounding, on controlling and handling the ball.

TO CARRY the burden, the coach is now mulling eight principal candidates. And only one of them — George Schenck — bears any resemblance to a varsity veteran.

Schenck's credentials include appearances in five varsity games, scoring 10 points in one of those appearances and 25 over-all.

Schenck, a 6-2 forward who played some at center, spent most of his time with the low-scoring JV unit, averaging about five points and six rebounds a game, and scoring a personal high of 15. But he's regarded as a fine jumper, and able to play with boys several inches taller.

THE BIG BOY of the team, depending on his development, may be Brian Bethke. A move-in last year, Bethke got in eight games with the JV before leg trouble forced him to the bench. He was picking off about seven rebounds and scoring five points a game with the JV, but he's up now to 6-5 in height and could be a factor.

The closest thing the Cougars may have to a good shooter — based on pre-season analysis—would be Ed Johnson. A 5-6 guard, Johnson is also regarded as an extremely steady ballplayer and a good ball-handler. He saw a flicker of varsity action, playing in all but one JV game, leading the team in scoring with a nine-point average, and in free throws with 39.

Other guard candidates include Larry Robertson, an aggressive 5-10 player who appeared in every JV game and one varsity contest last year, averaged six points and impressed with his defense; and Jeff Larson, a 6-2 youth who could also go at forward, and who — playing in all but one JV game — averaged six points and had a personal one-game high of 26.

GEORGE SCHENCK
Closest to Vet

GARY GOORSKY, a rugged 5-11, is striving for a forward job. He saw brief action in two varsity games, but played in all but one JV contest, averaging six points an outing, and leading the team in free throw shooting with 27 of 39. Harley Youngmeyer, standing at 6-1, was used mostly in reserve on the JV team, but he's also in the running at forward.

At this point of the progression, one junior is given a chance of making the team. He' Chris Shadwell, a 6-4 center and forward who played mostly with the Conant sophomores last year, then was brought up to average six points and four rebounds a game with the JV's, ending on a strong note.

A boy who would be rated a strong chance to make it at guard — had he not sustained a severe knee injury just before the football season — would be Mike Kennedy. The 5-8 Kennedy will probably be held back for at least another month. But he's a hard-driving, aggressive type of guard who once scored 22 points as a JV, and he could work his way in.

Anderson also has two transfers — 6-2 senior Rod Murphy and 6-4 junior Jack Bosch — who are getting a good look, and in 6-2 junior Walt Rieble he has a boy who might be able to help considerably in the rebounding.

But that all remains as part of the mulling process, and though the time has grown short before the opener, the careful preparation will continue.

The coach is getting his principal assistance this season from Bill Laumann, a spring graduate from Gustavus Adolphus in Minnesota, who'll handle this season's junior varsity. Mark Just will work with the sophomores, and Dick Redlinger and Roger McCoy the freshmen.

The challenge is for all of them, because Conant has not known much basketball success on any level. But the biggest challenge is to Anderson, and his one advantage is having under him players who have a challenge of their own.

The longest run ever with an intercepted pass in the Big Ten is 105 yards. It happened three times and, oddly enough, twice by the same player—Clark Sauer of Chicago. He did it in 1910 and again in 1911. No stolen pass has been returned more than 99 yards in the Big Ten since 1920.

Forest View Five

With the type of game the Falcons expect to play this year Cavello, with his speed, will fit right in.

The center position will be managed by 6-2 Mike Messer. Although not very tall as the average center goes today, Messer is a good jumper and could prove to be tough on the boards.

COACH ARNESON has three candidates for the forward jobs and once again Rich Gillespie and Bob Arnold will be battling for a starting berth. At the beginning of the football season these two were both candidates for the quarterback job, but Gillespie got the nod and Arnold moved to halfback where he did a good job. This time it's hard to say who will get the starting job.

The other forward is rangy Ted Lambert. This hard-working senior has unbelievable stamina and can run all day. He is developing into a top notch basketballer and Arneson expects much from him.

The other boys who are candidates for jobs and just waiting for someone to loaf are Mike Martin at guard, Doug Turner at center-forward, Doug Fink at forward, Denny Lynch at guard, Bill Ford at forward, and Gary Crain at center.

BECAUSE THE Falcons lack size this year Arneson plans to play a press and run game. His boys have good speed and are strong on defense. This is a team of good students and they learn fast, according to Arneson.

Most of the boys on this squad have played together for most of four years and they work well together. Their attitude has been excellent and they look forward to compensating for their lack of size and experience with good shooting and hard work.

At this point in the season no one can even guess what the outcome of the basketball season will be.

There will be other teams with more size and there will be other teams with more experience, but there will probably not be many units that will work harder to achieve success than will the Falcons of Forest View.

Lions Lack Size

could hit the boards with authority, and their rebounding and scoring talents will be missed.

The guard slot opposite Hogan should be filled by either senior Tom Epperly (5-11) or junior Pat Zeller (5-10) with soph stickout John Brawley (5-10), and juniors Ken Balinski (5-8) and Pat Loughman (5-10) also in contention.

Epperly has bounced back effectively after a year-long bout with a leg injury. "He's working hard to make up for that year," said Nomellini, "and he's making good progress. Tom's a good competitor and in about another month he should start coming into his own."

ZELLER IS a capable ball-handler and shooter who was a scoring star last season with the Lion sophs.

Brawley shows a lot of promise although only a sophomore. He'll probably play with the sophs in the preliminary games and suit up with the varsity.

"I wouldn't hesitate using Brawley," Nomellini said. "I've tried to use him against Hogan as much as possible in practices. This type of experience is invaluable."

MANNING THE forward slots next Tuesday in the opener, barring any unforeseen developments, will be veteran senior Dan Collins (6-1) and Greg Polich (6-2).

Collins scored at a 9.2 clip as a junior, working at both forward and guard. He hit .462 from the field to pace the regulars. Dan is a steady who can rebound effectively despite his lack of exceptional size.

Polich is labeled "the most improved player at St. Viator."

"THIS BOY has come a long way," praised Nomellini. "In our workouts his shooting and rebounding have been outstanding, and he shows continuous hustle on the floor."

Other forward candidates are 6-0 Dan Miksta, 6-1 Mike Halsted, 6-1 Mark Pomplun, and 6-0 Kevin O'Connell.

Bill Yaeger, a 6-2, 165-pound junior, is the leader now in the battle for the center berth with 6-3 junior Bill Reising in the backup position.

"AT THE EARLY stages of our practices," Nomellini said, "Yaeger was the most impressive player out there. He jumps well but does need experience. It's just a question of gaining the confidence."

St. Viator will launch its season at home Tuesday evening (8:00) against Grant in an opening round game of the Chicagoland Prep League Thanksgiving Tournament.

If the Lions win, they will play either St. George or Mundelein on Wednesday, Nov. 23, for the championship. If they lose, they will play at 6:30 Wednesday evening.

A victory in the opening bracket would send the Lions to St. Ignatius for the tournament finals. The St. Viator winner will meet the St. Joseph winner on Friday, Nov. 25, at 6:30 p.m.

The Lions will entertain Palatine on Saturday, Dec. 3.

Norm Jones New Coach

Two Pirates Back; Cage Outlook Hazy

by Ken Knox

If Norm Jones were to select a theme song for his maiden appearance as a basketball coach in these regions, it might well be this: "Getting To Know You."

For Jones, a recent arrival from Salem, Indiana, new school, Palatine, his players, and—perhaps most crucial to his success — his opposition. He's even had a challenge in getting to know the gymnasium floorboards, because Palatine — with the school disrupted by expansion work — will practice in the Wood St. gym and play all its home games away, in the Fremd high gym.

Given all that for a premise, Jones has some barriers to mount as the successor to Pirate headman Bud Mueller, and he's ready to admit it.

His task is complicated by the almost-annual misfortune of coaches, graduated material. From the 1965-66 Palatine five — which ended 10-13 but had some splendid moments along the way — there are but two lettered returnees. But that all remains as part of the mulling process, and though the time has grown short before the opener, the careful preparation will continue.

The coach is getting his principal assistance this season from Bill Laumann, a spring graduate from Gustavus Adolphus in Minnesota, who'll handle this season's junior varsity. Mark Just will work with the sophomores, and Dick Redlinger and Roger McCoy the freshmen.

The challenge is for all of them, because Conant has not known much basketball success on any level. But the biggest challenge is to Anderson, and his one advantage is having under him players who have a challenge of their own.

Quick Getaway

The longest run ever with an intercepted pass in the Big Ten is 105 yards. It happened three times and, oddly enough, twice by the same player—Clark Sauer of Chicago. He did it in 1910 and again in 1911. No stolen pass has been returned more than 99 yards in the Big Ten since 1920.

ing's head coach offer any insight into the amount of success they will experience this winter, the trail of gold dust leading from the gridiron onto the hardwood courts should be an easy one to pick up.

Owens played four years of varsity ball at Bradley university, before entering the coaching profession and in his last of three years as a regular with the Braves, captained the team, earned most valuable accords and paced his teammates to an NIT title and an all-tourney berth in 1960.

Before taking charge of the fledgling Wildcats, he spent three successful years as mentor at Peoria Limestone.

Elk Grove to Open Saturday

by BOB NORDIN

There are three things the total of which makes for a good basketball team. These three things are size, speed, and experience.

Elk Grove High School is about to embark on their initial venture in a combination varsity-junior varsity competition and the word for this season must be wait and see.

Grenadier coach Bob Rees welcomed a number of candidates out for practice that are long on desire but short on experience. They do not boast any great size and they have only average speed.

But you can't judge a team before they have been allowed to play so it must be a matter of wait and see.

THE YOUNG Grenadiers will open the 1966-67 season this Saturday night at 7:00 p.m. as they visit the New Trier West campus to meet a team that is in much the same boat. New Trier is another of those schools that has no senior class and so coach Mel Sheets and his counterpart Bob Rees have problems in common.

The Grenadiers have been working hard for the opener and Rees has named two men at each position with no definite starting lineup known at this time. The forward candidates for the Grenadiers are John Knopf (6-0), Bob Artemenko (6-0), Tom Pomey (6-0), and Jim Oplt (6-1).

At center coach Rees has named sophomore Joe Kalicz (6-2) and Rick Radtke (6-2). Neither boy has much experience but both are hustlers.

THE FOUR MEN named to operate at the guard spots are sophomore Gary Pleickhardt (5-6), freshman Frank Schultz (5-8), Jim Hoffmann (5-6), and Dennis Jones (5-9).

New Trier West will counter with guards Tony Domenick (5-10), and Steve Hamer (5-10). The forwards will be Norm Braverman (6-0), and Fred Szymanski (6-2), and the center position will be held by Tom Mustoe who will be the giant on the floor as he comes in at 6-5.

The New Trier team has had little experience playing together but their best boy to date has been the big center.

Building Grid Power

by KEITH REINHARD

Rome wasn't built in a day. Neither was Wheeling High School. But in considerably less time than it took Emperor Augustus to field a good team of chariot racers in the Coliseum, the Wildcats have put together a football program perhaps ready to take its place as a dominant force in Chicagoland for many years to come.

Only in its third year of existence, Wheeling exhibited successful grid teams on all five levels this fall to emerge as a major Mid-Suburban League threat for the next several seasons.

Whether they can continue to manufacture top-flight contenders or not will be answered only by time. At any rate, Wheeling's credentials this year seem to offer a solid indication of a bright future.

PACED BY A varsity eleven compiling a 6-2 mark and finishing runnerup in MSL action, Wildcat teams fashioned an enviable 30-9 record in 1966 while outscoring their opponents at practically a 3-1 ratio, 755-271.

Furthermore, if they can pick up the tempo in 1967 they finished with this fall, Wheeling squads could be lethal. During the final half of the past campaign, Wildcat units were 20-1 and were tapped for only eight touchdowns while pouring out 478 points themselves.

How have they done it? Arlington ranked higher than Wheeling in varsity play this year and had equal success at lower levels but they've had over 40 years to groom athletic squads. Why then, should this school of 2700 enrollment which has seen only one graduating class to date, so quickly rise to power on the gridiron?

ATHLETIC Director "Bus" Ormsbee, who assumed the head position when Wheeling first opened its doors after 14 years on the Arlington coaching staff, attributes the success to the 11 pigskin mentors working under him.

"We were quite selective in choosing our coaches," Ormsbee said and their backgrounds tend to bear him out. From head varsity coach Bill Daletski, a former All-American with seven years of coaching behind him, down to Wally Moore of the frosh "B" unit, now in his 17th year of high school coaching, the Wildcat staff is solid in experience.

Including Ormsbee, the coaching backgrounds of Wheeling football pilots totals out to nearly 100 years.

IN REGARD to the varsity's speedy rise to championship contention, Ormsbee pointed out how he and two other coaches, Wayne Selvig and Jim Hoffman, worked with this year's seniors before they even started attending Wheeling high school.

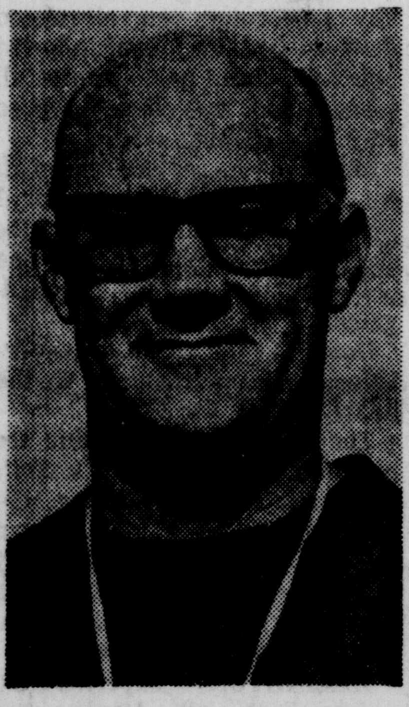
"The season before Wheeling opened we took the group of freshman football players who would be attending and spent time working on fundamentals with them," he recalled.

That year they played a separate seven-game schedule and finished 4-3-1.

Three years later, under Daletski's direction, a varsity team with that original nucleus came within two tight games of capturing the MSL crown. Losing only to co-champs Maine West and Arlington in eight outings, the 1966 Wildcats displayed one of the most potent defenses in area history.

IN THE MEANTIME, an explosive Wheeling offense outgained their opponents 143-61 in the point column while establishing a precedent in rushing future squads will be hard put to surpass.

"A very sizable portion of the credit for this year's success belongs to defensive coach Steve Chernicky and offensive line coach Bob Schulze," offered Daletski. He continued, "The experience and material were there but it took their efforts to mold it into a team effort."



BILL DALETSKI
Rise to Power

Daletski was high on praise for the players as well. "Some of the boys played a lot while others played little. But each individual was a vital cog in the over-all mechanism."

HEADING THE list were two backs exploited primarily for their outstanding offensive play but perhaps contributing even greater roles at defensive positions.

Tom Bastable, halfback and safety, and Jon Hittman, fullback and linebacker, finished nearly neck-and-neck for the individual Wheeling rushing crown. Bastable also practically cornered the market with top rankings in rushing yardage (498), average (5.5), total points (60), number of receptions (18), TD receptions (5), interceptions (3) and kickoff return average (20.0).

What statistics fail to show is that their alertness in thwarting enemy drives was one of the primary reasons Wheeling was able to hold the foe down to less than 136 yards per game on total offense.

FOR THEIR efforts Bastable and Hittman were voted unanimously by their teammates most valuable player and team captain respectively. They also were selected to the MSL all-conference squad.

Joining them on the league standout list was tackle George Legh-Page, who along with guard Mike Henry were perhaps the keystones of the solid Wheeling forward wall.

Of the entire varsity team, Daletski will welcome back only quarterback Robin Melzer next season. However, up from JV level will be an experienced crew which coaches Frank Miller and Dave Casey steered to a 6-2 over-all slate including a triumph over the Cardinals which halted a win streak extending over three years.

THEY FOLLOWED this up by stopping another previously unbeaten team from Deerfield 6-0 and capped the season with a blanking of Maine West that gave them a share of the circuit championship.

Next season's brightest prospect could easily be fullback Coe Meyer, leading Wildcat junior scorer and top ground gainer with a 500-plus season. Two names returning to the young school's varsity ranks will be Jon Whittington and Mike Stoik. Both outstanding linemen, they hope to follow in the footsteps of older brothers Jim Whittington and Tony Stoik, who were both all-conference choices in 1965.

Other names to look for on are John Haas, Scott Sward, Pat McGuire, Bill Schaefer, Dave Wachholz, John Grund,

Cards Have Promise; Transfers May Help

by BOB FRISK

The progress has been steady but impressive for the basketball program at Arlington High School.

The climb back to respectability, to a position of prominence in area circles, began two winters ago, just one year after an agonizing 6-16 standard.

There was a 15-10 campaign and regional championship in 1964-65. There was a flashier 17-7 standard last season, the finest won-lost percentage in 19 years at the oldest District 214 establishment.

Will the progress continue in 1966-67? Is there a conference championship in the future? Can Arlington improve on a 17-7 record?

TED WISSEN, the man in charge of the rebuilding program, is very interested in the answers to those questions.

Heading into his fourth year at the helm, Wissen does see promise in his current Arlington entry which kicks off the season on Wednesday, Nov. 23, with Barrington.

"I've never had a group as eager as this one, as anxious to get started," says Wissen, who sent the candidates through their paces for the first time on Wednesday, Nov. 9.

"I'VE BEEN very satisfied with the workouts thus far," he continued. "This is a good moving club and we do have some maneuverability among our top boys."

Although the accent has been on the offensive phase of the game during the initial sessions, Wissen plans to sharpen up the defense as the tempo of the drills increases.

"Right now," said Wissen, "the plans are to keep 13 seniors with the varsity and ten juniors and possibly a few sophs with the jayvees. It's an unusual situation to keep the juniors together like this but we want to let them play. If they had a chance of breaking into the varsity we'd have them up."

WISSEN greeted his top three scorers from the 1965-66 club when he launched drills last week.

Back for their final seasons of hardwood competition are 6-3 Steve Allen, 5-11 Terry Townley, and 6-6 Jim Donchess.

Allen, who just completed a spectacular football season, authored 430 points as a junior, a 17.9 average and the finest single season effort since George Bork dialed 497 in 1959-60. He's a deadly shooter, a smooth operator out front or under the basket, a steady veteran of two varsity campaigns.

Wissen has plans to utilize Allen at both forward and guard this winter, setting him at a forward right now.

TOWNLEY RETURNS in the backcourt where he enjoyed a fine junior year, tallying 274 points while spending a good majority of his time at the free throw line. He's a good driver who should show tremendous profit from that one year of varsity experience.

Donchess made great strides over the latter half of the 1965-66 campaign and could be headed for a big year. "He's moving better than ever," enthused Wissen. Jim tossed in 236 points as a junior in 24 contests.

Working with Allen at forward will be senior Dave Lockwood (6-1), a regular as a soph, who had to sit out most of the past season with back problems. Off his impressive football season, Lockwood appears ready to take up where he left off in the opener last winter, a 24-point explosion against Palatine.

OTHER FORWARD candidates are Steve Conley (6-3), who should move in when Allen goes to guard; Jim Swanezy (6-1), Bob Hecht (6-2), and Gary Cochran (6-0).

Joining Townley at the guard slots will be Chuck Keating (5-10), a promising newcomer, who transferred to Arlington late in the 1965-66 school year and who did work out with the varsity last winter.

TED WISSEN
At Card Helm

"Chuck's a little tense right now," Wissen said. "He's still tight from football but he's shown a lot of promise."

BACKING UP Townley and Keating will be Larry Malcolmson (5-9), Mick Wadzita (5-10), and Mike Grant (5-9). Allen is also available.

Jim Gracen, a 6-7 transfer from Colorado (just outside Denver), gives the Cards some important depth at the center slot.

"He has to learn a lot yet about our system," Wissen pointed out, "but he's going to help us. He has good hands and a soft shot."

Assisting Wissen with the basketball program at Arlington this winter will be Al Allen with the jayvees, Fran Somers with the frosh-sophs, and Tom Pitchford and Bob Carter with the frosh.

Cage Preview At St. Viator

67 St. Viator High School basketball teams will be held this Friday evening, Nov. 18, from 7:30 to 10:00 in the gymnasium.

There will be introductions of the frosh, soph, and varsity teams by coaches Ed Wasielewski and Larry Nomellini and a demonstration of drills by Nomellini.

Bunny Levitt, regarded as the world's greatest free throw shooter, will talk from 8:30 to 8:50. Levitt once converted on 499 consecutive free throws.

The Lions will stage a scrimmage from 8:50 to 9:20 and following a short break the film of St. Viator's victory over DeLaSalle last winter will be shown.

The public is invited for the special basketball program.

Building Grid Power

by KEITH REINHARD

Rome wasn't built in a day. Neither was Wheeling High School. But in considerably less time than it took Emperor Augustus to field a good team of chariot racers in the Coliseum, the Wildcats have put together a football program perhaps ready to take its place as a dominant force in Chicagoland for many years to come.

Only in its third year of existence, Wheeling exhibited successful grid teams on all five levels this fall to emerge as a major Mid-Suburban League threat for the next several seasons.

Whether they can continue to manufacture top-flight contenders or not will be answered only by time. At any rate, Wheeling's credentials this year seem to offer a solid indication of a bright future.

PACED BY A varsity eleven compiling a 6-2 mark and finishing runnerup in MSL action, Wildcat teams fashioned an enviable 30-9 record in 1966 while outscoring their opponents at practically a 3-1 ratio, 755-271.

Furthermore, if they can pick up the tempo in 1967 they finished with this fall, Wheeling squads could be lethal. During the final half of the past campaign, Wildcat units were 20-1 and were tapped for only eight touchdowns while pouring out 478 points themselves.

How have they done it? Arlington ranked higher than Wheeling in varsity play this year and had equal success at lower levels but they've had over 40 years to groom athletic squads. Why then, should this school of 2700 enrollment which has seen only one graduating class to date, so quickly rise to power on the gridiron?

ATHLETIC Director "Bus" Ormsbee, who assumed the head position when Wheeling first opened its doors after 14 years on the Arlington coaching staff, attributes the success to the 11 pigskin mentors working under him.

"We were quite selective in choosing our coaches," Ormsbee said and their backgrounds tend to bear him out. From head varsity coach Bill Daletski, a former All-American with seven years of coaching behind him, down to Wally Moore of the frosh "B" unit, now in his 17th year of high school coaching, the Wildcat staff is solid in experience.

Including Ormsbee, the coaching backgrounds of Wheeling football pilots totals out to nearly 100 years.

IN REGARD to the varsity's speedy rise to championship contention, Ormsbee pointed out how he and two other coaches, Wayne Selvig and Jim Hoffman, worked with this year's seniors before they even started attending Wheeling high school.

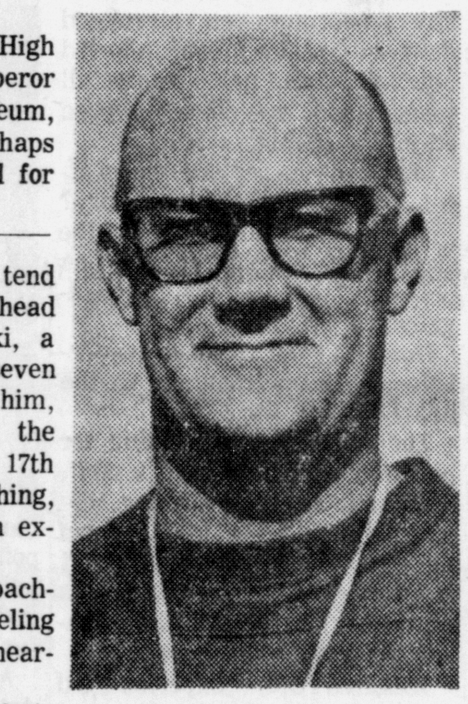
"The season before Wheeling opened we took the group of freshman football players who would be attending and spent time working on fundamentals with them," he recalled.

That year they played a separate seven-game schedule and finished 4-3-1.

Three years later, under Daletski's direction, a varsity team with that original nucleus came within two tight games of capturing the MSL crown. Losing only to co-champs Maine West and Arlington in eight outings, the 1966 Wildcats displayed one of the most potent defenses in area history.

IN THE MEANTIME, an explosive Wheeling offense outgained their opponents 143-61 in the point column while establishing a precedent in rushing future squads will be hard put to surpass.

"A very sizable portion of the credit for this year's success belongs to defensive coach Steve Chernicky and offensive line coach Bob Schulze," offered Daletski. He continued, "The experience and material were there but it took their efforts to mold it into a team effort."



BILL DALETSKI
Rise to Power

Daletski was high on praise for the players as well. "Some of the boys played a lot while others played little. But each individual was a vital cog in the over-all mechanism."

HEADING THE list were two backs exploited primarily for their outstanding offensive play but perhaps contributing even greater roles at defensive positions.

Tom Bastable, halfback and safety, and Jon Hittman, fullback and linebacker, finished nearly neck-and-neck for the individual Wheeling rushing crown. Bastable also practically cornered the market with top rankings in rushing yardage (498), average (5.5), total points (60), number of receptions (18), TD receptions (5), interceptions (3) and kickoff return average (20.0).

What statistics fail to show is that their alertness in thwarting enemy drives was one of the primary reasons Wheeling was able to hold the foe down to less than 136 yards per game on total offense.

FOR THEIR efforts Bastable and Hittman were voted unanimously by their teammates most valuable player and team captain respectively. They also were selected to the MSL all-conference squad.

Joining them on the league standout list was tackle George Legh-Page, who along with guard Mike Henry were perhaps the keystones of the solid Wheeling forward wall.

Of the entire varsity team, Daletski will welcome back only quarterback Robin Melzer next season. However, up from JV level will be an experienced crew which coaches Frank Miller and Dave Casey steered to a 6-2 over-all slate including a triumph over the Cardinals which halted a win streak extending over three years.

THEY FOLLOWED this up by stopping another previously unbeaten team from Deerfield 6-0 and capped the season with a blanking of Maine West that gave them a share of the circuit championship.

Next season's brightest prospect could easily be fullback Coe Meyer, leading Wildcat junior scorer and top ground gainer with a 500-plus season. Two names returning to the young school's varsity ranks will be Jon Whittington and Mike Stoik. Both outstanding linemen, they hope to follow in the footsteps of older brothers Jim Whittington and Tony Stoik, who were both all-conference choices in 1965.

Other names to look for on are John Haas, Scott Sward, Pat McGuire, Bill Schaefer, Dave Wachholz, John Grund,

by BOB FRISK

The progress has been steady but impressive for the basketball program at Arlington High School.

The climb back to respectability, to a position of prominence in area circles, began two winters ago, just one year after an agonizing 6-16 standard.

There was a 15-10 campaign and regional championship in 1964-65. There was a flashier 17-7 standard last season, the finest won-lost percentage in 19 years at the oldest District 214 establishment.

Will the progress continue in 1966-67? Is there a conference championship in the future? Can Arlington improve on a 17-7 record?

TED WISSEN, the man in charge of the rebuilding program, is very interested in the answers to those questions.

Heading into his fourth year at the helm, Wissen does see promise in his current Arlington entry which kicks off the season on Wednesday, Nov. 23, with Barrington.

"I've never had a group as eager as this one, as anxious to get started," says Wissen, who sent the candidates through their paces for the first time on Wednesday, Nov. 9.

"I'VE BEEN very satisfied with the workouts thus far," he continued. "This is a good moving club and we do have some maneuverability among our top boys."

Although the accent has been on the offensive phase of the game during the initial sessions, Wissen plans to sharpen up the defense as the tempo of the drills increases.

"Right now," said Wissen, "the plans are to keep 13 seniors with the varsity and ten juniors and possibly a few sophs with the jayvees. It's an unusual situation to keep the juniors together like this but we want to let them play. If they had a chance of breaking into the varsity we'd have them up."

WISSEN greeted his top three scorers from the 1965-66 club when he launched drills last week.

Back for their final seasons of hardwood competition are 6-3 Steve Allen, 5-11 Terry Townley, and 6-6 Jim Donchess.

Allen, who just completed a spectacular football season, authored 430 points as a junior, a 17.9 average and the finest single season effort since George Bork dialed 497 in 1959-60. He's a deadly shooter, a smooth operator out front or under the basket, a steady veteran of two varsity campaigns.

Wissen has plans to utilize Allen at both forward and guard this winter, setting him at a forward right now.

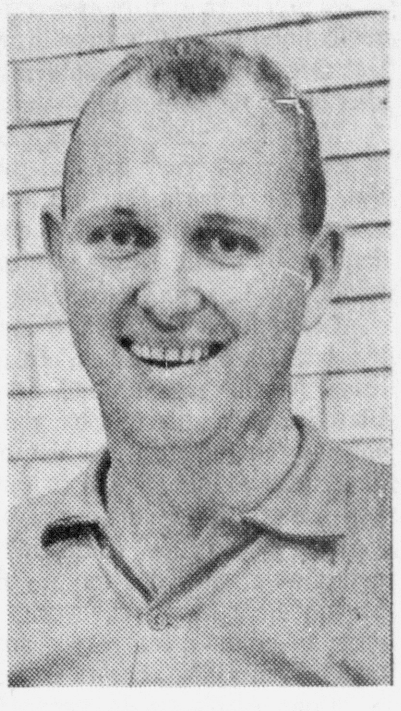
TOWNLEY RETURNS in the backcourt where he enjoyed a fine junior year, tallying 274 points while spending a good majority of his time at the free throw line. He's a good driver who should show tremendous profit from that one year of varsity experience.

Donchess made great strides over the latter half of the 1965-66 campaign and could be headed for a big year. "He's moving better than ever," enthused Wissen. Jim tossed in 236 points as a junior in 24 contests.

Working with Allen at forward will be senior Dave Lockwood (6-1), a regular as a soph, who had to sit out most of the past season with back problems. Off his impressive football season, Lockwood appears ready to take up where he left off in the opener last winter, a 24-point explosion against Palatine.

OTHER FORWARD candidates are Steve Conley (6-3), who should move in when Allen goes to guard; Jim Swanezy (6-1), Bob Hecht (6-2), and Gary Cochran (6-0).

Joining Townley at the guard slots will be Chuck Keating (5-10), a promising newcomer, who transferred to Arlington late in the 1965-66 school year and who did work out with the varsity last winter.



TED WISSEN
At Card Helm

"Chuck's a little tense right now," Wissen said. "He's still tight from football but he's shown a lot of promise."

BACKING UP Townley and Keating will be Larry Malcolmson (5-9), Mick Wadzita (5-10), and Mike Grant (5-9). Allen is also available.

Jim Gracen, a 6-7 transfer from Colorado (just outside Denver), gives the Cards some important depth at the center slot.

"He has to learn a lot yet about our system," Wissen pointed out, "but he's going to help us. He has good hands and a soft shot."

Assisting Wissen with the basketball program at Arlington this winter will be Al Allen with the jayvees, Fran Somers with the frosh-sophs, and Tom Pitchford and Bob Carter with the frosh.

Cage Preview At St. Viator

67 St. Viator High School basketball teams will be held this Friday evening, Nov. 18, from 7:30 to 10:00 in the gymnasium.

There will be introductions of the frosh, soph, and varsity teams by coaches Ed Wasielewski and Larry Nomellini and a demonstration of drills by Nomellini.

Bunny Levitt, regarded as the world's greatest free throw shooter, will talk from 8:30 to 8:50. Levitt once converted on 499 consecutive free throws.

The Lions will stage a scrimmage from 8:50 to 9:20 and following a short break the film of St. Viator's victory over DeLaSalle last winter will be shown.

The public is invited for the special basketball program.

JUST DOGS

By Dave Terrill

A recent motion picture released on the subject of how dogs are trained for acting jobs in movies and TV brings to mind the fact that as far as unemployment among our canine friends, the idea is not too impossible—that it may never happen.

More and more dogs are being used for many various and, in some cases, very unusual jobs. Gaines Dog Research Center, New York, reports that the Finnish National Geological Institute has trained a four-year-old dog to detect underground mineral deposits by smell. While at present there is only one dog actually working at it, several are being trained.

German Shepherds are currently being used to detect gas leaks in European mines. In fact, one dog in West Bohemia is listed on the payroll and has detected 52 gas leaks. In the United States, guard dogs and sentry dogs are being used not only by the military, but also by private companies. The results have been excellent, and in many cases more than paid for the expense of training and caring of such dogs.

One of the most noted fields where a dog is used is that of acting as a guide dog for the blind. Schools in this country have brought happiness and security to many people who rely on their dogs to guide them safely and protect them from injury. To watch such a dog at work is something to behold.

Dogs employed in herding on farms and as assistants to hunters are so common as to almost be taken for granted, but they too perform an invaluable service. If you have never watched a Border Collie at work, doing a herding job, you have missed something. And ask a hunter what a thrill it is when his dog finds, points and retrieves game.

From movies to guard dog, and from leading the blind to detecting gas leaks, it looks as if there will always be employment for dogs.

New Puppy Information—

Once again, advice and guidance is available to persons planning to buy a puppy for Christmas. A three-part "Puppy Buyers' Kit," that gives the prospective buyer what he needs to know—everything from deciding which breed will suit him or his family best to where he may make his purchase and how to look for a new puppy, can be had before the holidays.

The kit contains a chart in color, showing pictures of the 115 pure-bred dogs recognized by the American Kennel Club, together with data on average physical characteristics, coloring, natural abilities and such. Also included in the kit are a number of booklets covering many areas of how to raise and care for a new puppy.

For the new puppy buyer, the kit is just the thing, and can be had by sending 25 cents (to cover postage and handling) to Gaines "Kit," P.O. Box 1007, Kankakee, Ill. 60901.

When to Buy a Pup—

Buying a new puppy brings with it the usual question by many people, how old a pup should I buy? Recent research has brought out some interesting facts. The best time to obtain a puppy is at the age of six to 10 weeks. If taken before, he has not really developed and will become over-attached to people who care for him and not able to get along with other dogs. If taken after 12 weeks, he may have a hard time getting adjusted to his new home.

Good and Bad Mix In '66 Pirate Story

by KEN KNOX

ARV HERSTEDT
Good, Bad

BILL GILL
Record Show

It's not an easy thing to follow an 8-0 football campaign with one of 3-5, so it was not an easy autumn around Palatine High School.

When optimism born of perfection is dashed with the stark sting of defeat, things are not only not easy, they are painful. So it was a painful autumn, too.

It was, doubtless, especially painful to Arv Herstedt, who helped mold the unbeaten team of 1965, then took to himself the challenge of following it with the team of 1966.

He was left, at season's end, with the alternatives of being pleased about the three games that were won, or chagrined about the five that were lost. Unquestionably, there were coaches and teams in the area that would have been ecstatic about three victories, but they weren't following eight of them. So in the end — for Herstedt and the Pirates — 3-5 was a harsh reality.

BUT THE season was not without its consolations, and the three victories were among them, especially the last one. That, of course, was the season finale with arch-rival Conant, and if there was any solace for the Pirates, it was in winning that challenge 26-7, and playing some of their best football in the process.

There was also a reverse consolation in the fact that the season's lowest point — a point approaching horror for the Pirate partisans — came early. It was the second game of the season, and that it came after the opening 26-0 shocking by Glenbrook North only made it worse. It was the Saturday when Arlington, on the way to its second unbeaten campaign in history, destroyed the Pirates with 48 points, amost 600 yards total offense and 30 first downs, getting through the air alone more than half the passing yardage allowed all season by Palatine.

After that, it had to be up for the Pirates, and they did split the six games remaining on their schedule. In fact, they followed the cannonading with two consecutive victories — shutouts over the new Elk Grove team and Prospect — and the optimism welled again.

BUT IT WAS NOT to be Palatine's year, as was demonstrated in one of the three successive defeats that followed the win over Prospect. That was the loss to Maine West, a seeming 40-14 rout that could just as easily have been a Palatine victory. It typified — with its mistakes at precisely the wrong Palatine moments — what happens to a team when the fates have turned against it.

That there was a little perverse fate afflicting the Pirates can't be doubted, though it wasn't the whole of the problem. But having a player like John Ekeberg thrice-injured has to be classed as cruel misfortune. Banged up initially in the opener with Glenbrook North, the Mid-Suburban League's defending rushing and scoring champion never played at full strength and missed three games completely, ending the season with some 500 yards less than he totaled in 1965.

It hurt to be without Ekeberg, just as it hurt to go seven games without halfback Barry Fitzgerald, or to have halfback-end Wayne Render out of commission, or to have sidelined several linemen and defenders.

STILL, THROUGH it all, there were some luminous performances, and one of them was lasting enough to win etching into the Palatine football record book. That was the work of end Bill Gill, a two-way performer who stood out for Palatine by catching 18 passes for 317 yards and six touchdowns, all Pirate pass-receiving marks. He also led the team in scoring with 36 points, and for it all was one of two Pirates designated all-MSL at season's end.

The other — the team's co-most valuable player with Gill — was halfback Dennis Lynch, one of the campaign's pleasant finds for Herstedt. Though never having played in the offensive backfield, Lynch proved a powerful blocker and the team's second most effective rusher with 311 yards for the year.

The rushing leader, another boy converted to full-time running by Herstedt, was Pat Kinsella. Better previously known as a kicker and blocking back, Kinsella exploded into the rushing scene with 151 yards in the Elk Grove game, and finished the year with 341 yards on the ground.

Bob Young was another who bloomed late but well for Palatine, finally winning the quarterback's job with half the season gone, then capping it with a splendid show against Conant. He and Gill made a passing combination that at the very least would be perilous to the rest of the league if either was back next season.

But neither is, and that is another of Herstedt's problems. The season 1967 will be much a time for building at Palatine, ravaged twice in three years by school splits. Because of the boys who saw some of the major action for Palatine this fall, only three — promising quarterback Brian Scholl, honorable mention all-MS Lcenter Pat Donahue, and guard Brian Messier — will be back next season. And with no junior varsity at Palatine this year, the bulk of the rest of the picking will have to come from the sophomore team.

In that respect, the challenge the next time around may be even greater.

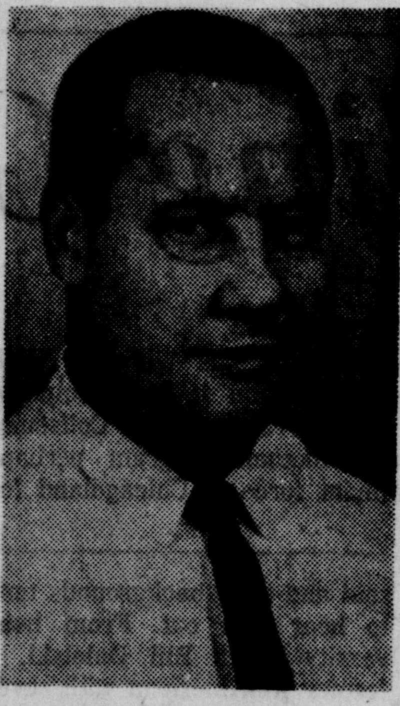
A Year to Remember

by BOB FRISK



AL ALLEN
A Big Year

Graduation ceremonies at Arlington High School next spring will serve as a very special event for seven of the eight men who will guide Mid-Suburban League football teams in 1967.

There won't be any tears shed by opposing coaches when such performers as Steve Allen, Dave Lockwood, Steve Conley, Kim Markshausen, Bruce Weber, Mick Wadzita, Brad Somers and Jim Donchess pick up their diplomas in June.

Stepping out of the Arlington gridiron picture will be the boys who molded together into a punishing offensive machine, the greatest in school history, in the march to an unbeaten season and share of the league crown.

Missing in 1967 will be several key performers on a rugged defensive platoon that allowed only 14 first half points all season and was never scored on in the opening stanza.

How do you replace the geatest passer in school history?

HOW DO YOU replace the greatest pass receiver and one of the top career groundgainers?

How do you replace experience, both up front and in the backfield?

The challenges are there for headman Al Allen and his staff. It won't be easy filling the gaps, but there's talent down the line at the oldest District 214 school and the prospects remain bright despite the forthcoming graduation losses.

ARLINGTON experienced success at all levels and fashioned 15 victories in 16 outings at the sophomore and junior-varsity ranks. And that's where a bulk of the talent will come from in '67.

Offensively, this 1966 Arlington powerhouse shattered practically every team record of consequence in the book. They collected more total yards (2858), more first downs (147), more passing yards (1553), and more points (241) than any team in history.

The individual achievements, of course, were paced by senior quarterback Allen, a three-year varsity regular and the greatest passer in school history.

FOR THE SEASON Allen threw for 1443 yards and 12 touchdowns, hitting better than 50 per cent of his passes. He scored 10 touchdowns and kicked 20 extra points and two field goals for 86 points. He owns every passing record at the school.

When Allen graduates in June, he'll take with him the following career achievements: 2802 total yards of which 2668 came on passing; 147 career points (18 touchdowns, 33 extra points, and two field goals); and 177 pass completions good for 20 touchdowns.

Another major loss to the Arlington offensive machinery will be the pass receiving antics of Lockwood, the 6-1, 185-pound speedster who played three years of varsity football.

IN HIS VARSITY career Lockwood caught 43 passes for 851 yards, both school marks. As a senior, he pulled down 23 for 551 yards and six touchdowns. He has possession of five school pass receiving marks.

Conley, who rushed for 596 yards as a senior and caught 24 passes for 372 yards, finished his varsity career only 46 yards shy of the 1,000 mark in the rushing department. Steve pounded out 954 yards in 181 career carriers, a healthy 5.3 average.

Statistically, the graduation losses of Allen, Lockwood, and Conley will be the most pronounced although there were several other key contributors to the Cardinal offensive game.

TIGHT END Donchess concluded two seasons of varsity competition with 31 receptions for 339 yards, the second best career total (behind Lockwood) in school history. Jim caught 21 for 232 yards in 1966.

Brad Somers caught 17 passes for 275 yards and three touchdowns as a senior, and hard-running Mick Wadzita enjoyed a fine senior year with 500 yards rushing in 83 carries, a team-leading 6.0 per carry average.

Long-time followers of Arlington High football can't remember the last time the varsity Cards had two backs (such as Conley and Wadzita) who both hit 500 or more yards rushing in a single season.

WHILE THE BACKS always grab most of the headlines, it would be remiss to ignore the contributions of the boys in the forward wall, the boys who made the path-clearing blocks and clutch tackles.

You can't lightly dismiss the efforts put forth by such linemen as Markshausen, Weber, Brad Philo, Ray Peale, Dan Selleck, Paul Tollefson, and Karl Pingel among others.

And then there was the exceptional defensive backfield play turned in by transfer Tom Chandler, captain-elect for the 1967 season.

All the other major letter winners contributed in some way to Arlington's success in 1966: Cary Annen, Gary Cochran, Jerry Enright, Dave Fondrie, Jim Gracen, Scott Guilfoil, Ron Horcher, Mike Jones, Chuck Keating, Paul Parish, Jan Sarff, Jim Swanezy, Bob Miller, Gary Price, and Todd Somers.

Many years from now they'll remember this 1966 Arlington High School football team as a team of dash and drive, an exciting team, a team with many, many gifted performers.

Launch Meadows Cage Play

The Rolling Meadows Park District adult recreational basketball league opened play Tuesday with a full schedule of six teams.

Several teams had to be turned away because of the lack of facilities and playing time.

Those teams in the league are:

North West Mutual Insurance and General Time Corporation as corporation sponsored teams; St. Paul's School as a school sponsored team for teachers; and the three self-sponsored teams managed by Ron Peters of Rolling Meadows, Walter Janekowski of Willow Farms Dairy and George Edwards, teachers from the Rolling Meadows area.

The six teams will play 10 league games plus tournament at Carl Sandburg Junior High School gym.

Games will be played at 7:00; 8:00; and 9:00 p.m. on Tuesdays. The public is invited to attend the games.

The Frosh A extended a two-year winning streak to 13 games while the Bs were rolling over all opponents except Arlington to tie for the loop title.

Pohlman's group was also unscored upon in all but a pair of games. Their final slated reflected a 233-point barrage while holding opponents to a meager 12.

ACCORDING TO Pohlman, the toughest hurdle his team overcame was their 19-7 throttling of the Maine West frosh on the last day of the season. Both teams entered the fray undefeated and the Cat win won them the conference pennant.

Key contributors to this supreme year included backs Scott Feige and Steve Schuler and linemen Dan Hull, Glen Rathke and Eric Christiansen on offense; halfback Ken Peterson, linebackers Mike Ryder and Lou Lambert, middle guard Dan Gundlack and tackle Craig Turpin on defense.

The B team was felled by the Cardinals in their third outing, 25-0, but posted an impressive win over Elk Grove the following week. Moving the ball well in adverse weather, they copped an 18-7 decision from the Grenadiers and kept their momentum building from then on.

With the next prep football season a good ten months away, an estimate of Wheeling's chances in 1967 would be slightly premature. One sure bet is that coaches and players alike will be out to improve on their 1966 showings.

This, of course, is the first giant step toward a winning tradition.

JUST DOGS

By Dave Terrill

A recent motion picture released on the subject of how dogs are trained for acting jobs in movies and TV brings to mind the fact that as far as unemployment among our canine friends, the idea is not too impossible—that it may never happen.

More and more dogs are being used for many various and, in some cases, very unusual jobs. Gaines Dog Research Center, New York, reports that the Finnish National Geological Institute has trained a four-year-old dog to detect underground mineral deposits by smell. While at present there is only one dog actually working at it, several are being trained.

German Shepherds are currently being used to detect gas leaks in European mines. In fact, one dog in West Bohemia is listed on the payroll and has detected 52 gas leaks. In the United States, guard dogs and sentry dogs are being used not only by the military, but also by private companies. The results have been excellent, and in many cases more than paid for the expense of training and caring of such dogs.

One of the most noted fields where a dog is used is that of acting as a guide dog for the blind. Schools in this country have brought happiness and security to many people who rely on their dogs to guide them safely and protect them from injury. To watch such a dog at work is something to behold.

Dogs employed in herding on farms and as assistants to hunters are so common as to almost be taken for granted, but they too perform an invaluable service. If you have never watched a Border Collie at work, doing a herding job, you have missed something. And ask a hunter what a thrill it is when his dog finds, points and retrieves game.

From movies to guard dog, and from leading the blind to detecting gas leaks, it looks as if there will always be employment for dogs.

New Puppy Information—

Once again, advice and guidance is available to persons planning to buy a puppy for Christmas. A three-part "Puppy Buyers' Kit," that gives the prospective buyer what he needs to know—everything from deciding which breed will suit him or his family best to where he may make his purchase and how to look for a new puppy, can be had before the holidays.

The kit contains a chart in color, showing pictures of the 115 pure-bred dogs recognized by the American Kennel Club, together with data on average physical characteristics, coloring, natural abilities and such. Also included in the kit are a number of booklets covering many areas of how to raise and care for a new puppy.

For the new puppy buyer, the kit is just the thing, and can be had by sending 25 cents (to cover postage and handling) to Gaines "Kit," P.O. Box 1007, Kankakee, Ill. 60901.

When to Buy a Pup—

Buying a new puppy brings with it the usual question by many people, how old a pup should I buy? Recent research has brought out some interesting facts. The best time to obtain a puppy is at the age of six to 10 weeks. If taken before, he has not really developed and will become over-attached to people who care for him and not able to get along with other dogs. If taken after 12 weeks, he may have a hard time getting adjusted to his new home.

At Arlington High

A Year to Remember

by BOB FRISK

Graduation ceremonies at Arlington High School next spring will serve as a very special event for seven of the eight men who will guide Mid-Suburban League football teams in 1967.

There won't be any tears shed by opposing coaches when such performers as Steve Allen, Dave Lockwood, Steve Conley, Kim Markshausen, Bruce Weber, Mick Wadzita, Brad Somers and Jim Donchess pick up their diplomas in June.

Stepping out of the Arlington gridiron picture will be the boys who molded together into a punishing offensive machine, the greatest in school history, in the march to an unbeaten season and share of the league crown.

Missing in 1967 will be several key performers on a rugged defensive platoon that allowed only 14 first half points all season and was never scored on in the opening stanza.

How do you replace the geatest passer in school history?

HOW DO YOU replace the greatest pass receiver and one of the top career groundgainers?

How do you replace experience, both up front and in the backfield?

The challenges are there for headman Al Allen and his staff. It won't be easy filling the gaps, but there's talent down the line at the oldest District 214 school and the prospects remain bright despite the forthcoming graduation losses.

ARLINGTON experienced success at all levels and fashioned 15 victories in 16 outings at the sophomore and junior-varsity ranks. And that's where a bulk of the talent will come from in '67.

Offensively, this 1966 Arlington powerhouse shattered practically every team record of consequence in the book. They collected more total yards (2858), more first downs (147), more passing yards (1553), and more points (241) than any team in history.

The individual achievements, of course, were paced by senior quarterback Allen, a three-year varsity regular and the greatest passer in school history.

FOR THE SEASON Allen threw for 1443 yards and 12 touchdowns, hitting better than 50 per cent of his passes. He scored 10 touchdowns and kicked 20 extra points and two field goals for 86 points. He owns every passing record at the school.

AL ALLEN
A Big Year

When Allen graduates in June, he'll take with him the following career achievements: 2802 total yards of which 2668 came on passing; 147 career points (18 touchdowns, 33 extra points, and two field goals); and 177 pass completions good for 20 touchdowns.

Another major loss to the Arlington offensive machinery will be the pass receiving antics of Lockwood, the 6-1, 185-pound speedster who played three years of varsity football.

IN HIS VARSITY career Lockwood caught 43 passes for 851 yards, both school marks. As a senior, he pulled down 23 for 551 yards and six touchdowns. He has possession of five school pass receiving marks.

Conley, who rushed for 596 yards as a senior and caught 24 passes for 372 yards, finished his varsity career only 46 yards shy of the 1,000 mark in the rushing department. Steve pounded out 954 yards in 181 career carriers, a healthy 5.3 average.

Statistically, the graduation losses of Allen, Lockwood, and Conley will be the most pronounced although there were several other key contributors to the Cardinal offensive game.

TIGHT END Donchess concluded two seasons of varsity competition with 31 receptions for 339 yards, the second best career total (behind Lockwood) in school history. Jim caught 21 for 232 yards in 1966.

Brad Somers caught 17 passes for 275 yards and three touchdowns as a senior, and hard-running Mick Wadzita enjoyed a fine senior year with 500 yards rushing in 83 carries, a team-leading 6.0 per carry average.

Long-time followers of Arlington High football can't remember the last time the varsity Cards had two backs (such as Conley and Wadzita) who both hit 500 or more yards rushing in a single season.

WHILE THE BACKS always grab most of the headlines, it would be remiss to ignore the contributions of the boys in the forward wall, the boys who made the path-clearing blocks and clutch tackles.

You can't lightly dismiss the efforts put forth by such linemen as Markshausen, Weber, Brad Philo, Ray Peale, Dan Selleck, Paul Tollefson, and Karl Pingel among others.

And then there was the exceptional defensive backfield play turned in by transfer Tom Chandler, captain-elect for the 1967 season.

All the other major letter winners contributed in some way to Arlington's success in 1966: Cary Annen, Gary Cochran, Jerry Enright, Dave Fondrie, Jim Gracen, Scott Guilfoil, Ron Horcher, Mike Jones, Chuck Keating, Paul Parish, Jan Sarff, Jim Swanezy, Bob Miller, Gary Price, and Todd Somers.

Many years from now they'll remember this 1966 Arlington High School football team as a team of dash and drive, an exciting team, a team with many, many gifted performers.

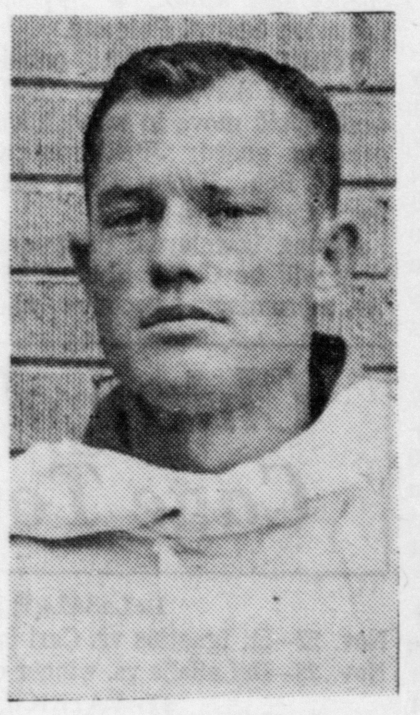
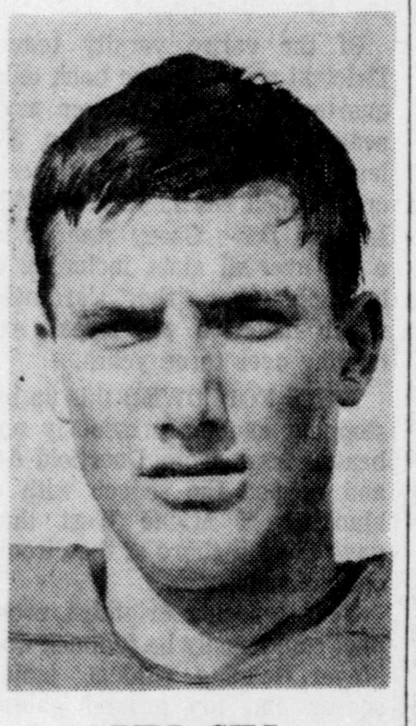
Good and Bad Mix In '66 Pirate Story

by KEN KNOX



ARV HERSTEDT
Good, Bad



BILL GILL
Record Show

It's not an easy thing to follow an 8-0 football campaign with one of 3-5, so it was not an easy autumn around Palatine High School.

When optimism born of perfection is dashed with the stark sting of defeat, things are not only not easy, they are painful. So it was a painful autumn, too.

It was, doubtless, especially painful to Arv Herstedt, who helped mold the unbeaten team of 1965, then took to himself the challenge of following it with the team of 1966.

He was left, at season's end, with the alternatives of being pleased about the three games that were won, or chagrined about the five that were lost. Unquestionably, there were coaches and teams in the area that would have been ecstatic about three victories, but they weren't following eight of them. So in the end — for Herstedt and the Pirates — 3-5 was a harsh reality.

BUT THE season was not without its consolations, and the three victories were among them, especially the last one. That, of course, was the season finale with arch-rival Conant, and if there was any solace for the Pirates, it was in winning that challenge 26-7, and playing some of their best football in the process.

There was also a reverse consolation in the fact that the season's lowest point — a point approaching horror for the Pirate partisans — came early. It was the second game of the season, and that it came after the opening 26-0 shocking by Glenbrook North only made it worse. It was the Saturday when Arlington, on the way to its second unbeaten campaign in history, destroyed the Pirates with 48 points, amost 600 yards total offense and 30 first downs, getting through the air alone more than half the passing yardage allowed all season by Palatine.

After that, it had to be up for the Pirates, and they did split the six games remaining on their schedule. In fact, they followed the cannonading with two consecutive victories — shutouts over the new Elk Grove team and Prospect — and the optimism welled again.

BUT IT WAS NOT to be Palatine's year, as was demonstrated in one of the three successive defeats that followed the win over Prospect. That was the loss to Maine West, a seeming 40-14 rout that could just as easily have been a Palatine victory. It typified — with its mistakes at precisely the wrong Palatine moments — what happens to a team when the fates have turned against it.

That there was a little perverse fate afflicting the Pirates can't be doubted, though it wasn't the whole of the problem. But having a player like John Ekeberg thrice-injured has to be classed as cruel misfortune. Banged up initially in the opener with Glenbrook North, the Mid-Suburban League's defending rushing and scoring champion never played at full strength and missed three games completely, ending the season with some 500 yards less than he totaled in 1965.

It hurt to be without Ekeberg, just as it hurt to go seven games without halfback Barry Fitzgerald, or to have halfback-end Wayne Render out of commission, or to have sidelined several linemen and defenders.

STILL, THROUGH it all, there were some luminous performances, and one of them was lasting enough to win etching into the Palatine football record book. That was the work of end Bill Gill, a two-way performer who stood out for Palatine by catching 18 passes for 317 yards and six touchdowns, all Pirate pass-receiving marks. He also led the team in scoring with 36 points, and for it all was one of two Pirates designated all-MSL at season's end.

The other — the team's co-most valuable player with Gill — was halfback Dennis Lynch, one of the campaign's pleasant finds for Herstedt. Though never having played in the offensive backfield, Lynch proved a powerful blocker and the team's second most effective rusher with 311 yards for the year.

The rushing leader, another boy converted to full-time running by Herstedt, was Pat Kinsella. Better previously known as a kicker and blocking back, Kinsella exploded into the rushing scene with 151 yards in the Elk Grove game, and finished the year with 341 yards on the ground.

Bob Young was another who bloomed late but well for Palatine, finally winning the quarterback's job with half the season gone, then capping it with a splendid show against Conant. He and Gill made a passing combination that at the very least would be perilous to the rest of the league if either was back next season.

But neither is, and that is another of Herstedt's problems. The season 1967 will be much a time for building at Palatine, ravaged twice in three years by school splits. Because of the boys who saw some of the major action for Palatine this fall, only three — promising quarterback Brian Scholl, honorable mention all-MS L center Pat Donahue, and guard Brian Messier — will be back next season. And with no junior varsity at Palatine this year, the bulk of the rest of the picking will have to come from the sophomore team.

In that respect, the challenge the next time around may be even greater.

For Lions' Eleven

Passing Game Shows Late-Season Profit

by BOB FRISK

For St. Viator football fans the 1966 season may be best remembered for two losses.

The Lions wrapped up four victories in eight outings, two in rather convincing fashion, but the games they'll remember, the games that evoke the most painful memories were the setbacks to St. Patrick and DeLaSalle.

St. Viator has never beaten St. Patrick in varsity football. They came close, so very close in 1966 before falling, 13-7.

And league champion DeLaSalle, although finally pulling out a three-touchdown advantage, sported a slim one-point lead late in the third quarter against the aroused Lions.

COACH JOE GLIWA'S club flashed some of its finest football of the campaign in those two reversals, scoring first against the touted defenses of both the Shamrocks and Meteors.

Those two games, particularly the season finale against DeLaSalle, also exhibited just what type of attack the Lions can be expected to utilize next fall.

"We'll be throwing the ball a lot," head man Gliwa admitted as he looked ahead to 1967.

THE PASSING game, engineered primarily by junior Denny Palubicki, was a bright spot in the over-all Lion picture for the past season.

Although the Lions rushed for over 1000 yards in eight contests, they did strike through the air for 627 and 337 of those yards came in the last three games when Palubicki fired 66 times.

Palubicki, a slim 6-0, 155-pounder, matured as a signal-caller and passer and finished the season with 39 completions for 510 yards and three touchdowns.

HE HAD HIS biggest day when he completed 13 for 177 yards and two scores against St. Mel, but in many respects he turned in his top passing effort in the DeLa Salle encounter, hitting 12 for 116 yards.

Although Palubicki returns for another season, the top four pass receivers and top four ground-gainers will be missing as Gliwa is faced with a major rebuilding program, both in the backfield and in the line.

Gone will be Bob Stevens, a three-year varsity performer who was switched from quarterback to end and proceeded to pull down 15 passes for 180 yards and one touchdown.

NEXT IN LINE in pass receiving were John Cook, Kevin Coulter, and Kevin Laird. They will all be gone with Coulter, only a junior, expected to transfer.

The loss of Cook strips the Lions of their top rusher. John cracked for 292 yards in 62 carries, a 4.7 average, and also topped the club in scoring with five touchdowns.

Veteran Larry Snyder followed Cook in the rushing department with 262 yards and a 4.6 average, and Snyder will also be among the major losses when practice opens next August.

IT'S UP FRONT where Gliwa and his staff will have to plug some gaps in 1967. Losing such boys as Denny Forston, Paul Rocca, Kevin Laird, and Jim Dahl, experienced veterans, will be felt.

There will be some promising returnees in the forward wall—Frank Bianca, Rich Loner, Bob Rose, John Browning, and Mike Miller — but only time will tell if they'll have sufficient help.

Versatile Dan Klingberg, more noted for his work on defense, will return. So will Johnny Wendell and Laszlo Pavel among others. And there will be some help from the current sophomore class.

St. Viator High School has just completed its second straight .500 season. The future, however much of a question-mark, does have promise. There is talent down the line at the Arlington Heights school.

The Lions could be an exciting club in 1967.

St. Viator Sophs Show 2-4-1 Mark

For St. Viator's frosh-soph football team this fall the difference between a big season record-wise and mediocre season was very slight.

Only a few points separated coach Bill Hansen's club from six victories in eight outings.

"It was a year of learning," said Hansen, "but our record of 2-4-1 is somewhat deceiving."

The young Lions lost to Stevenson on the final play, to Argo in the final two minutes, to St. Patrick by one point, and tied St. Joseph.

St. Viator concluded the campaign with a convincing 39-16 victory over DeLaSalle as Bob Batchelor, a standout all fall, scampered for three touchdowns.

Mark Walinski, Joe Dowd, and Greg Gripentrog also scored for the Lions. Ken Preski quarterbacked the winners.

In addition to the backs, particularly Batchelor and Walinski, other boys who drew plaudits for their work this season were guard and defensive linebacker Bill Griffin, center and linebacker Marty Wendell, and end Bill Mihalek.

St. Viator Cites Gridders, Runners

Vikings In Soph Win At Evanston

note for the Fremd sophomore football team, as the young Vikings whipped an Evanston squad 33-13.

It meant a 2-4-1 record overall for Tom Howard's crew, with the two wins coming in the last three games. Bill McGuinn and Joe Beckley combined in a scoring binge to work out the victory, McGuinn running for two touchdowns and taking a 70-yard pass from Beckley for another, while Beckley also carried the ball over twice. McGuinn added all three points.

But headman Howard also had praise for Larry Anderson, Harold Pratt and Dave Wessner of the offensive unit, and Duane Shipley and Glenn Wilson on defense.

Topples River Rand

Lattof Adds Point To Lead in Classic

After the action of two weeks ago in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League, almost anything that happened last weekend was bound to be anticlimactic.

Although the excitement and the scores were not as high this past week, the gals were back to good, solid competition.

The team standings from last week have not changed one bit and Lattof Chevrolet is still claiming the number one spot with 30 points. They added four points to their total with this week's sweep and are now five full points ahead of second place Striking Lanes which has 25 points.

Wheel Inn is in a tight third, only one point in back of the Laners with 24, with Morton Pontiac sitting in fourth with 17 points. Sylvia's Flowers is only one point behind Morton with 16 and River Rand Bowl continues to be at the bottom of the heap with eight points.

IN GAME competition Lattof Chevrolet gained four points at the expense of the luckless River Rand girls. Peggy Harris and Vi Douglas were the team leaders for Lattof as Peggy rolled a 571 series and Vi had a 549. Peggy had a high game of 211 which was high for the match. Marge Lindenberg rolled a 534 to lead the River Randers and had a 210 high game.

Striking Lanes did battle with Sylvia's Flowers and gained three points for their efforts. Frances Dax with a 534 count was the top gal for the Laners: Eunice Whitmore was the only other bowler to clear the 500 mark for the night in the Lanes—Flowers match and she had a 504 total. For the Flower girls Jean Ladd was again high bowler but her efforts this week were nowhere near the outstanding 664 count of two weeks ago.

Winnie Lohse rolled a 568 total to aid in the Wheel Inn defeat of Morton Pontiac. The Wheelers gained three points in the competition while the Morton gals gained only one. Winnie had a 223 game in her series to have the best game of the match. Delores Harris bowled a 503 to give her support to the Wheel Inn effort.

FOR THE MORTON Pontiac team, two of the girls had good solid series with "Tiny" Davis totaling 530 count and Ruthmary Baurhyte scoring 554. Ruthmary rolled an even 200 game in the opening set to gain that game decision.

Some of the high marks for the year that are worth noting are: High team series honors held by Sylvia's Flowers with 2885. High individual series is held by Jean Ladd who totaled 664. The high team game for the year is owned by Wheel Inn with 957 and high individual game honors are held by Marlene Smith as she dumped the wood to the tune of 254 pins.

The upcoming schedule for Nov. 19th features Morton Pontiac pitted against River Rand Bowl, Striking Lanes meeting Lattof Chevrolet, and Wheel Inn clashing with Sylvia's Flowers.

Or Almost Anyway . . .

It's Back to Normal In Paddock Classic

Maybe it's the phase of the moon or something that is beyond the comprehension of a mere mortal, but the gods that destine the fortunes of bowlers are fickle and not to be understood.

You will remember in our last episode how 20 of the 40 stalwarts of the Paddock Classic Traveling League had rattled the timbers for scores of 600 or better.

But this week, holy gutter ball, only eleven of the keglers were able to eclipse that magic mark.

In fact one of the few things that remains the same after the action last week is the leader in the team standings. Sports Chalet remains in the number one spot by virtue of a five point effort over Karlsen Pharmacy.

AND WOULD YOU believe that only Al Jordan of Bill Cook Buick has been able to maintain a 200 or better game average? Indeed, the forces that guide the hand of the bowler are profound.

In this past weekend's struggles the Brass Rail has moved into the second place spot one point up on Morton Pontiac. Bill Cook Buick, who was last week in second place, has now skidded into fourth and is only one slender point ahead of Karlsen Pharmacy. City Welding jumped from the cellar to the sixth position with a seven point gain at the expense of Elk Grove Bowl.

Jeffery Lanes, last week in the sixth spot, now finds itself in seventh and Elk Grove Bowl has been dumped into the cellar, three points off the next place pace. A total of 21 points separates the first and last place teams.

THERE WAS at least one bright spot in an otherwise average week and that was a 1098 game bowled by the Sports Chalet team. That mark gives them the honor of having scored the second high team game of the season.

George Schmidt, Joe Simonis, and Tom Kouros all of the Sports Chalet team rolled series of 600 or better in their effort over Karlsen Pharmacy. But Ward Siewert and Ernie Koche of Karlsen's countered with twin scores of 655 to keep their team in contention.

The Brass Rail slammed the Buick Boys and gained seven points at the motor men's expense. The Cook team was ice cold as they dropped all games and failed to pick up even one point.

MORTON PONTIAC gained four points over Jeffery Lanes and Ray Olson and Mike Wagner led the way with 608 and 615 series scores respectively. Paul Zubak of Jeffery Lanes had the high series in the match, however, as he scattered the pins for a 632 total, an effort that included 30 clean frames.

Lobby Lobinsky was working his way back to form this week as he claimed a 657 series for the high count of the night. He put a 231 game with twin 213 scores to reap that total. Bob Hurwitz garnered 630 pins for his evening's labors to assist Lobinsky in leading the Welders to their seven point victory.

The Elk Grove Bowlers had a very bad night with only Lou Champa coming near a 600 total.

This Saturday at Thunderbird Bowl will feature Sports Chalet against Jeffery Lanes, The Brass Rail battling City Welding, Bill Cook Buick against Elk Grove Bowl, and Karlsen Pharmacy against Morton Pontiac.

For 1967 Season

Set Reopening Of Meadowdale

Chicago will again become a major auto racing center next May 1 with the reopening of the famous Meadowdale course.

The move was announced last week by William F. Arndt, president of Meadowdale International Raceways, Inc., a newly-formed company which will operate the $3-million plant in nearby Carpentersville.

Arndt, owner of an auto agency in Elgin, heads a group of investors which has secured a five-year lease on the race course, with an option to purchase. In 1965, the last year Meadowdale was open, he served as manager of the track.

Arndt plans immediate expenditures in excess of $300,000 to bring the 3.27-mile track surface up to racing conditions after a year of inaction plus new grandstand, concession and spectator facilities, lighting for night racing and the addition of three new tracks: a one-mile oval, a quarter-mile oval and a quarter-mile drag strip.

"PROFESSIONAL automobile racing drivers have called Meadowdale the finest road track of its kind in the world," Arndt said. "With our new tracks and our greatly improved facilities, we expect to be the most important track of any kind in the Midwest, if not in the United States."

He added that next year Meadowdale will be the scene of a major racing event at least every weekend from May 1 until November 1, with events ranging from professional sports car racing to drag events, motorcycle, midget and go-cart competition.

Meadowdale, which was designed to be the most challenging course ever devised for international competition, was first opened in 1958.

The reason for Meadowdale's popularity, and sometimes fearsome reputation to the uninitiated who encounter it for the first time, is the tremendous demands it places on drivers and machinery. The driver must be prepared on at least four curves to set-up his car for a drift or proper angle through a corner before he can see around it. The 45-degree bank of the Monza wall is seven degrees steeper than its prototype in Monza. Italy.

Meadowdale's straightaway is the longest in the world. Beginning at the one-mile oval, it shoots through the Monza curve and streaks on for a 4,000-foot downhill run, where the hills fall as much as 25 feet per hundred. The temptation here is to pour it on, and drivers have reached 180 miles per hour before being shocked by the first dangerous, short curve.

Arndt said that Meadowdale can comfortably accommodate upwards of 150,000 racing fans and has parking space for at least 20,000 cars. New grandstands will seat an additional 12,000, and pedestrian bridges and underpasses around the track give a wide variety of race-watching sites.

According to Arndt, the decision to reactivate Meadowdale was prompted by the knowledge that, after horseracing, automobile racing is the most popular spectator sport in the United States. More than 30,000,000 Americans paid to see automobile racing during 1965, the last complete year for which statistics are available.

"There are well over 7,000,000 people living less than one hour's drive away from Meadowdale, via the Tri-State Tollway," Arndt said. "Racing interest in this area is so fantastic that we've had as many as 1,000 people come here on recent weekends simply in the hopes that a race was in progress. With this kind of demand, we expect a gross gate next year in excess of $1,000,000."

Topples River Rand

Lattof Adds Point To Lead in Classic

After the action of two weeks ago in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League, almost anything that happened last weekend was bound to be anticlimactic.

Although the excitement and the scores were not as high this past week, the gals were back to good, solid competition.

The team standings from last week have not changed one bit and Lattof Chevrolet is still claiming the number one spot with 30 points. They added four points to their total with this week's sweep and are now five full points ahead of second place Striking Lanes which has 25 points.

Wheel Inn is in a tight third, only one point in back of the Laners with 24, with Morton Pontiac sitting in fourth with 17 points. Sylvia's Flowers is only one point behind Morton with 16 and River Rand Bowl continues to be at the bottom of the heap with eight points.

IN GAME competition Lattof Chevrolet gained four points at the expense of the luckless River Rand girls. Peggy Harris and Vi Douglas were the team leaders for Lattof as Peggy rolled a 571 series and Vi had a 549. Peggy had a high game of 211 which was high for the match. Marge Lindenberg rolled a 534 to lead the River Randers and had a 210 high game.

Striking Lanes did battle with Sylvia's Flowers and gained three points for their efforts. Frances Dax with a 534 count was the top gal for the Laners: Eunice Whitmore was the only other bowler to clear the 500 mark for the night in the Lanes—Flowers match and she had a 504 total. For the Flower girls Jean Ladd was again high bowler but her efforts this week were nowhere near the outstanding 664 count of two weeks ago.

Winnie Lohse rolled a 568 total to aid in the Wheel Inn defeat of Morton Pontiac. The Wheelers gained three points in the competition while the Morton gals gained only one. Winnie had a 223 game in her series to have the best game of the match. Delores Harris bowled a 503 to give her support to the Wheel Inn effort.

FOR THE MORTON Pontiac team, two of the girls had good solid series with "Tiny" Davis totaling 530 count and Ruthmary Baurhyte scoring 554. Ruthmary rolled an even 200 game in the opening set to gain that game decision.

Some of the high marks for the year that are worth noting are: High team series honors held by Sylvia's Flowers with 2885. High individual series is held by Jean Ladd who totaled 664. The high team game for the year is owned by Wheel Inn with 957 and high individual game honors are held by Marlene Smith as she dumped the wood to the tune of 254 pins.

The upcoming schedule for Nov. 19th features Morton Pontiac pitted against River Rand Bowl, Striking Lanes meeting Lattof Chevrolet, and Wheel Inn clashing with Sylvia's Flowers.

Or Almost Anyway . . .

It's Back to Normal In Paddock Classic

Maybe it's the phase of the moon or something that is beyond the comprehension of a mere mortal, but the gods that destine the fortunes of bowlers are fickle and not to be understood.

You will remember in our last episode how 20 of the 40 stalwarts of the Paddock Classic Traveling League had rattled the timbers for scores of 600 or better.

But this week, holy gutter ball, only eleven of the keglers were able to eclipse that magic mark.

In fact one of the few things that remains the same after the action last week is the leader in the team standings. Sports Chalet remains in the number one spot by virtue of a five point effort over Karlsen Pharmacy.

AND WOULD YOU believe that only Al Jordan of Bill Cook Buick has been able to maintain a 200 or better game average? Indeed, the forces that guide the hand of the bowler are profound.

In this past weekend's struggles the Brass Rail has moved into the second place spot one point up on Morton Pontiac. Bill Cook Buick, who was last week in second place, has now skidded into fourth and is only one slender point ahead of Karlsen Pharmacy. City Welding jumped from the cellar to the sixth position with a seven point gain at the expense of Elk Grove Bowl.

Jeffery Lanes, last week in the sixth spot, now finds itself in seventh and Elk Grove Bowl has been dumped into the cellar, three points off the next place pace. A total of 21 points separates the first and last place teams.

THERE WAS at least one bright spot in an otherwise average week and that was a 1098 game bowled by the Sports Chalet team. That mark gives them the honor of having scored the second high team game of the season.

George Schmidt, Joe Simonis, and Tom Kouros all of the Sports Chalet team rolled series of 600 or better in their effort over Karlsen Pharmacy. But Ward Siewert and Ernie Koche of Karlsen's countered with twin scores of 655 to keep their team in contention.

The Brass Rail slammed the Buick Boys and gained seven points at the motor men's expense. The Cook team was ice cold as they dropped all games and failed to pick up even one point.

MORTON PONTIAC gained four points over Jeffery Lanes and Ray Olson and Mike Wagner led the way with 608 and 615 series scores respectively. Paul Zubak of Jeffery Lanes had the high series in the match, however, as he scattered the pins for a 632 total, an effort that included 30 clean frames.

Lobby Lobinsky was working his way back to form this week as he claimed a 657 series for the high count of the night. He put a 231 game with twin 213 scores to reap that total. Bob Hurwitz garnered 630 pins for his evening's labors to assist Lobinsky in leading the Welders to their seven point victory.

The Elk Grove Bowlers had a very bad night with only Lou Champa coming near a 600 total.

This Saturday at Thunderbird Bowl will feature Sports Chalet against Jeffery Lanes, The Brass Rail battling City Welding, Bill Cook Buick against Elk Grove Bowl, and Karlsen Pharmacy against Morton Pontiac.

For 1967 Season

Set Reopening Of Meadowdale

Chicago will again become a major auto racing center next May 1 with the reopening of the famous Meadowdale course.

The move was announced last week by William F. Arndt, president of Meadowdale International Raceways, Inc., a newly-formed company which will operate the $3-million plant in nearby Carpentersville.

Arndt, owner of an auto agency in Elgin, heads a group of investors which has secured a five-year lease on the race course, with an option to purchase. In 1965, the last year Meadowdale was open, he served as manager of the track.

Arndt plans immediate expenditures in excess of $300,000 to bring the 3.27-mile track surface up to racing conditions after a year of inaction plus new grandstand, concession and spectator facilities, lighting for night racing and the addition of three new tracks: a one-mile oval, a quarter-mile oval and a quarter-mile drag strip.

"PROFESSIONAL automobile racing drivers have called Meadowdale the finest road track of its kind in the world," Arndt said. "With our new tracks and our greatly improved facilities, we expect to be the most important track of any kind in the Midwest, if not in the United States."

He added that next year Meadowdale will be the scene of a major racing event at least every weekend from May 1 until November 1, with events ranging from professional sports car racing to drag events, motorcycle, midget and go-cart competition.

Meadowdale, which was designed to be the most challenging course ever devised for international competition, was first opened in 1958.

The reason for Meadowdale's popularity, and sometimes fearsome reputation to the uninitiated who encounter it for the first time, is the tremendous demands it places on drivers and machinery. The driver must be prepared on at least four curves to set-up his car for a drift or proper angle through a corner before he can see around it. The 45-degree bank of the Monza wall is seven degrees steeper than its prototype in Monza. Italy.

Meadowdale's straightaway is the longest in the world. Beginning at the one-mile oval, it shoots through the Monza curve and streaks on for a 4,000-foot downhill run, where the hills fall as much as 25 feet per hundred. The temptation here is to pour it on, and drivers have reached 180 miles per hour before being shocked by the first dangerous, short curve.

Arndt said that Meadowdale can comfortably accommodate upwards of 150,000 racing fans and has parking space for at least 20,000 cars. New grandstands will seat an additional 12,000, and pedestrian bridges and underpasses around the track give a wide variety of race-watching sites.

According to Arndt, the decision to reactivate Meadowdale was prompted by the knowledge that, after horseracing, automobile racing is the most popular spectator sport in the United States. More than 30,000,000 Americans paid to see automobile racing during 1965, the last complete year for which statistics are available.

"There are well over 7,000,000 people living less than one hour's drive away from Meadowdale, via the Tri-State Tollway," Arndt said. "Racing interest in this area is so fantastic that we've had as many as 1,000 people come here on recent weekends simply in the hopes that a race was in progress. With this kind of demand, we expect a gross gate next year in excess of $1,000,000."

Frustrating Season For Falcons' Eleven

by BOB NORDIN

Frustration is a part of any game in which the human element is prominent and football is no exception.

Quite a number of football coaches would concur with that statement, including Bob Scott of Forest View.

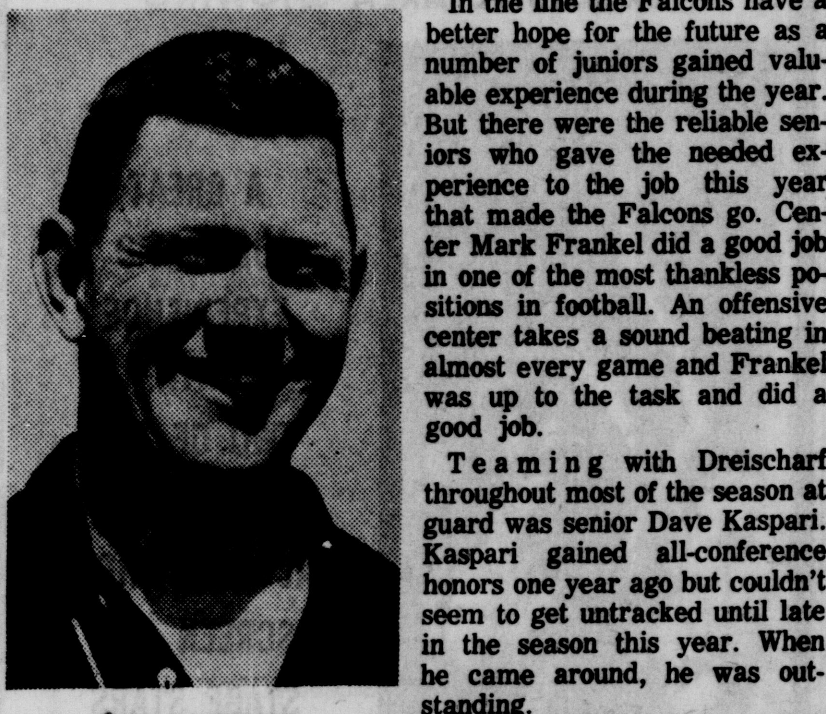
Scott and his Falcons have just suffered through a most discouraging and disappointing season and they finished the season with a 3-3 conference mark and a 3-5 record over all. They placed fourth in the final conference standings, considerably off the mark they had hoped to attain.

PART OF the frustration that Forest View faced this year was caused by the fact that in most instances they outplayed their opponents in statistics but lost on the scoreboard. The "not a matter of win or lose but how you play the game" is mostly for idealists.

In the Mid-Suburban conference the Falcons ranked third in total team offense with 1,598 yards behind co-champions Maine West and Arlington. Their rushing game was most effective throughout the season and gained a total of 1,170 yards which was second only to Maine West.

They showed a strong defense that yielded only an average of 172 yards per game and for the entire season they allowed only 1,033 yards to both passing and rushing. The defense played strong spirited football and is worthy of praise.

THE FALCONS had some boys who were outstanding this season and they had some that were not so spectacular but who did their job from game to game without much recognition. The big man on the Falcon offense this season was hammering Henry Tasche.



BOB SCOTT
Frustrating

Tasche, a 6-1 190 pound senior did an outstanding job against the toughest competition. He was called upon more than anyone in the league as he carried for a total of 98 times in the league and 121 times for the season. He gained a total of 523 yards in MSL play for a 5.3 average and had 598 yards for the season for a 4.9 average.

Tasche is a good college prospect with the size and speed to make it wherever he chooses to go. Besides being an outstanding football player Henry is also an excellent student. He was chosen for all-conference honors this season, and is an all-state candidate.

THE FALCONS placed one other boy on the all-conference team, junior guard Spence Dreischarf. This 5'9, 195 pounder has made great strides in learning a new position as he was shifted to guard this year after playing in the backfield last season.

Dreischarf does an outstanding job at his spot and there are few high school boys that hit harder than Spence. He played both offense and defense during the season and is more than adequate both ways. Dreischarf has another year of high school ball and should be outstanding next year.

There were, of course, others that played well during the year. Senior quarterback Rich Gillespie did a fine job as field general and played an exceptional game of defense for the Falcons. Gillespie is another boy who is a fine student and athlete.

SOME OF THE other boys who saw duty in the backfield during the season were seniors Frank Cavello, Doug Fink, Frank Waslewski, Jeff Jacoby, Denny Lynch, and Bob Arnold. Jacoby was the number two rusher for the Falcons as he carried 60 times for 309 yards and a 5.1 yard average.

In the line the Falcons have a better hope for the future as a number of juniors gained valuable experience during the year. But there were the reliable seniors who gave the needed experience to the job this year that made the Falcons go. Center Mark Frankel did a good job in one of the most thankless positions in football. An offensive center takes a sound beating in almost every game and Frankel was up to the task and did a good job.

Teaming with Dreischarf throughout most of the season at guard was senior Dave Kaspari. Kaspari gained all-conference honors one year ago but couldn't seem to get untracked until late in the season this year. When he came around, he was outstanding.

THE TACKLES on this year's Falcon team were, for the most part, senior LeRoy Stevens and junior Bob Savage. Stevens was consistent and did his job, but Savage is a real bright spot for the Falcon future. This 205 pounder has room to grow and by next year could be extremely tough. He played consistent ball this year and has real desire that could make him great. It is obvious that he likes contact.

The end positions were held down this year by two seniors when the season opened and except for an injury it would have remained that way throughout the year.

Dan Smith did a good job at left end for the Falcons and is a good blocker. His counterpart early in the year was rangy Howie Brasch but Brasch was sidelined midway in the season with a shoulder injury that kept him from being one of the best ends in the area. Even missing half the season he ended up seventh in the league in receptions.

THIS YEAR is ended but next year has some bright spots already. The return of boys like Dreischarf, Savage, Steve Allen, Tony Yungblut, Mike Otto, and Jeff Nordlund as well as others can't help but give a coach a lift.

Boys like Tasche and Gillespie and the other seniors will be missed but a new crop of hopefuls will give the Falcons new hope for a better season.

To worry about this year is senseless. It's over and next season will soon be here.

A BIG ONE that didn't get away. It's a 510-pound bluefin tuna, prize catch of Bensenville's Kenneth Blaesing. It was one of some 400 such big game fish taken on rod and line in the most successful tuna season yet in Newfoundland waters.

Future For Young Team

First Win A Start In Cougar Football

by KEN KNOX

Given a choice, Conant's football players probably would have chosen a different game for their sole varsity victory of 1966.

It's likely—given the premise that they were to win but one game—that they would have extracted considerably more satisfaction out of beating district rival Palatine than they did in handling Prospect.

But the point is that they did beat Prospect—by the margin 14-13 on Oct. 15—and that alone is a hallmark in the chronicle of the football Cougars. It's a hallmark because it's something a Conant football team had never done before: won a varsity football game. And every success that will accrue to the Cougars in the future will be measured from that day.

The success of the Cougars in 1966 is a relative thing, something measured very much from one's point of view. That one victory is huge in its significance at a young school where building—among other things—a football tradition is part of the challenge. But it is also one victory in eight attempts, and by that measuring stick it is a pale achievement.

HEADMAN RON RIO—thrust into the Conant varsity challenge scarcely a month before the season began—has already made it clear that the 1966 effort is not one that will justify the football Cougars in leaning back on their oars. As pleased as he might have been with Victory Number One, his intent is more victories, and it's to that end that he'll be directing himself in succeeding seasons.

There is—based on the performances and some of the individuals of 1966—some cause for optimism about those succeeding seasons. There was, besides the first victory, improvement all around in the Conant offensive performance on the ground and in the air, and there was—more than the one victory—a three-game stretch when the Cougars were threatening to play as the equals to the best in the area.

It began with the third game of the season, when Arlington's unbeaten co-champion Cardinals had to struggle to ultimately tame the Cougars 28-0. There followed a last-minute, 14-7 Homecoming loss to Niles West, a team that finished 7-1 overall and second in the Central Suburban League. And then there was the Prospect win.

BUT THAT SEEMED to be the peak for the Cougars, because after that there came thumpings from Mid-Suburban League powerhouses Wheeling and Maine West, and—perhaps the biggest heartbreak—a 26-7 loss to Palatine in the season finale.

The Cougars did play the year with thin ranks, thin enough that after the first junior varsity game all JV competition was dropped. And they were hurt by injuries, with the first one—that which sidelined for the season veteran halfback Mike Kennedy—probably the most serious. And—with two games to go—disciplinary action against two running backs and the team place-kicker crimped the Cougars even more.

Yet they prefer to talk about the future at Conant, and not what has gone before. And the future—as divined by what has gone before—has a promising tint.

CONANT WILL, as the most obvious example, have back in 1967 its complete starting backfield at this season's end. That alignment—filled out with the switching of Darrel Bork from end to fullback for the last two games—featured junior quarterback Paul Witkowski and the little juniors Mike Berns and Barry Alexa at the halfbacks.

Witkowski, besides benefiting from his first full season of varsity competition, set the Conant standards for passes thrown (120), completed (48), and for the most yards (420).

RON RIO
To Future

And he had a promising relief man in sophomore Larry Sicher.

Berns led the Cougars in two offensive categories, rushing for 259 yards and catching 12 passes for 77 more. Alexa was second to him in rushing and third in pass-catching.

THE TEAM'S second leading pass-receiver—whose 11 catches gave him a team high of 112 yards on receptions—will also be back in the form of Pat O'Malley, and back too will be Jim Carter, a two-way performer whose defensive work was good enough to get him an all-MSL honorable mention nod.

Several of this season's big linemen will be gone, but the returnees there will include Terry Linsky and Hank Wellnitz, a pair of 200-pound-plus tackles who were among the casualties at the conclusion of the campaign.

That so many boys like Witkowski, Sicher, Bork, Berns, Alexa, Carter, O'Malley, Wellnitz and Linsky still have a future at Conant indicates that youth was one of the abundant commodities at Conant this fall. It was—with most of those boys playing offense and defense—one of the team's flaws in the season past. But it can just as surely be one of its strengths in the games to come.

Grove Showed Signs Of Promise in Debut

by BOB NORDIN

The first Elk Grove football season is now history.

To say the least, things could have been better but, then again, they could have been worse.

The Grenadiers, under the direction of coaches Dick Mudge, Bob Walther, and Rich Bader, concluded the season with a 1-5-2 record.

That looks pretty bad when you read it but the trouble with words is that they can't tell the whole story just like that. There is more to the Grovers' first season than their final record and that's the most important part.

In the first place, it should be recognized that in the Grenadiers' initial campaign they were without the aid of any seniors as Elk Grove High School does not have any senior class. When you play a varsity-J.V. schedule, that can make a big difference.

ANOTHER point well worth considering is that Elk Grove suffered from an extremely light turnout of candidates, and depth usually means strength. There were times during the season when Mudge was unable to run full line scrimmage because of lack of personnel.

But the boys who did turn out were there to play football and although they were small they were scrappers. There was never once during the long season when they played dead or gave up. They weren't quitters.

A closer look at that 1-5-2 record is in order as it may be an indicator for the future. That one win over Fremd is important not only in that it kept the Grovers from being a winless team but in that it was a win over a team that was equal to them in personnel.

It was the first and only time during the year that the Grenadiers had met a team that was made up wholly of juniors and underclassmen and Elk Grove took advantage to claim a victory.

THE FIVE in the record is the number of losses suffered by the Grenadiers and all five losses were at the varsity level. Some games were close and some were lopsided but all were against teams that have fielded varsity squads throughout the season.

The Grenadiers also had two ties on their record and these two ties came against teams that were jayvees but that had some senior players on the team So a look at their record in this respect would indicate that they at least held their own against even competition.

A view of the future would hold much more promise. Excluding those who might move out of the area or some other such incident, everyone will be back for next year. They will all have another year of experience under their belts and that will help.

SOME OF THE boys who were starters this year and will be back next year are quarterbacks Jim Veltri and Larry Pahl, backs Chris Gruber and Jim Hoffman as well as John Knopf, center Chuck Raffaelle, guards Dave Wheeler and Mike Ernst, tackles Jim Oplt and Mike McFarland, and ends Roy McClelland and Tom Pomey.

With this nucleus to work with the prospects for the Grenadiers become brighter.

In the case of Elk Grove the often-heard battle cry of the defeated is apropos: "Wait 'til next year!"

Where are Wildcats?

Northwestern's list of All-America gridders through Big Ten history is one of the most lengthy of any school in the conference. However, the Wildcats haven't produced an All-American since Tom Meyers won that honor in 1962.

Wildcat Romps

In 1922, Northwestern's Chuck Palmer ran 105 yards with a recovered fumble, a Big Ten record.

Knight Eleven Faced Four League Champs!

by KEITH REINHARD

If they do anybody any favor when they schedule opponents for football games in the Mid-Suburban League, the powers that be certainly neglected Prospect this year.

Their final record wasn't very impressive. In fact, when the chips were counted, coach Don Williams and crew had an empty bowl to gaze into.

But take any high school grid squad and give them the same eight-game slate offered the Knights and it's doubtful you'd find them setting the world on fire.

Exactly half the teams pitted against Prospect went on to become conference champions. Another Knight opponent played almost well enough to gain league laurels.

THE COMBINED win-loss marks of this impressive lineup of Prospect foes was 34-3-3.

The MSL was in fact so strong that the defending throne holder could fare no better than fifth.

Another opponent came to play Prospect without ever having won and wanting a triumph so bad they could taste it.

"WE WERE HIT pretty hard right at the beginning of the year and never did recover," Williams recounted. He described a situation not unlike that of a boxer caught on the ropes early and then pounded while still in a stunned condition.

"There's no denying that we were beat eight times this year and sometimes pretty soundly," he said, "But the kids never quit trying and never quit believing in themselves."

Injuries took their toll from the first game on, and the ruggedness of the schedule never afforded Prospect a chance to regroup and counter. "Even so," Williams offered, "My biggest request at the beginning of the year was that the men be dedicated to their job and always give the best they could. From this standpoint, it's been a successful season."

THE FINAL standings were actually the only place the Knights didn't have success.

DON WILLIAMS
Rugged Slate

VINCE D. CURRY
Rushing Leader

Several glowing achievements emerged along with a promise of strong improvement next year. Even in team statistical departments Prospect proved better than last.

There was lanky Tom Lundstedt who made a mid-season transformation from quarterback to end with such ease he finished high among the league leaders in receptions. Overall, he claimed 19 of them and earned Prospect hurlers nearly 300 yards.

There was speedy Al Wilcox, who became so proficient at returning kickoffs and punts that opponents started avoiding kicking to him. His season output measured out to 473 yards worth and had the kickoff return department been included in MSL figures, his 23.1 average surely would have headed it.

THERE WAS STEADY Vince Curry who was Prospect's most reliable ground gainer and versatile enough to be called upon by Williams to do everything from kick to catch passes. His 217 total paced the team in both the rushing and total offense categories.

There was elusive Gary Cobe, who also carried the ball well and recorded the team's best rushing average while handling most of Prospect's placement duties.

And there was youth. Possibly a blessing in disguise was the fact that injuries left his varsity roster so lean Williams dipped constantly into the JV ranks for talent. The result was varsity experience for a number of players who will return to the Knight lineup in 1967.

A HEALTHY nucleus for next year will include such veterans as Cobe, Jim Gumz, Butch Leonard, Ken Nehmzow, Joe Martin, Norm Klein, Jeff Snyder, Mike Sanders, Gary Andrews and Maurice Louffel. They undoubtedly will lead Prospect out of the cellar and well up the MSL ladder.

From a statistics viewpoint, Prospect did not show up last in any division. This included everything from total offense and total defense to rushing and passing yardage and even scoring.

Despite the prowess of their combatants, Knight losses were not all by heavy margins either.

PROSPECT OPENED against North Chicago. The Warhawks slipped past the Knights and went on to an undefeated season (7-0-1) and a title in the North Suburban League.

During the next two weeks Prospect was toppled by a strong group from Wheeling which finished 6-2 and Maine West, eventual undefeated co-champions of the MSL.

On the two Saturdays that followed, the Knights were blanked by the defending champs from Palatine and nipped by a previously winless Conant eleven.

Although they traveled to Deerfield subsequently with an 0-5 mark in tow, they still hadn't been beaten decisively up to that point. North Chicago led only 6-0 at the half and worked hard to win 19-0; Wheeling had to bounce back from a 6-0 deficit to win 33-12; Maine barely escaped with a 14-7 triumph; Palatine was held scoreless up until halftime and won only by two touchdowns; And the Cougars squeezed out a 14-13 victory.

DEERFIELD BURIED the Knights. But then, they buried seven other opponents enroute to an 8-0 mark and the Central Suburban League pennant. Arlington also whipped Prospect handily but they too were conference champs at seasons' end and undefeated along the way.

There really wasn't much wind left in Prospect when they closed the season at Forest View. The Knights fought, but it was mostly in retreat.

It was a long, disheartening season for the Knights. Perhaps seeming too long at times for Coach Williams and his assistants. "We know the best formula for forgetting it though," he stated, "That will be a winning season next year."

It could be doubly effective if it fools the powers that be and reduces the number of champions Prospect plays from four to zero. To accomplish this the Knights simply have to win the crown themselves.

Prospect Honors Two Fall Sports

Vince Curry came in for three servings of laurels last week while leading 50 of his teammates up to receive varsity letters at the annual Prospect fall sports awards banquet.

After becoming the only Knight named to the Mid-Suburban League all-conference squad earlier in the day, he was singled out at the fete as the team's most valuable player and named an honorary co-captain of the 1966 squad.

He was joined in the captain ranks by Bob DeStefanis. Both seniors were selected for these positions by a vote of the players.

The ceremonies also included the naming of junior Steve Holmes to captain the 1967 Knight cross country team while he and eight other harriers received varsity letters.

Holmes, who paced Knight runners in all but one of his races this season, was a co-captain of the squad along with another junior, Owen MacBride.

A total of 234 Prospect athletes and managers were recognized. After the ceremonies, Chicago Bear lineman Mike Rabold was the guest speaker.

Varsity cross country letters were won by Dave Baker, Chuck Forbes, Holmes, Tom Long, MacBride, Bruce Oswald, Joe Wilcox, LeRoy Rateike and manager Dick Robinson. (Sp

Entries Accepted For Turkey Trot

Less than one week remains for filing entries in the Fifth Annual Turkey Trot, a tournament of cross country foot races sponsored by the Mount Prospect Jaycees.

The event will take place Thanksgiving morning, November 24, at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

About 150 entries have already been received for this all-weather event from contestants throughout the Chicagoland suburbs and midwest colleges and high schools. Entries may still be obtained from school track coaches or the Mount Prospect Park District office.

The competition will consist of six events: a 60 yard race for girls, age 12-14, with 10 awards; Junior High boys will race a half mile for 15 awards; Frosh-Soph boys run two miles for 15 awards, and Junior-Senior high school boys run the same distance; College men have a four mile contest, with 15 awards, and the "old men" over 28 can race two miles for five awards.

The Turkey Trot is being publicized by school coaches, posters, and news stories. Last year's contest included about 230 contestants and 300 spectators. Spectators are to be treated to the "old-fashioned" nickel cup of coffee.

Fremd's Frosh End Season By Splitting

Fremd's freshman football players closed the 1966 season with a split, losing the "A" game and winning the "B."

The A squad tangled with a team from Elgin junior high, and was blanked 13-0. The team ended its first season with a mark of 1-4-1.

The B team, however, ended a winner with a 27-13 trouncing of Elk Grove. Rich Stocker was the big news of the game, tallying four touchdowns on runs of 35, 60, 30 and 50 yards. Jim Roxworthy added three extra points, and the B unit ended the year at 3-1-1.

Frustrating Season For Falcons' Eleven

by BOB NORDIN

Frustration is a part of any game in which the human element is prominent and football is no exception.

Quite a number of football coaches would concur with that statement, including Bob Scott of Forest View.

Scott and his Falcons have just suffered through a most discouraging and disappointing season and they finished the season with a 3-3 conference mark and a 3-5 record over all. They placed fourth in the final conference standings, considerably off the mark they had hoped to attain.

PART OF the frustration that Forest View faced this year was caused by the fact that in most instances they outplayed their opponents in statistics but lost on the scoreboard. The "not a matter of win or lose but how you play the game" is mostly for idealists.

In the Mid-Suburban conference the Falcons ranked third in total team offense with 1,598 yards behind co-champions Maine West and Arlington. Their rushing game was most effective throughout the season and gained a total of 1,170 yards which was second only to Maine West.

They showed a strong defense that yielded only an average of 172 yards per game and for the entire season they allowed only 1,033 yards to both passing and rushing. The defense played strong spirited football and is worthy of praise.

THE FALCONS had some boys who were outstanding this season and they had some that were not so spectacular but who did their job from game to game without much recognition. The big man on the Falcon offense this season was hammering Henry Tasche.

BOB SCOTT
Frustrating

Tasche, a 6-1 190 pound senior did an outstanding job against the toughest competition. He was called upon more than anyone in the league as he carried for a total of 98 times in the league and 121 times for the season. He gained a total of 523 yards in MSL play for a 5.3 average and had 598 yards for the season for a 4.9 average.

Tasche is a good college prospect with the size and speed to make it wherever he chooses to go. Besides being an outstanding football player Henry is also an excellent student. He was chosen for all-conference honors this season, and is an all-state candidate.

THE FALCONS placed one other boy on the all-conference team, junior guard Spence Dreischarf. This 5'9, 195 pounder has made great strides in learning a new position as he was shifted to guard this year after playing in the backfield last season.

Dreischarf does an outstanding job at his spot and there are few high school boys that hit harder than Spence. He played both offense and defense during the season and is more than adequate both ways. Dreischarf has another year of high school ball and should be outstanding next year.

There were, of course, others that played well during the year. Senior quarterback Rich Gillespie did a fine job as field general and played an exceptional game of defense for the Falcons. Gillespie is another boy who is a fine student and athlete.

SOME OF THE other boys who saw duty in the backfield during the season were seniors Frank Cavello, Doug Fink, Frank Waslewski, Jeff Jacoby, Denny Lynch, and Bob Arnold. Jacoby was the number two rusher for the Falcons as he carried 60 times for 309 yards and a 5.1 yard average.

In the line the Falcons have a better hope for the future as a number of juniors gained valuable experience during the year. But there were the reliable seniors who gave the needed experience to the job this year that made the Falcons go. Center Mark Frankel did a good job in one of the most thankless positions in football. An offensive center takes a sound beating in almost every game and Frankel was up to the task and did a good job.

Teaming with Dreischarf throughout most of the season at guard was senior Dave Kaspari. Kaspari gained all-conference honors one year ago but couldn't seem to get untracked until late in the season this year. When he came around, he was outstanding.

THE TACKLES on this year's Falcon team were, for the most part, senior LeRoy Stevens and junior Bob Savage. Stevens was consistent and did his job, but Savage is a real bright spot for the Falcon future. This 205 pounder has room to grow and by next year could be extremely tough. He played consistent ball this year and has real desire that could make him great. It is obvious that he likes contact.

The end positions were held down this year by two seniors when the season opened and except for an injury it would have remained that way throughout the year.

Dan Smith did a good job at left end for the Falcons and is a good blocker. His counterpart early in the year was rangy Howie Brasch but Brasch was sidelined midway in the season with a shoulder injury that kept him from being one of the best ends in the area. Even missing half the season he ended up seventh in the league in receptions.

THIS YEAR is ended but next year has some bright spots already. The return of boys like Dreischarf, Savage, Steve Allen, Tony Yungblut, Mike Otto, and Jeff Nordlund as well as others can't help but give a coach a lift.

Boys like Tasche and Gillespie and the other seniors will be missed but a new crop of hopefuls will give the Falcons new hope for a better season.

To worry about this year is senseless. It's over and next season will soon be here.

Grove Showed Signs Of Promise in Debut

by BOB NORDIN

The first Elk Grove football season is now history.

To say the least, things could have been better but, then again, they could have been worse.

The Grenadiers, under the direction of coaches Dick Mudge, Bob Walther, and Rich Bader, concluded the season with a 1-5-2 record.

That looks pretty bad when you read it but the trouble with words is that they can't tell the whole story just like that. There is more to the Grovers' first season than their final record and that's the most important part.

In the first place, it should be recognized that in the Grenadiers' initial campaign they were without the aid of any seniors as Elk Grove High School does not have any senior class. When you play a varsity-J.V. schedule, that can make a big difference.

ANOTHER point well worth considering is that Elk Grove suffered from an extremely light turnout of candidates, and depth usually means strength. There were times during the season when Mudge was unable to run full line scrimmage because of lack of personnel.

But the boys who did turn out were there to play football and although they were small they were scrappers. There was never once during the long season when they played dead or gave up. They weren't quitters.

A closer look at that 1-5-2 record is in order as it may be an indicator for the future. That one win over Fremd is important not only in that it kept the Grovers from being a winless team but in that it was a win over a team that was equal to them in personnel.

It was the first and only time during the year that the Grenadiers had met a team that was made up wholly of juniors and underclassmen and Elk Grove took advantage to claim a victory.

THE FIVE in the record is the number of losses suffered by the Grenadiers and all five losses were at the varsity level. Some games were close and some were lopsided but all were against teams that have fielded varsity squads throughout the season.

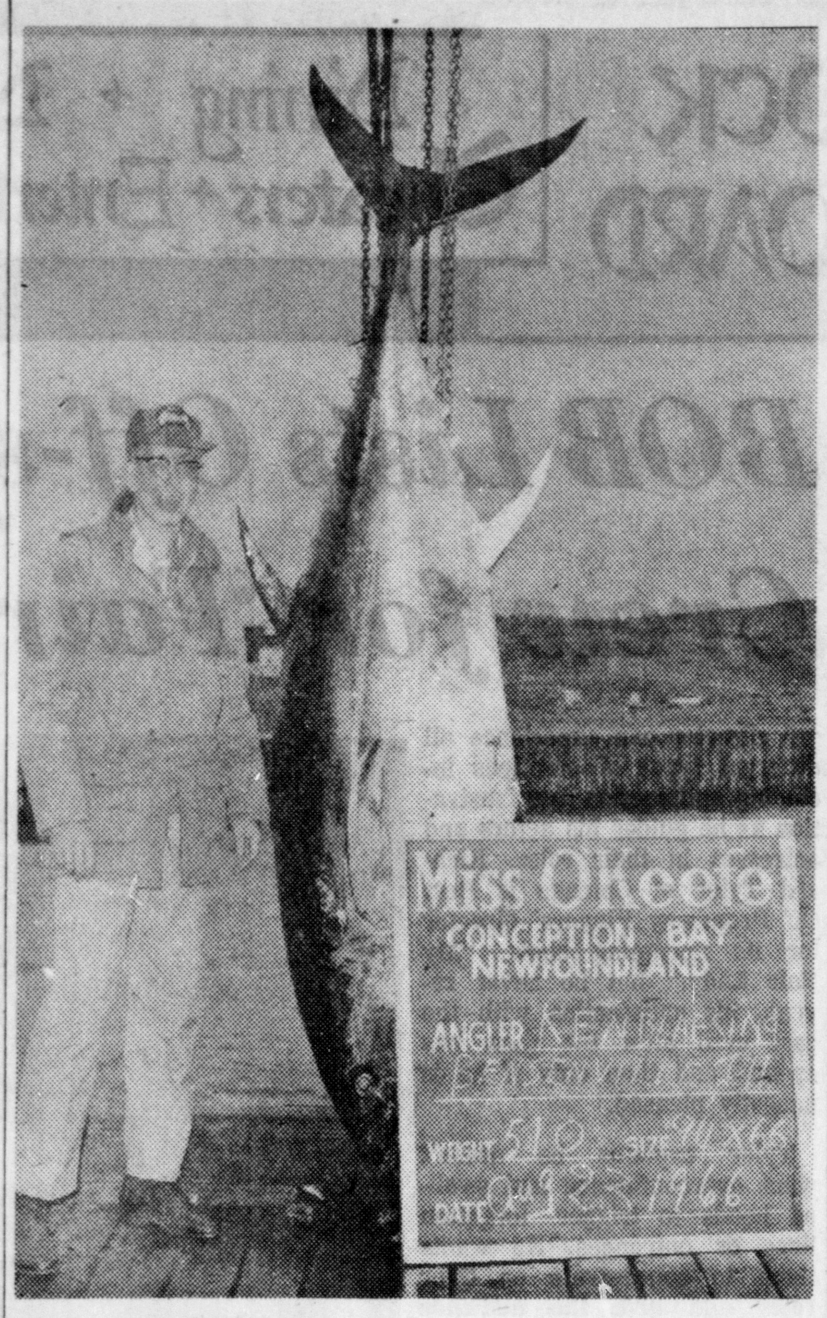
The Grenadiers also had two ties on their record and these two ties came against teams that were jayvees but that had some senior players on the team So a look at their record in this respect would indicate that they at least held their own against even competition.

A view of the future would hold much more promise. Excluding those who might move out of the area or some other such incident, everyone will be back for next year. They will all have another year of experience under their belts and that will help.

SOME OF THE boys who were starters this year and will be back next year are quarterbacks Jim Veltri and Larry Pahl, backs Chris Gruber and Jim Hoffman as well as John Knopf, center Chuck Raffaelle, guards Dave Wheeler and Mike Ernst, tackles Jim Oplt and Mike McFarland, and ends Roy McClelland and Tom Pomey.

With this nucleus to work with the prospects for the Grenadiers become brighter.

In the case of Elk Grove the often-heard battle cry of the defeated is apropos: "Wait 'til next year!"



A BIG ONE that didn't get away. It's a 510-pound bluefin tuna, prize catch of Bensenville's Kenneth Blaesing. Blaesing, former president of that community's chamber of commerce, landed the huge creature on an angling outing in Conception Bay, Newfoundland. It was one of some 400 such big game fish taken on rod and line in the most successful tuna season yet in Newfoundland waters.

Future For Young Team

First Win A Start In Cougar Football

by KEN KNOX

Given a choice, Conant's football players probably would have chosen a different game for their sole varsity victory of 1966.

It's likely—given the premise that they were to win but one game—that they would have extracted considerably more satisfaction out of beating district rival Palatine than they did in handling Prospect.

But the point is that they did beat Prospect—by the margin 14-13 on Oct. 15—and that alone is a hallmark in the chronicle of the football Cougars. It's a hallmark because it's something a Conant football team had never done before: won a varsity football game. And every success that will accrue to the Cougars in the future will be measured from that day.

The success of the Cougars in 1966 is a relative thing, something measured very much from one's point of view. That one victory is huge in its significance at a young school where building—among other things—a football tradition is part of the challenge. But it is also one victory in eight attempts, and by that measuring stick it is a pale achievement.

HEADMAN RON RIO—thrust into the Conant varsity challenge scarcely a month before the season began—has already made it clear that the 1966 effort is not one that will justify the football Cougars in leaning back on their oars. As pleased as he might have been with Victory Number One, his intent is more victories, and it's to that end that he'll be directing himself in succeeding seasons.

There is—based on the performances and some of the individuals of 1966—some cause for optimism about those succeeding seasons. There was, besides the first victory, improvement all around in the Conant offensive performance on the ground and in the air, and there was—more than the one victory—a three-game stretch when the Cougars were threatening to play as the equals to the best in the area.

It began with the third game of the season, when Arlington's unbeaten co-champion Cardinals had to struggle to ultimately tame the Cougars 28-0. There followed a last-minute, 14-7 Homecoming loss to Niles West, a team that finished 7-1 overall and second in the Central Suburban League. And then there was the Prospect win.

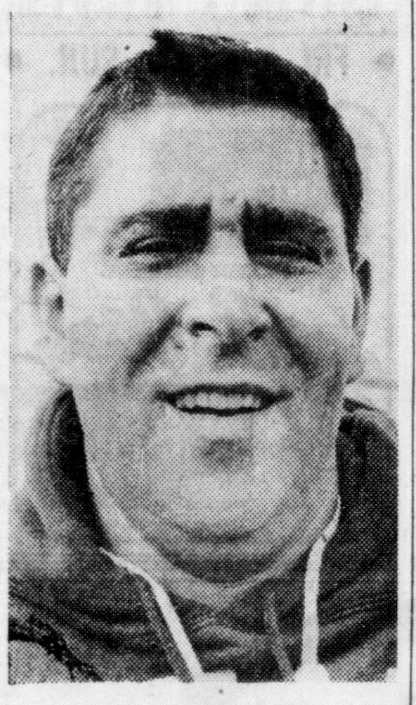
BUT THAT SEEMED to be the peak for the Cougars, because after that there came thumpings from Mid-Suburban League powerhouses Wheeling and Maine West, and—perhaps the biggest heartbreak—a 26-7 loss to Palatine in the season finale.

The Cougars did play the year with thin ranks, thin enough that after the first junior varsity game all JV competition was dropped. And they were hurt by injuries, with the first one—that which sidelined for the season veteran halfback Mike Kennedy—probably the most serious. And—with two games to go—disciplinary action against two running backs and the team place-kicker crimped the Cougars even more.

Yet they prefer to talk about the future at Conant, and not what has gone before. And the future—as divined by what has gone before—has a promising tint.

CONANT WILL, as the most obvious example, have back in 1967 its complete starting backfield at this season's end. That alignment—filled out with the switching of Darrel Bork from end to fullback for the last two games—featured junior quarterback Paul Witkowski and the little juniors Mike Berns and Barry Alexa at the halfbacks.

Witkowski, besides benefiting from his first full season of varsity competition, set the Conant standards for passes thrown (120), completed (48), and for the most yards (420).



RON RIO
To Future

And he had a promising relief man in sophomore Larry Sicher.

Berns led the Cougars in two offensive categories, rushing for 259 yards and catching 12 passes for 77 more. Alexa was second to him in rushing and third in pass-catching.

THE TEAM'S second leading pass-receiver—whose 11 catches gave him a team high of 112 yards on receptions—will also be back in the form of Pat O'Malley, and back too will be Jim Carter, a two-way performer whose defensive work was good enough to get him an all-MSL honorable mention nod.

Several of this season's big linemen will be gone, but the returnees there will include Terry Linsky and Hank Wellnitz, a pair of 200-pound-plus tackles who were among the casualties at the conclusion of the campaign.

That so many boys like Witkowski, Sicher, Bork, Berns, Alexa, Carter, O'Malley, Wellnitz and Linsky still have a future at Conant indicates that youth was one of the abundant commodities at Conant this fall. It was—with most of those boys playing offense and defense—one of the team's flaws in the season past. But it can just as surely be one of its strengths in the games to come.

Where are Wildcats?

Northwestern's list of All-America gridders through Big Ten history is one of the most lengthy of any school in the conference. However, the Wildcats haven't produced an All-American since Tom Meyers won that honor in 1962.

In 1922, Northwestern's Chuck Palmer ran 105 yards with a recovered fumble, a Big Ten record.

Knight Eleven Faced Four League Champs!

by KEITH REINHARD

If they do anybody any favor when they schedule opponents for football games in the Mid-Suburban League, the powers that be certainly neglected Prospect this year.

Their final record wasn't very impressive. In fact, when the chips were counted, coach Don Williams and crew had an empty bowl to gaze into.

But take any high school grid squad and give them the same eight-game slate offered the Knights and it's doubtful you'd find them setting the world on fire.

Exactly half the teams pitted against Prospect went on to become conference champions. Another Knight opponent played almost well enough to gain league laurels.

THE COMBINED win-loss marks of this impressive lineup of Prospect foes was 34-3-3.

The MSL was in fact so strong that the defending throne holder could fare no better than fifth.

Another opponent came to play Prospect without ever having won and wanting a triumph so bad they could taste it.

"WE WERE HIT pretty hard right at the beginning of the year and never did recover," Williams recounted. He described a situation not unlike that of a boxer caught on the ropes early and then pounded while still in a stunned condition.

"There's no denying that we were beat eight times this year and sometimes pretty soundly," he said, "But the kids never quit trying and never quit believing in themselves."

Injuries took their toll from the first game on, and the ruggedness of the schedule never afforded Prospect a chance to regroup and counter. "Even so," Williams offered, "My biggest request at the beginning of the year was that the men be dedicated to their job and always give the best they could. From this standpoint, it's been a successful season."

THE FINAL standings were actually the only place the Knights didn't have success.

DON WILLIAMS

VINCE D. CURRY
Rushing Leader

Several glowing achievements emerged along with a promise of strong improvement next year. Even in team statistical departments Prospect proved better than last.

There was lanky Tom Lundstedt who made a mid-season transformation from quarterback to end with such ease he finished high among the league leaders in receptions. Overall, he claimed 19 of them and earned Prospect hurlers nearly 300 yards.

There was speedy Al Wilcox, who became so proficient at returning kickoffs and punts that opponents started avoiding kicking to him. His season output measured out to 473 yards worth and had the kickoff return department been included in MSL figures, his 23.1 average surely would have headed it.

THERE WAS STEADY Vince Curry who was Prospect's most reliable ground gainer and versatile enough to be called upon by Williams to do everything from kick to catch passes. His 217 total paced the team in both the rushing and total offense categories.

There was elusive Gary Cobe, who also carried the ball well and recorded the team's best rushing average while handling most of Prospect's placement duties.

And there was youth. Possibly a blessing in disguise was the fact that injuries left his varsity roster so lean Williams dipped constantly into the JV ranks for talent. The result was varsity experience for a number of players who will return to the Knight lineup in 1967.

A HEALTHY nucleus for next year will include such veterans as Cobe, Jim Gumz, Butch Leonard, Ken Nehmzow, Joe Martin, Norm Klein, Jeff Snyder, Mike Sanders, Gary Andrews and Maurice Louffel. They undoubtedly will lead Prospect out of the cellar and well up the MSL ladder.

From a statistics viewpoint, Prospect did not show up last in any division. This included everything from total offense and total defense to rushing and passing yardage and even scoring.

Despite the prowess of their combatants, Knight losses were not all by heavy margins either.

PROSPECT OPENED against North Chicago. The Warhawks slipped past the Knights and went on to an undefeated season (7-0-1) and a title in the North Suburban League.

During the next two weeks Prospect was toppled by a strong group from Wheeling which finished 6-2 and Maine West, eventual undefeated co-champions of the MSL.

On the two Saturdays that followed, the Knights were blanked by the defending champs from Palatine and nipped by a previously winless Conant eleven.

Although they traveled to Deerfield subsequently with an 0-5 mark in tow, they still hadn't been beaten decisively up to that point. North Chicago led only 6-0 at the half and worked hard to win 19-0; Wheeling had to bounce back from a 6-0 deficit to win 33-12; Maine barely escaped with a 14-7 triumph; Palatine was held scoreless up until halftime and won only by two touchdowns; And the Cougars squeezed out a 14-13 victory.

DEERFIELD BURIED the Knights. But then, they buried seven other opponents enroute to an 8-0 mark and the Central Suburban League pennant. Arlington also whipped Prospect handily but they too were conference champs at seasons' end and undefeated along the way.

There really wasn't much wind left in Prospect when they closed the season at Forest View. The Knights fought, but it was mostly in retreat.

It was a long, disheartening season for the Knights. Perhaps seeming too long at times for Coach Williams and his assistants. "We know the best formula for forgetting it though," he stated, "That will be a winning season next year."

It could be doubly effective if it fools the powers that be and reduces the number of champions Prospect plays from four to zero. To accomplish this the Knights simply have to win the crown themselves.

Prospect Honors Two Fall Sports

Vince Curry came in for three servings of laurels last week while leading 50 of his teammates up to receive varsity letters at the annual Prospect fall sports awards banquet.

After becoming the only Knight named to the Mid-Suburban League all-conference squad earlier in the day, he was singled out at the fete as the team's most valuable player and named an honorary co-captain of the 1966 squad.

He was joined in the captain ranks by Bob DeStefanis. Both seniors were selected for these positions by a vote of the players.

The ceremonies also included the naming of junior Steve Holmes to captain the 1967 Knight cross country team while he and eight other harriers received varsity letters.

Holmes, who paced Knight runners in all but one of his races this season, was a co-captain of the squad along with another junior, Owen MacBride.

Varsity cross country letters were won by Dave Baker, Chuck Forbes, Holmes, Tom Long, MacBride, Bruce Oswald, Joe Wilcox, LeRoy Rateike and manager Dick Robinson. (Sp

Entries Accepted For Turkey Trot

Less than one week remains for filing entries in the Fifth Annual Turkey Trot, a tournament of cross country foot races sponsored by the Mount Prospect Jaycees.

The event will take place Thanksgiving morning, November 24, at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

About 150 entries have already been received for this all-weather event from contestants throughout the Chicagoland suburbs and midwest colleges and high schools. Entries may still be obtained from school track coaches or the Mount Prospect Park District office.

The competition will consist of six events: a 60 yard race for girls, age 12-14, with 10 awards; Junior High boys will race a half mile for 15 awards; Frosh-Soph boys run two miles for 15 awards, and Junior-Senior high school boys run the same distance; College men have a four mile contest, with 15 awards, and the "old men" over 28 can race two miles for five awards.

The Turkey Trot is being publicized by school coaches, posters, and news stories. Last year's contest included about 230 contestants and 300 spectators. Spectators are to be treated to the "old-fashioned" nickel cup of coffee.

Fremd's Frosh End Season By Splitting

Fremd's freshman football players closed the 1966 season with a split, losing the "A" game and winning the "B."

The A squad tangled with a team from Elgin junior high, and was blanked 13-0. The team ended its first season with a mark of 1-4-1.

The B team, however, ended a winner with a 27-13 trouncing of Elk Grove. Rich Stocker was the big news of the game, tallying four touchdowns on runs of 35, 60, 30 and 50 yards. Jim Roxworthy added three extra points, and the B unit ended the year at 3-1-1.

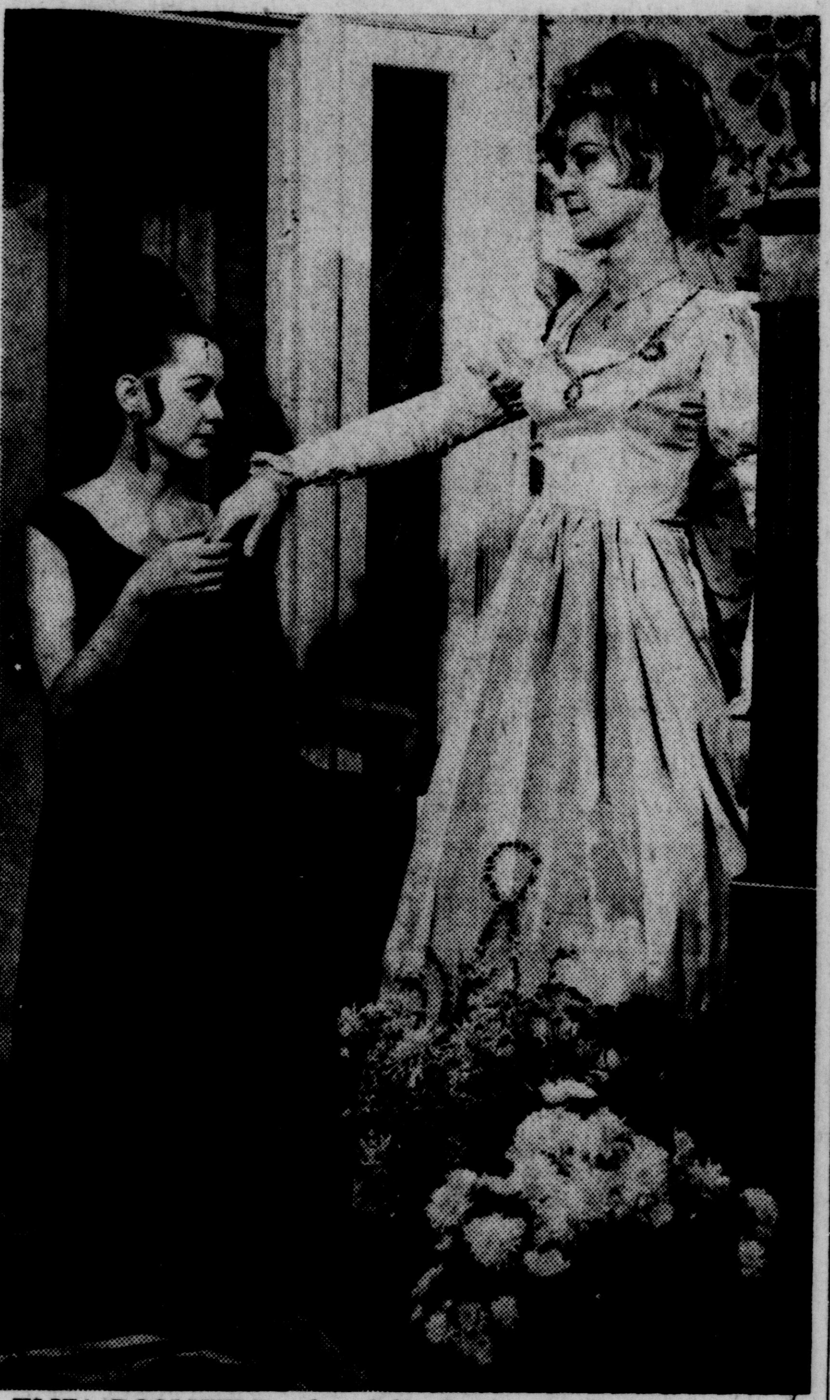
BOB Lists Off-stage Crew for 'Fair Lady'

A director can experience all different types of emotions including satisfaction and frustration as he guides his actors and actresses in their roles. Richard Tyler of Chicago is Best Off Broadway Players' director for its upcoming show, "My Fair Lady," but he never reveals his satisfaction with the cast until after the show has opened and then only if he is honestly pleased.

Tyler explains he doesn't want overconfidence and swelled heads to trigger forgotten lines or entrances. He wants them to concentrate on their roles and give the audience what he believes the audience deserves, an actor's best.

Next in line to the director for having the largest bottle of "aspirin" is the producer, and BOB'S is Dick Moderhack, 1416 E. Campbell, Arlington Heights. Assembling the staff and overseeing them is an awesome task. Moderhack and his staff have been working for weeks getting Lerner and Loewe's musical ready for the stage.

THE DESIGNER for the eye-catching sets is John Muraski of Bensenville, and Jerry Weiss of Wauconda is head of the committee constructing the sets. Set decorations are in the hands of Laurnell Martin, 1609 N. Yale, Arlington Heights.



ELIZA DOOLITTLE, played by Sandra Grabowski of Prospect Heights, left, catches the attention of the queen, Jeanna Tucker of Mount Prospect, in this scene from the Best Off Broadway Players' forthcoming production of "My Fair Lady."

A few costumes will be rented but the rest have been designed by Diane Scherer, 802 W. Milburn, Mount Prospect. Her committee has sewn them and "a few fingers, too," says Mrs. Scherer.

In charge of props is Fran Pitchford, 1014 N. Mitchell, Arlington Heights. Larry Garland, Des Plaines, has the job of lighting, sound and special effects while Larae Biesterfeld of Barrington will handle lighting design.

HOW WILL THE cast look on stage under lights? That is the responsibility of Sara Levin, 300 Highland Blvd., Hoffman Estates, in charge of make-up. Louise Szydlo of Barrington is creating the elaborate hairdos as well as the unkempt look of the cockney "ladies."

Martha Brayton, Cary, again is handling tickets. Jerry Butz, 2401 S. Rohlwing Road, Palatine, and Ted Weiss, 435 Birchwood, Elk Grove Village, are assembling the playbill that will be distributed the nights of the show.

BOB's photographer is Chuck Edwards of Elgin, and he's seen frequently on stage in a role.

Stage manager for "My Fair Lady" is Rick Janda, 320 S. Dale, Arlington Heights, and publicity has been taken care of by Lynn Dohrenwend, Barrington.

"My Fair Lady" will be presented at Wheeling High School Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 26 and 27 and Dec. 3 and 4. Tickets are available through Mrs. Dohrenwend, 381-6187. (Bill

Guild Players Tryouts Nov. 20

Readings for Guild Players' next play, "A Man for All Seasons," will be held Sunday, Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Church of the Cross on Route 72, Hoffman Estates.

The cast of this drama, based on Sir Thomas More and his times in English history, calls for 11 men and three women. Victor Simone, resident director for Guild Players, said this includes one girl about 18 to 20 years old for the part of Sir Thomas' daughter.

Readings are open to the public. Backstage workers also are needed. Play rehearsals will begin in January, with performances slated for March. (Bill

'Anne of a Thousand Days' A Triumph for Theatre Guild

By JOAN REDDY

For dramatic effect, plays are usually populated by people larger than life. And when your main character is Henry VIII, a man who while living was larger than life, you may find yourself with a casting problem.

Such was the case with Des Plaines Theatre Guild when it chose "Anne of the Thousand Days" for its second play of the season. But the problem becomes a triumph with the fine performance of Bob Keenan as the monarch. Keenan is an actor who knows how to take center stage and he does not easily relinquish it. As the king who lives and loves lustily, the grand gestures, the bounding walk are all incorporated into his characterization.

But Henry is a king who knows that his country is deserving of and he is capable of being a much better ruler. And Keenan is equally effective in the eloquent moments of the monarch's introspection.

THIS MAXWELL Anderson play is the story of the thousand days when Henry and Anne Boleyn lived together in a love that shook a country, a religion and a world.

Anne herself is no small character, and again the Guild triumphs in casting. Edith Wilson, as Anne, doesn't have to worry about playing in Keenan's shadow. She brings a great deal of richness to a much more complex role than that of the king. And the haughty cast of her fine profile is reason enough to explain why Henry feels he must have her.

The scenes between Henry and Anne are marked by the kind of electricity of which theater is supposed to be made.

WITH TWO SUCH performers who can fill out the flesh and blood of the characters, director Arnold Nelson is able to stage his production so that the performers can be viewed in the broader scope of history as well.

Working with the gothic-arched set of Bill Levander and Levander's and Jim Beall's lighting design, he is able to pose his figures as in a historical tableau. Wisely, he does this only when his performers have the competence to generate action from within. Nelson moves the less talented cast members about in more traditional blocking.

Another device used by Nelson to create the aura of history is the absence of the curtain and the moving of the sparse furnishings by a crew dressed as pages — all reminiscent of early theater.

IT IS ALMOST axiomatic that with large casts, community theater is not able to come up with a cast roster of completely professional performances. This is true in this production as well. But in the pivotal roles the acting continues strong.

Ed Sauer, one of the Des Plaines Guild's stalwarts, comes through with a sympathetic understanding of the role of the pragmatic Cardinal Wolsey. In his last scene, where he is supposed to be enfeebled, Sauer faults a little on the physical weakness, but the spiritual feebleness is all there.

Other performances are those of Harold Terchin as the machiavellian Thomas Cromwell and Robert Connelly as Sir Thomas More. Connelly deserves particular notice because of the conviction this high school boy is able to put into the role of the middle-aged philosopher. It takes the program notes to discover the age disparity.

JOAN SPATAFORA and Ann Shalla give quiet assurance to minor roles as members of the Boleyn family.

As Anne's first real love, Jim Curren lacks the dash and strength to win a woman such as Anne. But he demonstrates steady improvement over appearances last season.

Accents are almost always a problem in little theater productions. Director Nelson wisely lets those that can do, and lets the cast members who find the British cadence difficult, drop it. This play is no place for burlesque imitations.

One of the nice things about the Des Plaines Theatre Guild is that it often chooses plays that are off the usual path of little theater repertory. "Anne of the Thousand Days" is an excellent example.

THIS MAY NOT be one of Anderson's greatest, but it is a good, representative work of a playwright who has contributed a great deal to American theater. True theater buffs should be grateful to the Guild for an opportunity to view it in a good production.

"Anne of the Thousand Days" will run again at the Guild Playhouse tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday and the following weekend, Nov. 25 and 26. (Bill

Writes, Stages Own Children's Ballet

The hopes of a Streamwood ballet instructor that young people should be able to dance new and exciting roles has led her to a part-time career as choreographer, producer and director.

The woman is Gudrun Jacobi, author and director of "A Little Girl's Dream," which will be presented at 8 p.m. Dec. 3 and 4 at Tefft Junior High Auditorium, Streamwood.

Miss Jacobi, in addition to doing the choreography, will narrate the four-act ballet.

AUTHOR OF several original ballets, Miss Jacobi says that her work in this field came as a result of her belief that children should not have to compete with professionals by performing the world's more widely-known ballets.

Her desire, however, to give young people the experience of an actual performance gave birth to this ballet which tells the story of a little girl's daydream in which she becomes a world traveling prima ballerina.

Born in Berlin, Germany, Miss Jacobi began her formal training at 3½ and studied under some of Europe's master teachers. She performed in Berlin and elsewhere across the continent.

HER TEACHING career got its start when she was asked to instruct the children of American personnel stationed in Berlin. These contacts later led her to the United States where she continued with her teaching.

Miss Jacobi operates the Streamwood Ecole de Ballet Dance Center at 130 Timer Trail. Prior to coming to Streamwood she had locations in Chicago and Park Ridge.

Costumes for the show were designed by Beatrice Blume and are being made by mothers of the cast who also are constructing props and selling tickets for the two performances.

'Anne of a Thousand Days' A Triumph for Theatre Guild

By JOAN REDDY

For dramatic effect, plays are usually populated by people larger than life. And when your main character is Henry VIII, a man who while living was larger than life, you may find yourself with a casting problem.

Such was the case with Des Plaines Theatre Guild when it chose "Anne of the Thousand Days" for its second play of the season. But the problem becomes a triumph with the fine performance of Bob Keenan as the monarch. Keenan is an actor who knows how to take center stage and he does not easily relinquish it. As the king who lives and loves lustily, the grand gestures, the bounding walk are all incorporated into his characterization.

But Henry is a king who knows that his country is deserving of and he is capable of being a much better ruler. And Keenan is equally effective in the eloquent moments of the monarch's introspection.

THIS MAXWELL Anderson play is the story of the thousand days when Henry and Anne Boleyn lived together in a love that shook a country, a religion and a world.

Anne herself is no small character, and again the Guild triumphs in casting. Edith Wilson, as Anne, doesn't have to worry about playing in Keenan's shadow. She brings a great deal of richness to a much more complex role than that of the king. And the haughty cast of her fine profile is reason enough to explain why Henry feels he must have her.

The scenes between Henry and Anne are marked by the kind of electricity of which theater is supposed to be made.

WITH TWO SUCH performers who can fill out the flesh and blood of the characters, director Arnold Nelson is able to stage his production so that the performers can be viewed in the broader scope of history as well.

Working with the gothic-arched set of Bill Levander and Levander's and Jim Beall's lighting design, he is able to pose his figures as in a historical tableau. Wisely, he does this only when his performers have the competence to generate action from within. Nelson moves the less talented cast members about in more traditional blocking.

Another device used by Nelson to create the aura of history is the absence of the curtain and the moving of the sparse furnishings by a crew dressed as pages — all reminiscent of early theater.

IT IS ALMOST axiomatic that with large casts, community theater is not able to come up with a cast roster of completely professional performances. This is true in this production as well. But in the pivotal roles the acting continues strong.

Ed Sauer, one of the Des Plaines Guild's stalwarts, comes through with a sympathetic understanding of the role of the pragmatic Cardinal Wolsey. In his last scene, where he is supposed to be enfeebled, Sauer faults a little on the physical weakness, but the spiritual feebleness is all there.

Other performances are those of Harold Terchin as the machiavellian Thomas Cromwell and Robert Connelly as Sir Thomas More. Connelly deserves particular notice because of the conviction this high school boy is able to put into the role of the middle-aged philosopher. It takes the program notes to discover the age disparity.

JOAN SPATAFORA and Ann Shalla give quiet assurance to minor roles as members of the Boleyn family.

As Anne's first real love, Jim Curren lacks the dash and strength to win a woman such as Anne. But he demonstrates steady improvement over appearances last season.

Accents are almost always a problem in little theater productions. Director Nelson wisely lets those that can do, and lets the cast members who find the British cadence difficult, drop it. This play is no place for burlesque imitations.

One of the nice things about the Des Plaines Theatre Guild is that it often chooses plays that are off the usual path of little theater repertory. "Anne of the Thousand Days" is an excellent example.

THIS MAY NOT be one of Anderson's greatest, but it is a good, representative work of a playwright who has contributed a great deal to American theater. True theater buffs should be grateful to the Guild for an opportunity to view it in a good production.

"Anne of the Thousand Days" will run again at the Guild Playhouse tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday and the following weekend, Nov. 25 and 26. (Bill

Ballet to Perform With NW Symphony

The Illinois Ballet Company and the Northwest Symphony Orchestra will join forces to open the Orchestra's 15th season with a presentation of Delibes ballet "Coppelia" Sunday Nov. 27, at 3:30 p.m.

The concert will be given in the Maine East High School auditorium, Dempster and Potter Roads, Park Ridge. Also on the program will be a performance of Liszt's "Les Preludes."

Organized in 1958, the Illinois Ballet Company is a not-for-profit corporation whose purposes are to provide a showcase for the talented dancers, choreographers, designers and musicians of the Midwest and to bring to the audiences of the Midwest the finest that these talented people have to offer.

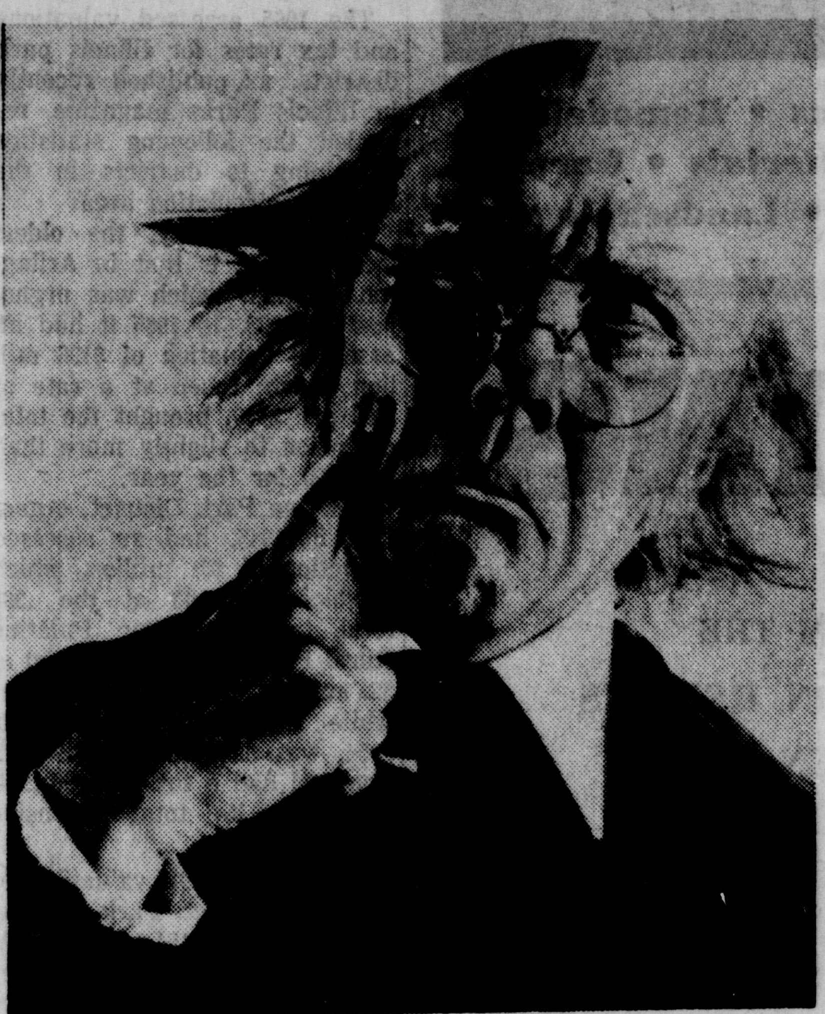
The performing group, ranging in size from an ensemble of eight to a full-scale company of 20 or more dancers, includes veterans of nationally known touring companies such as Ballet Russe and young dancers at the start of their professional careers.

THE FOUNDERS and co-directors of the Illinois Ballet Company are Richard Ellis and his wife, Christine Du Boulay.

Ellis, a veteran performer by his early teens, joined the small struggling Vic-Wells Ballet of London in 1933 and shared in its climb to fame as the Sadler's Wells Ballet.

Miss Du Boulay danced with England's International Ballet until she joined the Sadler's Wells Ballet in 1946. She brings both teaching and production skills to the Illinois Ballet Company.

Dom Orejudos, associate director, is resident choreographer and a principal dancer of the Company. A professional artist before taking up ballet, Orejudos has designed the sets and costumes for many of his more than 20 ballets. (Bill



RICHARD ELLIS, co-director of the Illinois Ballet Company will appear as the cantankerous Dr. Coppelius in "Coppelia," the ballet portion of the Sunday, Nov. 20, concert of Northwest Symphony Orchestra at Maine East High School.

Violinist to Open Concert Season

Michael Rabin, who at 16 already had captured world attention with his mastery of the violin, will open the Arlington Heights Community Concert Association's season with a concert at the Arlington Theatre Monday at 8 p.m.

Now 28, Rabin has the reputation of being the most traveled American violin virtuoso performing before the public today. He has traveled more than 500,000 miles and performed 11 concert tours of Europe, two of Australia and toured Israel, New Zealand, Rhodesia and South Africa.

The young violinist was among a handful of youthful musicians chosen by the Ford Foundation to have a new work commissioned for his instrument. Rabin chose Paul Creston to compose the work, his Violin Concerto No. 2, first performed by the symphony orchestras of Los Angeles and Seattle.

Among critics who have praised his talent and performance, Claudia Cassidy of the Chicago Tribune said: "His is a prodigious talent, inborn and instinctive, and age has nothing to do with such talent. Rabin is essentially what he will always be, and that is the mark of the artist. It is the indefinable stamp of individual quality.

"You can't fake it, and you can't explain it, and in the realm of magnetic musical attraction, you can't get to first base without it."

Rabin's father is a professional violinist, and his mother has been on the piano faculty of the Julliard School of Music for many years. He began the study of piano at five and the violin two years later. His orchestral debut was with the National Orchestral Association at the age of 13.

Persons wishing more information about the Community Concert Association may call Mrs. Zonzius, CL 3-6377, or Mrs. Vogeney, CL 9-4425.

GARDENING TIPS

Your Garden . . .
Day by Day

FROM THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS GARDEN CLUB

by MARY B. GOOD

November 17

A "tree leaf casserole" sounds offbeat, but may be the food of the future! To cope with the world's ever-growing population, research scientists may devise a spray to treat plants so that their leaves would contain much protein, one of food's most essential elements. This unlimited supply of food would revolutionize present-day agriculture.

November 18

Your plants are only as good as the soil they are grown in. Grey clay under black surface soil is a warning of poor drainage.

November 19

Soils that contain too much clay become chunky clods of hardpan, which block the flow of water and restrict root growth.

November 20

The ideal soil contains about 75 per cent clay, sand and silt, 20 per cent moisture and 5 per cent humus or organic matter.

November 21

The Arlington Heights Garden Club's artistic workshop for tonight (Monday) is "Arrangements for the Holidays" and ought to be a bonanza of decorating ideas. Pioneer Park, 7:30 p.m.

November 22

Start thinking in terms of outdoor lighting and decorating! A prize-winning Christmas display takes a lot of pre-planning. The Arlington Heights Garden Club is sponsoring a house decorating contest, Yuletide '66, for residents, with very nice prizes in the offing. More on this later . . .

November 23

Wooden flower boxes, with the exception of redwood containers, rot unless cleaned for the winter and stored in a dry place. And frost action may crack or split a container if left out all during the freezy season.

For Palatine Rural Park District, assessed at $22 million, no levy was made; while Inverness, organized in 1954, was assessed at $3.9 million and had a tax rate of .084, to make its total extension $3,353.

THE ASSESSED valuation for Mount Prospect Park District last year was $154.4 million. At a .252 rate, this produced $389,227 for the district, which was organized in 1955. Prospect Meadows, organized the same year, had a $2.1 million valuation, a .100 rate, and $2,191 as its total tax extension.

Rolling Meadows Park District began operation in 1958 and last year had an assessed valuation of $27.9 million which, at a .328 tax rate, extended to $91,819.

Wheeling's district, six years old, was valued at $37.2 million in 1965. Its rate was .206, which amounted to $76,780. Schaumburg, organized in 1963, had a $30.1 million valuation and no levy; while Hoffman Estates, which originated in 1964, had a $34 million valuation, taxed at .150, for $51,001.

River Trails, organized just last year, was valued at $35.9 million. The tax rate was .150, netting the district $53,918. For Streamwood and Elk Grove park districts — the first organized in 1965 and the other this year — no figures are given.

Three districts in this area have property in both Cook and DuPage Counties. Bensenville Park District, which started in 1960, was assessed at $58.9 million last year and had a rate of .104, for an extension of $61,257. The other two, organized in 1964, are Bartlett, with a $8.4 million valuation which produced $8,492 at the .100 rate; and Hanover Park, assessed at $12.8 million, where the .144 rate extended to $18,465.

OTHER PARK districts in this part of DuPage County are of fairly recent origin. Organized in 1964 were Bloomingdale, which last year showed a valuation of $10.7 million and a tax rate of .080, amounting to $8,587; Carol Stream, valued at $19.4 million, taxed at a .130 rate, producing $25,225; Itasca, assessed at $17 million, with an .080 levy extending to $13,614; and Medinah, assessed value $15.6 million, rate .130, and income $20,351.

The Roselle Park District, just a year old, had an assessed valuation of $17.2 million which, at a rate of .095, produced $16,355.

Figures for the Cook County districts were furnished by the office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett. Others were taken from abstracts on file in the Property Tax Division of the State Department of Revenue.

GARDENING TIPS

FROM THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS GARDEN CLUB

Your Garden . . .
Day by Day

by MARY B. GOOD

November 17

A "tree leaf casserole" sounds offbeat, but may be the food of the future! To cope with the world's ever-growing population, research scientists may devise a spray to treat plants so that their leaves would contain much protein, one of food's most essential elements. This unlimited supply of food would revolutionize present-day agriculture.

November 18

Your plants are only as good as the soil they are grown in. Grey clay under black surface soil is a warning of poor drainage.

November 19

Soils that contain too much clay become chunky clods of hardpan, which block the flow of water and restrict root growth.

November 20

The ideal soil contains about 75 per cent clay, sand and silt, 20 per cent moisture and 5 per cent humus or organic matter.

November 21

The Arlington Heights Garden Club's artistic workshop for tonight (Monday) is "Arrangements for the Holidays" and ought to be a bonanza of decorating ideas. Pioneer Park, 7:30 p.m.

November 22

Start thinking in terms of outdoor lighting and decorating! A prize-winning Christmas display takes a lot of pre-planning. The Arlington Heights Garden Club is sponsoring a house decorating contest, Yuletide '66, for residents, with very nice prizes in the offing. More on this later . . .

November 23

Wooden flower boxes, with the exception of redwood containers, rot unless cleaned for the winter and stored in a dry place. And frost action may crack or split a container if left out all during the freezy season.

Area Park District Tax Rates Reported

The 1965 assessed valuations and tax rates for Illinois park districts, as published recently in Illinois Parks magazine, revealed the following statistics pertaining to districts in the Paddock circulation area:

In Cook County, the oldest local district is that in Arlington Heights, which was organized in 1925. In 1965 it had an assessed valuation of $136 million which, taxed at a rate of .300 per $100, brought the total extension to slightly more than $408,000 for the year.

Palatine Park District, organized in 1945, had an assessed valuation of $51 million, which produced $152,000 at the .298 total tax rate. For Palatine Rural Park District, assessed at $22 million, no levy was made; while Inverness, organized in 1954, was assessed at $3.9 million and had a tax rate of .084, to make its total extension $3,353.

THE ASSESSED valuation for Mount Prospect Park District last year was $154.4 million. At a .252 rate, this produced $389,227 for the district, which was organized in 1955. Prospect Meadows, organized the same year, had a $2.1 million valuation, a .100 rate, and $2,191 as its total tax extension.

Rolling Meadows Park District began operation in 1958 and last year had an assessed valuation of $27.9 million which, at a .328 tax rate, extended to $91,819.

Wheeling's district, six years old, was valued at $37.2 million in 1965. Its rate was .206, which amounted to $76,780. Schaumburg, organized in 1963, had a $30.1 million valuation and no levy; while Hoffman Estates, which originated in 1964, had a $34 million valuation, taxed at .150, for $51,001.

Although it may appear to be a physical chore, it is a refreshing way to bid farewell to the lawn and garden 'til next spring.

The many lovely trees that flourish in the Northwest Suburbs are part of the natural beauty that surrounds the communities with shade, color and charm, and raking the leaves is as much a part of gracious home-owning as washing the windows, to see the pleasant views more clearly.

Sit Back, Relax and Have a Dream House

THE WORLD ... of Real Estate

One would think the time was just about here when the ultimate dream house was available. Maybe it is, in your case, but there are still millions of people who want the newest of the new, in materials, in design, in gadgetry. Who would have thought, as recently as a year or two ago, that we'd be carpeting the outdoors, and leaving the outdoor carpet under the snow in winter?

I don't think there is an ultimate. Houses will keep improving, and a quarter of a century from now I would not be surprised if we've advanced as far as we have from the coal stove and the icebox. Let's have a look at our possible future.

There's a real possibility that the nail will vanish. Can you imagine gluing a house together? Adhesives are getting better and better, and there would be real advantages in using glue instead of nails. Glue might make for better weather-proofing, and would certainly eliminate squeaky floors and stairs. In addition, glue could speed up house building tremendously.

Plastic water pipes in a house would curb noise, and they would not sweat. They would be cheaper and easier to install because you'd simply bend them instead of going through all the threading processes. Building codes would have to change of course, but we're dreaming now, so anything goes.

One out of five new houses is prefabricated already, and most builders buy ready-made window and door frames, trusses, etc. But why not use factory-produced walls delivered with plumbing and wiring installed? They're coming, and so are prefabricated brick walls, and combined sub-flooring and finished hardwood floor, all in one chunk.

Most new houses will eventually combine furnace, air-conditioner, dehumidifier, electronic air cleaner, and automatic hot water heater in a single unit. And an electricity-operated unit power rates are low, release the heat during peak hours when the unit is turned off, to save power costs.
will be available that will store up heat during the night when

Kitchens? Changes are as sure as seasons. Automatic plastic dishmakers will come, most likely. So will tiny incinerators on clothes dryers to burn up accumulated lint, and small incinerators to burn trash right in the kitchen. Plug-in gas appliances are almost inevitable. So are refrigerators made like drawers and cabinets. Electric wallpaper? Why not? Just the thing to heat and light the kitchen, or other rooms for that matter.

A fibre glass house? You could spin it, in different shapes and colors, and such a house would never deteriorate or have dark corners. It wouldn't need painting ever, just a quick washing. It would even be its own insulation. And as long as we're being super-modern, why bother at all with lumber, brick, or stone? Why not use more aluminum, plastics, cork, steel? Not to mention pre-stressed concrete, which has been used for ages in exciting office buildings, bridges, and the like.

Will you excuse me a moment? My iced tea needs cooling. Who took the ice pick? It was right on top of the ice box.

Q. - If I have a mortgage on my property, am I the real owner of the property or does the bank own it until I pay off the mortgage? S.L.J.

A. - You are the owner. Under the lien theory, the mortgagor is regarded as the real owner, and the mortgage is looked upon as a lien, that is, a claim, against the property. In some states the title theory is used. This theory as contrasted to the lien theory provides that the mortgage is a deed, absolute in its form, but providing that it shall be null and void if, at the time appointed, the mortgagor repays the loan. The mortgage operates as a transfer of the legal title of the property to the mortgagee, and the mortgagor can get back his legal title upon payment of the loan.

Changes in Real Estate Use Told

Significant changes are ocurring in real estate use, and great new values are being created throughout the nation, Robert A. Gans, Jr., Seattle, president of the Institute of Real Estate Management, said.

Speaking before the annual convention of the Mississippi Association of Realtor Boards, Gans discussed the many new concepts in real estate that have developed over the last 10 years. IREM is an affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"Banks are sponsoring new office buildings throughout the country," he declared. Wells Fargo and the Bank of America in San Francisco, First National Bank of Chicago, and Seattle First National Bank, are just a few of the banks, both large and small, which are entering the building sponsorship area, he added.

"THE LEASING of air rights is another example of imaginative real estate use. The Pan Am Building, built over Grand Central Station in New York City, has 2½ million square feet of office space. At an $8-per-square-foot rental, it is enjoying a nearly 100 per cent occupancy."

Another "exciting" new concept in real estate is the condominium, he added. Honolulu, Chicago, New York, Washington and many other large cities are enjoying a population growth with the advent of this type of owned apartment.

In addition, new or satellite cities are springing up throughout the country, Gans pointed out.

"One vast new real estate project is Columbia City, Md.," he said. Fifteen thousand acres of land are being purchased and developed by the James Rouse Co. of Baltimore. They are spending $25 million on the land alone. This long-range real estate program has many interesting implications which America should watch so that these fascinating new ideas may be used elsewhere, he added. (RE

Sit Back, Relax and Have a Dream House

THE WORLD ... of Real Estate

One would think the time was just about here when the ultimate dream house was available. Maybe it is, in your case, but there are still millions of people who want the newest of the new, in materials, in design, in gadgetry. Who would have thought, as recently as a year or two ago, that we'd be carpeting the outdoors, and leaving the outdoor carpet under the snow in winter?

I don't think there is an ultimate. Houses will keep improving, and a quarter of a century from now I would not be surprised if we've advanced as far as we have from the coal stove and the icebox. Let's have a look at our possible future.

There's a real possibility that the nail will vanish. Can you imagine gluing a house together? Adhesives are getting better and better, and there would be real advantages in using glue instead of nails. Glue might make for better weather-proofing, and would certainly eliminate squeaky floors and stairs. In addition, glue could speed up house building tremendously.

Plastic water pipes in a house would curb noise, and they would not sweat. They would be cheaper and easier to install because you'd simply bend them instead of going through all the threading processes. Building codes would have to change of course, but we're dreaming now, so anything goes.

One out of five new houses is prefabricated already, and most builders buy ready-made window and door frames, trusses, etc. But why not use factory-produced walls delivered with plumbing and wiring installed? They're coming, and so are prefabricated brick walls, and combined sub-flooring and finished hardwood floor, all in one chunk.

Most new houses will eventually combine furnace, air-conditioner, dehumidifier, electronic air cleaner, and automatic hot water heater in a single unit. And an electricity-operated unit power rates are low, release the heat during peak hours when the unit is turned off, to save power costs.

will be available that will store up heat during the night when

Kitchens? Changes are as sure as seasons. Automatic plastic dishmakers will come, most likely. So will tiny incinerators on clothes dryers to burn up accumulated lint, and small incinerators to burn trash right in the kitchen. Plug-in gas appliances are almost inevitable. So are refrigerators made like drawers and cabinets. Electric wallpaper? Why not? Just the thing to heat and light the kitchen, or other rooms for that matter.

A fibre glass house? You could spin it, in different shapes and colors, and such a house would never deteriorate or have dark corners. It wouldn't need painting ever, just a quick washing. It would even be its own insulation. And as long as we're being super-modern, why bother at all with lumber, brick, or stone? Why not use more aluminum, plastics, cork, steel? Not to mention pre-stressed concrete, which has been used for ages in exciting office buildings, bridges, and the like.

Will you excuse me a moment? My iced tea needs cooling. Who took the ice pick? It was right on top of the ice box.

Q. - If I have a mortgage on my property, am I the real owner of the property or does the bank own it until I pay off the mortgage? S.L.J.

A. - You are the owner. Under the lien theory, the mortgagor is regarded as the real owner, and the mortgage is looked upon as a lien, that is, a claim, against the property. In some states the title theory is used. This theory as contrasted to the lien theory provides that the mortgage is a deed, absolute in its form, but providing that it shall be null and void if, at the time appointed, the mortgagor repays the loan. The mortgage operates as a transfer of the legal title of the property to the mortgagee, and the mortgagor can get back his legal title upon payment of the loan.

Changes in Real Estate Use Told

Significant changes are ocurring in real estate use, and great new values are being created throughout the nation, Robert A. Gans, Jr., Seattle, president of the Institute of Real Estate Management, said.

Speaking before the annual convention of the Mississippi Association of Realtor Boards, Gans discussed the many new concepts in real estate that have developed over the last 10 years. IREM is an affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Plum Grove Village Offers Adult Living

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Skoglund of 2 Cheviot on Duxbury, Plum Grove Village, Rolling Meadows, looked many places, even as far away as Florida, to find a home. A little over a year ago, one of their married daughters saw an ad about adult living which told of Plum Grove Village in Rolling Meadows. It didn't take much convincing for the Skoglunds to realize within 12 miles of their home in Park Ridge, was the answer.

The Skoglunds had lived in two homes in Park Ridge prior to moving to Plum Grove. After their three daughters were married they found their first house was too large for just the two of them. They then moved into a smaller ranch style home on a corner, but then Skoglund became tired of putting up storm windows, painting, cutting grass, raking leaves and shoveling snow. Little time was left for the couple's many other pursuits.

THEIR WHOLE way of life changed when they moved to Plum Grove Village which is designed in the tradition of English countryside. Here they found amenities and comforts of a home plus conveniences of an apartment. Skoglund pointed out when they leave for the day or travel to Florida for a couple of months they never worry about the house. The lawn and exterior of the home are cared for and the interior checked. This he said is important as several winters ago while they were away, the electric power for the furnace failed in their home causing water to freeze and crack pipes. This is what put them on a search for a better way to live.

Unlike a condominium, Plum Grove Village is laid out in village form—only 80 homes in clusters of four assuring privacy, a feature Mrs. Skoglund enjoys. Between the clusters are landscaped lawns, with trees, winding roads and a lagoon. Each home has an enclosed patio positioned for maximum sunlight in the summer and a private road leads to each group of four homes. Each home and lot under it is owned by the individual.

ANOTHER FACTOR of importance to the Skoglunds is the quick access they have to Chicago and other suburbs, via the expressways located several miles south of their home.

Mrs. Skoglund cites the size and number of rooms in their home as another important feature—large living room and dining room, two large bed rooms, two baths, all electric heat, central air conditioning and a two car attached garage.

Plum Grove Village is located on Kirchoff Road at Plum Grove Road. (RE

THEIR WHOLE way of life changed when they moved to Plum Grove Village which is designed in the tradition of English countryside. Here they found amenities and comforts of a home plus conveniences of an apartment. Skoglund pointed out when they leave for the day or travel to Florida for a couple of months they never worry about the house. The lawn and exterior of the home are cared for and the interior checked. This he said is important as several winters ago while they were away, the electric power for the furnace failed in their home causing water to freeze and crack pipes. This is what put them on a search for a better way to live.

Unlike a condominium, Plum Grove Village is laid out in village form—only 80 homes in clusters of four assuring privacy, a feature Mrs. Skoglund enjoys. Between the clusters are landscaped lawns, with trees, winding roads and a lagoon. Each home has an enclosed patio positioned for maximum sunlight in the summer and a private road leads to each group of four homes. Each home and lot under it is owned by the individual.

ANOTHER FACTOR of importance to the Skoglunds is the quick access they have to Chicago and other suburbs, via the expressways located several miles south of their home.

Mrs. Skoglund cites the size and number of rooms in their home as another important feature—large living room and dining room, two large bed rooms, two baths, all electric heat, central air conditioning and a two car attached garage.

Plum Grove Village is located on Kirchoff Road at Plum Grove Road. (RE

Ballentrae Delivers First Buyers' Homes

Meritex Corp. announced the start of homes to be delivered to customers in Ballantrae, a new subdivision in the Arlington Hills addition of Buffalo Grove. The model village, completed and opened last August, is located on Arlington Heights Road, just north of Dundee Road and has four furnished models priced from $20,000 to $30,000. More than 40 homes have already been sold in the subdivision that will consist of more than 800 homes upon completion.

The first of the four models is the Dunedin, with 2,800 square foot, four bedroom, split foyer and a two-car garage. The Traemoor, also with split foyer, has 2,000 square feet of living space with three bedrooms and a recreation area. The Carlisle is a 1,856 square foot three bedroom tri-level including a large recreation area in the lower level. The fourth and largest of the four new models is the two-story Stonekirk. It has 1,862 square feet of living space with four bedrooms and 2½ baths.

ALL OF THE models at Ballantrae are available in a wide range of architectural styles that are intended to offer the home buyer a home designed to suit his own personal tastes, and to encourage a varied appearance of each home in the neighborhood. These architectural styles are varied because of a large range from one to another in the roof design of the homes. These roof styles are A contemporary design based A Norman styled roof with no overhang, but a very high pitch, gives an air of height and stateliness to the home. The fourth major style being used is a French Colonial design Mansard roof.

This style scales the upper level of the home down so that on a hip roof with broad, overhanging eaves, creates an illusion of length to the home. colonial, a gable end design with an early American feeling. the home has a ground-hugging appearance and features large overhangs above the windows, with the windows themselves set away from the inner wall of the house, creating a large window seat below each window of the home. All of the roofs are finished out with box-type gutters. The homes are available with a great variety and selection of custom appointments that may be added to the basic home, such as finished lower levels for the split foyer and bi-level models, breezeways and one car or two-car garages, built-in kitchens, basements and a choice of tile, oak parquet or carpeting as floor finishes.

This range of custom features, according to Leonard W. Besinger, Jr., president of Meritex Corp., are made available to the home buyer in the belief that a home must be specifically suited to the individual home buyer's personal taste and budget.

The models will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

SELF ANALYSIS QUIZ

Do You Have The Art Of Keeping Friends?

By Jane Sherrod Singer

Some people go through life knowing many people but having very few real friends. Others collect true friendships like velvet collects lint. This is not a matter of "breaks" or "luck" or "attractiveness" or "worldly goods". It requires sincerity, personality and a sense of responsibility. Here are some situations. Check the answer that is nearest to the way you would behave. (We used masculine pronouns, but these situations apply to women also).

1. You know a very funny story on one of your friends. You would:
   a. tell it to others.
   b. omit names and tell it.
   c. keep it to yourself.
2. A friend often borrows things, but never returns them. Now he wants to borrow some expensive tools. You would:
   a. let him have them.
   b. say you don't have them.
   c. refuse and explain the reason why.
3. A friend accidentally breaks your watch. You would:
   a. say you wanted a new one anyway.
   b. ask him to pay for it.
   c. refuse to let him replace it, but scold him for carelessness.
4. A friend has been going with someone you don't like. You would:
   a. stop seeing your friend.
   b. say nothing and continue your friendship.
   c. tell him he will have to choose between the two of you.
5. You feel certain a friend is heading for trouble. You would:
   a. break with him to avoid possible involvement.
   b. have a heart-to-heart talk with him.
   c. continue your friendship as usual.

SCORING: For each situation, give yourself the following points for the answer you gave:

1: a-1, b-2,c-3; 2: a-1, b-1, c-3; 3: a-3, b-2, c-1; 4: a-2, b-3, e-1; 5: a-1, b-3, c-2.

ANALYSIS:

11 to 15 points: No wonder you have such good friends. You may not have an army of them, but the ones you have trust and admire you. You can be sure they will be there when and if you ever need them.

8 to 10 points: You have friends, of course, but, like most of us you sometimes forget to be understanding. When in doubt, put yourself in the other fellow's place.

5 to 7 points: You tend to be far more interested in yourself than in others. This places a wall between you and true friendship. You use people for your own advantage whenever you can, which is not a basis for mutual respect, a prerequisite for lasting friendship.

No matter where you're from you'll like Ballantrae better. The old addresses of our first 40 home buyers (in less than 3 months) indicate that Ballantrae's homes and community have not only a local and national appeal; but, considering the family from Rotterdam, Holland, an international appeal.

Families living in the northwest suburbs know value in their area when they see it. Many of our buyers are selling their present home to move to nearby Ballantrae. We certainly have national approval, too, evidenced by families from White Plains, New York to Omaha, Nebraska. Families that transfer jobs or move into an area are quite selective, since they will not buy immediately unless they find exactly what they are looking for.

International approval as well! Maybe it was the continental flavor of the Ballantrae Designs that attracted the folks from Rotterdam to live in Ballantrae. They bought our DUNEDIN model with a Mansard roof (shown here). A true French Colonial design, it has four bedrooms, 2 baths, dining room, pantry-kitchen and offers 2800 square feet of living space including the huge lower level recreation area and two-car garage. The price including all closing costs and carpeting too, is $27,820.

Homes for customer delivery are now under construction. 6% FHA financing, with a down payment as low as $1,600, is available at Ballantrae where "tight money" is no problem.

Drive out today with the family. Ballantrae is located on Arlington Heights Road just north of Dundee Road (Rte. 68).

International approval as well! Maybe it was the continental flavor of the Ballantrae Designs that attracted the folks from Rotterdam to live in Ballantrae. They bought our DUNEDIN model with a Mansard roof (shown here). A true French Colonial design, it has four bedrooms, 2 baths, dining room, pantry-kitchen and offers 2800 square feet of living space including the huge lower level recreation area and two-car garage. The price including all closing costs and carpeting too, is $27,820.

Homes for customer delivery are now under construction. 6% FHA financing, with a down payment as low as $1,600, is available at Ballantrae where "tight money" is no problem.

Drive out today with the family. Ballantrae is located on Arlington Heights Road just north of Dundee Road (Rte. 68).

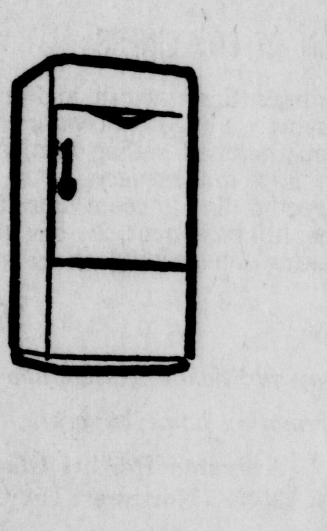
than a bunch of dust catchers taking up valuable storage space around your home?



Take the attic, for instance. There's that old chair... still sturdy, but never used any more...

and the stove you replaced years ago...

and the trunk Dad took to college...

and Junior's old typewriter...

and in the basement...

wash tubs you haven't used since you got your automatic...

the bicycle no one has ridden in ages...

that old croquet set...

and the radio that hasn't been turned on since TV.

There's probably a lot more, too ... all of it in good condition...

WOULDN'T YOU RATHER HAVE MONEY...

than a bunch of dust catchers taking up valuable storage space around your home?

Take the attic, for instance. There's that old chair... still sturdy, but never used any more...

and the stove you replaced years ago...

and the trunk Dad took to college...

and Junior's old typewriter...

and in the basement...

wash tubs you haven't used since you got your automatic...

the bicycle no one has ridden in ages...

that old croquet set...

and the radio that hasn't been turned on since TV.

There's probably a lot more, too ... all of it in good condition...

"But who wants it?" you say!

Someone does want it... and they're looking for it in Paddock Publications Want Ads.

SELF ANALYSIS QUIZ

What Your Handwriting Tells About You

By Jane Sherrod Singer

Although handwriting analysis cannot be called a precise science, various experts have agreed that certain types of writing indicate definite personal characteristics. Take this test yourself and then try it on your friends.

1. Write several sentences, one under each other, trying to include most of the letters of the alphabet. Be sure to write in the style and speed as you usually do.
2. Make an (x) mark if your writing has the following characteristics:
   a. You are prone to use dashes.
   b. You tend to make letters with loops below the line with a single line rather than a full loop.
   c. You generally make the loops of letters below the line with a heavy stroke.
   d. Your capital letters are generally made with sharp, angular strokes.
   e. The bottom loop of your letters is quite rounded.
   f. Your capital letters are embellished with flourishes.
   g. Make a capital N. Is the second or third stroke higher than the leading stroke?
   h. All letters in your words are connected, approximately the same size and neat.
   i. Your writing tends to be abnormally large and angular with many peaks.
   j. Are the last letters of your words a trifle larger than the first?

ANALYSIS:

a. The constant use of dashes, particularly those of varying length tend to indicate an aggressive personality.
b. If you do not finish your loops below the line, but use only a single straight stroke, you are the conservative type.
c. If your loops below the line is heavy, you are a determined and sturdy soul.
d. If your capital letters are bold and angular, you are blessed with a keen and searching mind.
e. Full-rounded loops of letters, such as f and g, indicate a full-living, fun-loving, out-going personality.
f. Capital letters that are extravagantly elaborate probably mean that you are also.
g. If the second or third stroke is higher than the first, look out for your nerves and erratic characteristics.
h. An even flow of letters of approximately the same size shows you have a logical, well-arranged personality and life.
i. Large angular writing tends to show an excited, enthusiastic person.
j. It is an honest man who will finish each word with letters that grow in size.

SELF ANALYSIS QUIZ

What Your Handwriting Tells About You

By Jane Sherrod Singer

Although handwriting analysis cannot be called a precise science, various experts have agreed that certain types of writing indicate definite personal characteristics. Take this test yourself and then try it on your friends.

1. Write several sentences, one under each other, trying to include most of the letters of the alphabet. Be sure to write in the style and speed as you usually do.
2. Make an (x) mark if your writing has the following characteristics:
    a. You are prone to use dashes.
    b. You tend to make letters with loops below the line with a single line rather than a full loop.
    c. You generally make the loops of letters below the line with a heavy stroke.
    d. Your capital letters are generally made with sharp, angular strokes.
    e. The bottom loop of your letters is quite rounded.
    f. Your capital letters are embellished with flourishes.
    g. Make a capital N. Is the second or third stroke higher than the leading stroke?
    h. All letters in your words are connected, approximately the same size and neat.
    i. Your writing tends to be abnormally large and angular with many peaks.
    j. Are the last letters of your words a trifle larger than the first?

ANALYSIS:

a. The constant use of dashes, particularly those of varying length tend to indicate an aggressive personality.
b. If you do not finish your loops below the line, but use only a single straight stroke, you are the conservative type.
c. If your loops below the line is heavy, you are a determined and sturdy soul.
d. If your capital letters are bold and angular, you are blessed with a keen and searching mind.
e. Full-rounded loops of letters, such as f and g, indicate a full-living, fun-loving, out-going personality.
f. Capital letters that are extravagantly elaborate probably mean that you are also.
g. If the second or third stroke is higher than the first, look out for your nerves and erratic characteristics.
h. An even flow of letters of approximately the same size shows you have a logical, well-arranged personality and life.
i. Large angular writing tends to show an excited, enthusiastic person.
j. It is an honest man who will finish each word with letters that grow in size.

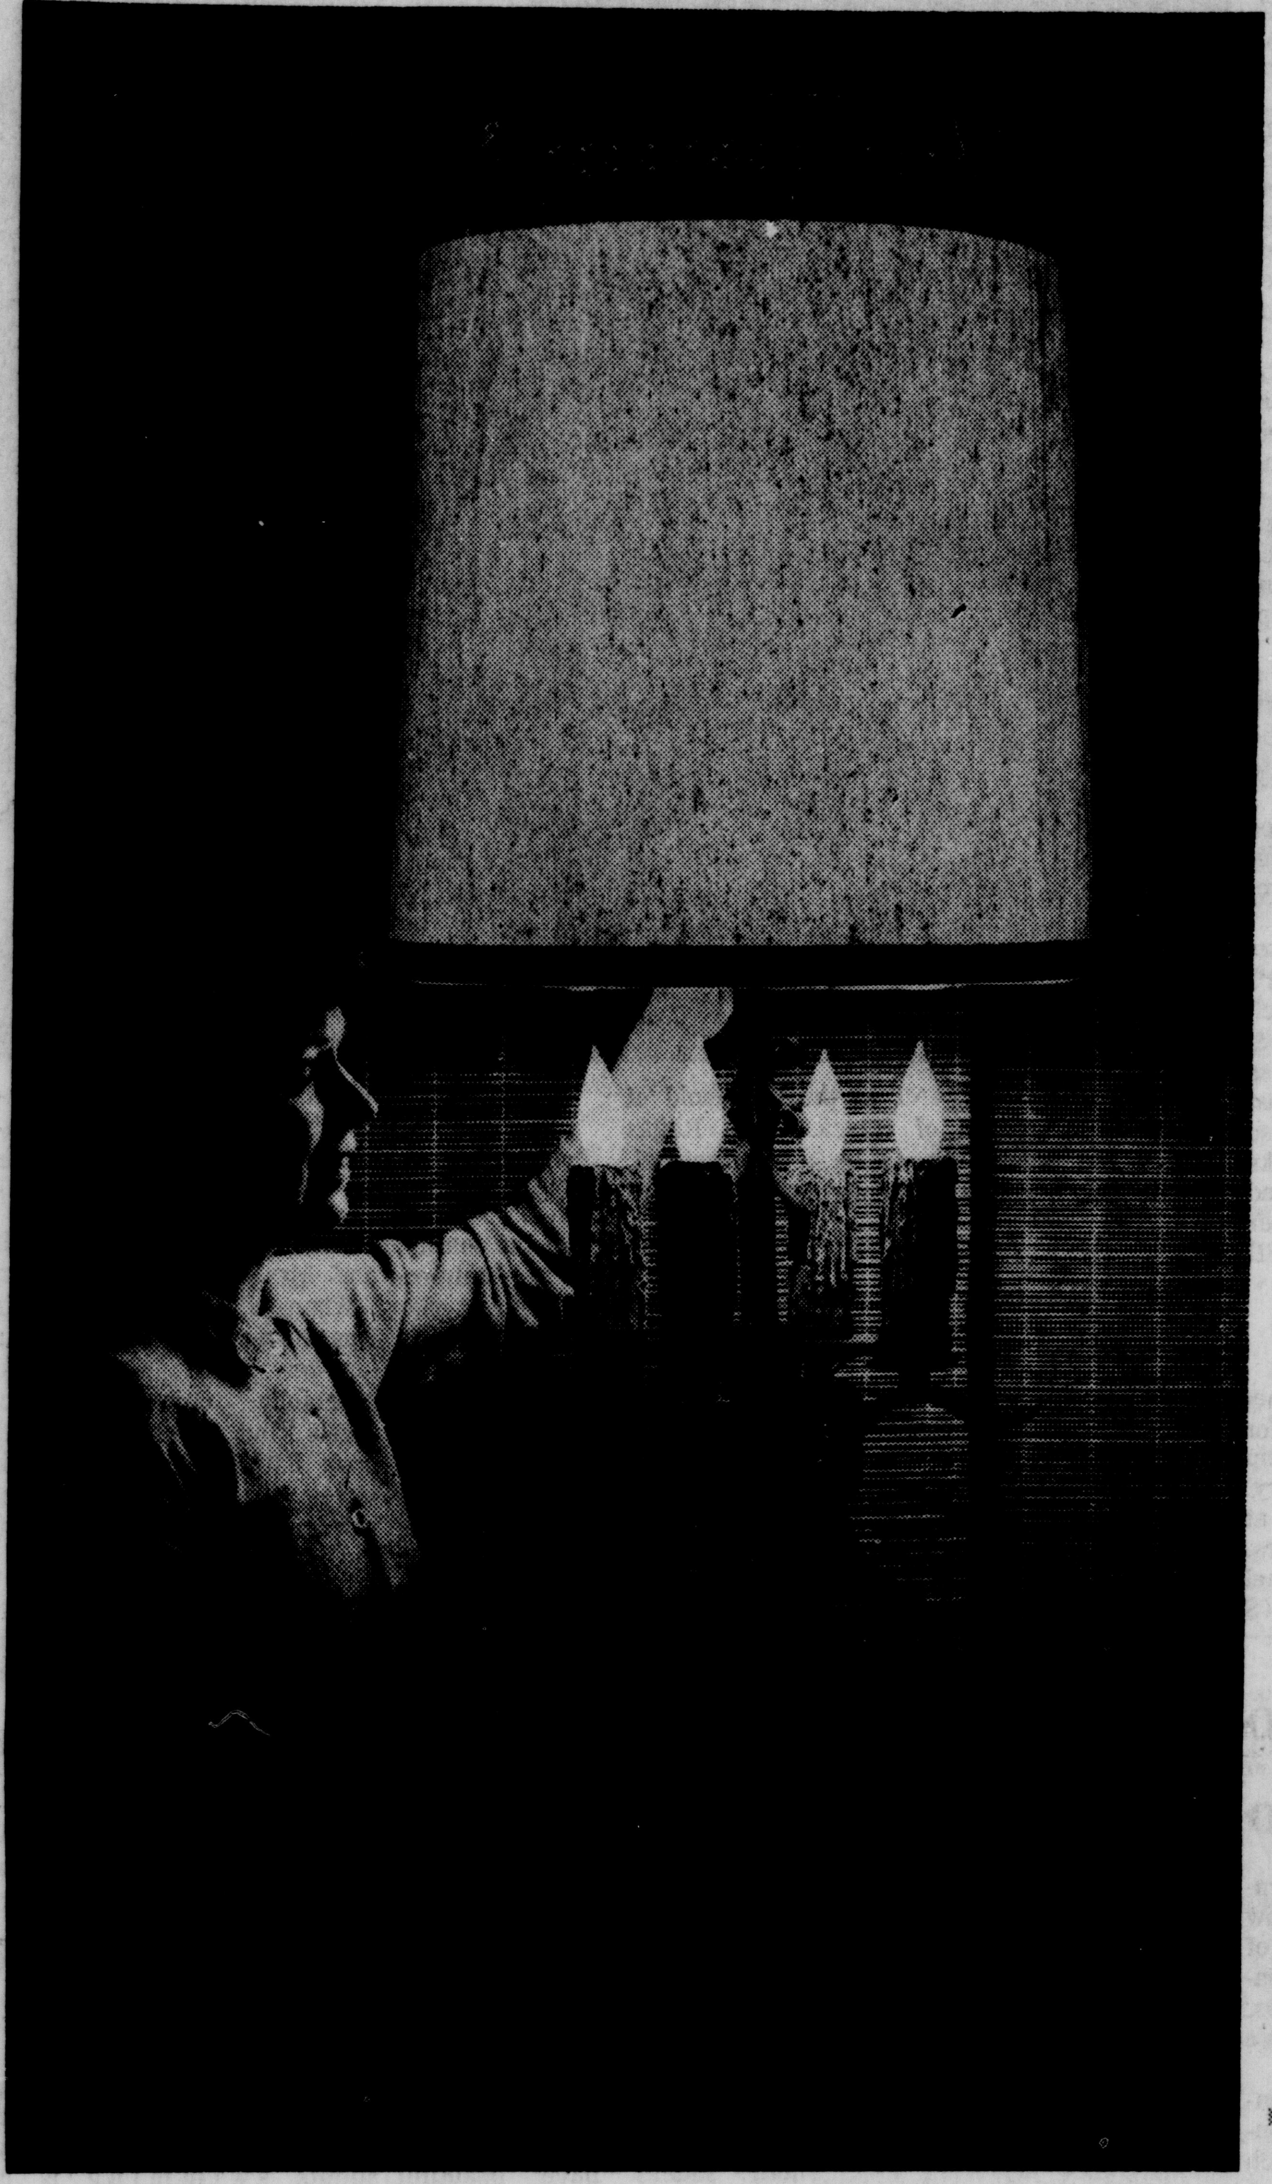
There's Magic In Lamps

by BILLIE BACHHUBER



TODAY'S HOMEMAKER can find most any kind of lamp she wants for lamp manufacturers are realizing the home decorator desires something more than light from her lamp. This Mediterranean-styled lamp is currently a favorite. Decorators advise women to mix as well as match different styles so long as they blend. The main thing is to like what you buy.

From the time Aladdin rubbed his tarnished lamp, the magic of lamps has held out intriguing possibilities. Women long have been aware of the flattery of the soft, diffused lighting created by candles and lights turned down low.

Lamp manufacturers, too, finally have realized that the homemaker is interested in something other than merely lighting up a dark corner.

Lamps of widely varied design and function now are available to the home decorator. There is something in lamps for almost every need and purpose whether it is strictly functional as a reading lamp or an elegant conversation piece purchased purely for admiration and enjoyment.

THIS IS the space age, the age of innovation, so don't be afraid to experiment. Decorators refer to this new idea, which isn't really new at all, as the "eclectic" look. This means simply that you choose from more than one system or style.

It is suggested that you mix and match different styles and periods, something housewives have been doing for years, more from necessity than preference. There are no holds barred. . .if you like it, buy it, if you have the nerve. If you are a little on the timid side, your home furnishing stores will be happy to have you consult with them.

Some women seem to have a flair for blending furniture and accessories, and their rooms reflect this ability even on a limited budget. Others may spend a great deal more, but somehow their homes appear stilted and lifeless.

MANY WOMEN remark that it is easy to have a charming home if you have the money to spend for furniture and to hire the services of an interior decorator. This is a half-truth as home decorating is something like buying a hat. You are dealing with personal preferences, and very few decorators arbitrarily force their ideas upon their customers. Instead they try to draw out the customer's own ideas and preferences which she may not realize she has.

In order to like and to enjoy what you live with, decorators know you must be comfortable with it. If you have a longing for an elegant crystal or tiffany type hanging lamp, why not explain your desire to your home furnishing salesman or decorator, and he may be able to help you select something exactly right to enhance an otherwise ordinary room.

IT MAY BE globe-shaped, pear-shaped, rectangular or square; fluted, frosted or spackled. Whatever you take home, it doesn't have to match what you already have, it just has to blend. This is the new idea in home decorating.

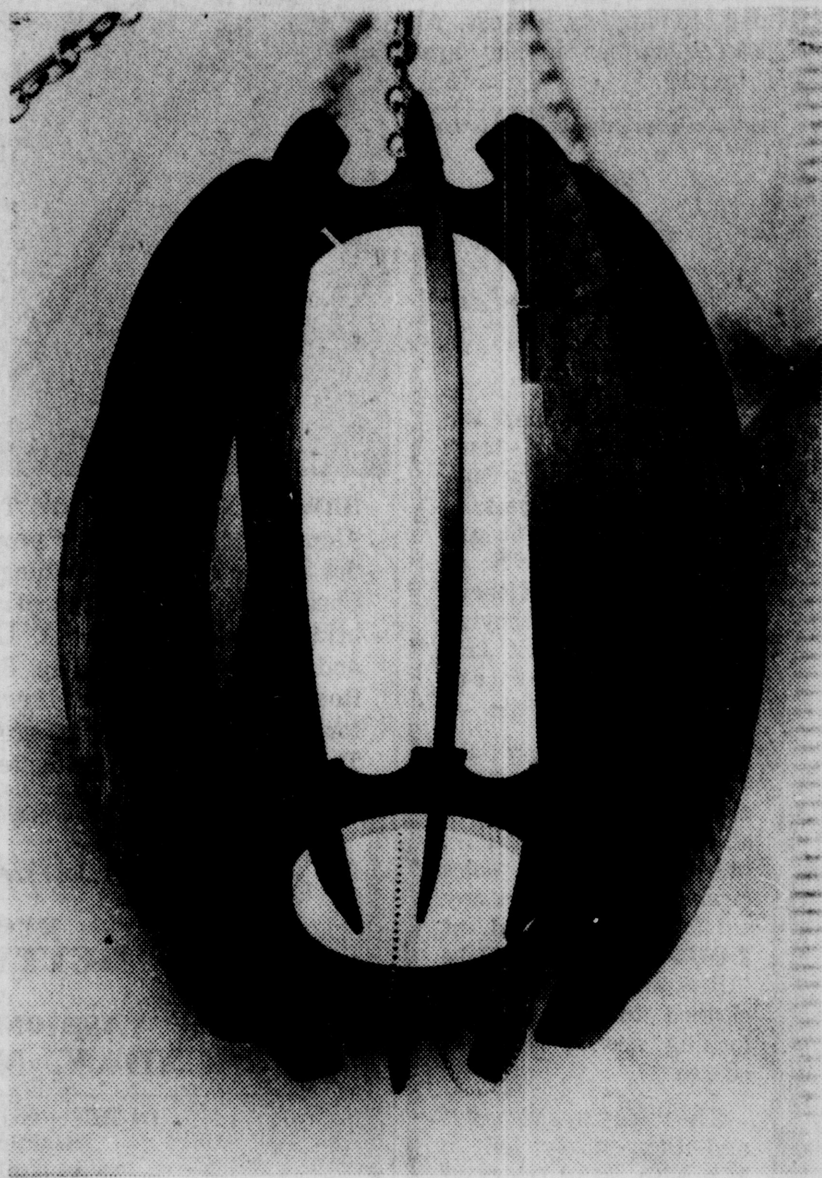
If you've made a happy choice, you'll know it as you will get a lift every time you "light up that dark corner."

If you are definitely the conservative type who doesn't like to gamble, play it safe. Even if you stick to the established idea of matching styles, you still have a wide choice as the lamp manufacturers are offering homemakers the best lighting and the biggest selection ever in construction and decorative appeal.

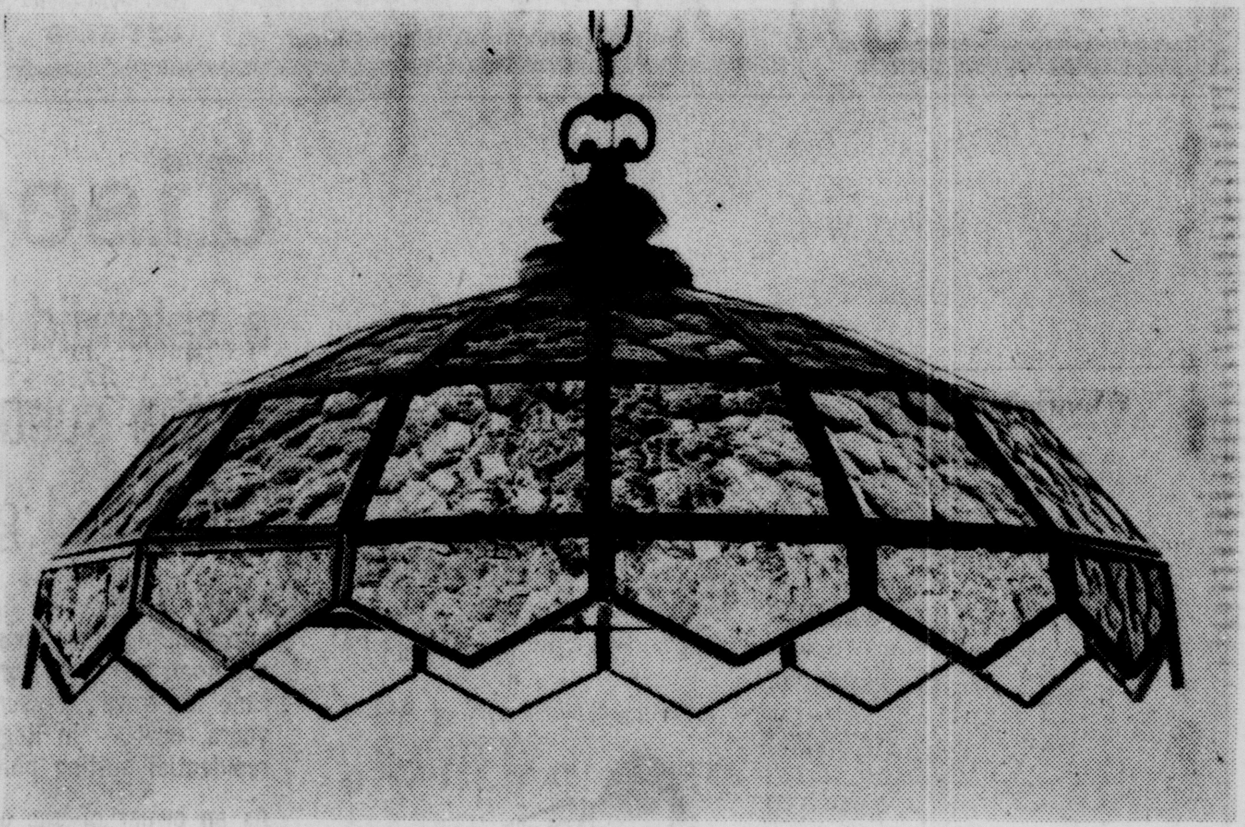
THE MOST popular choice of lamp styles today is Mediterranean followed by English and French provincial. Early American and straight modern are still fashion leaders also.

Lamp bases are constructed of materials including wrought iron, porcelain, woods and ceramics. From floor to ceiling, you have your choice, from chain lamps, tray lamps, to pole lamps and the many classic table styles.

Regardless of the fashion flurry in the lamp industry, if you have a hankering for a ship's lantern, go out and buy it! As a homemaker you are captain of your own ship, and there must be a niche somewhere in your home to hang your lamp and enjoy it!



STILL A FASHION LEADER among lamps is this modern wood chain lamp. Today's lamp makers offer the biggest selection ever in construction and decorative appeal. Styles pictured are from Northwest Metal Craft, Arlington Heights.



IF YOU LIKE ELEGANCE in your lighting fixtures, this hanging tiffany style lamp may be for you. The homemaker who's unsure of what's for her can consult her home furnishings salesman. Most will help her choose the lamp that's going to enhance a room without forcing their own ideas on the customer.

Shopper's Lament: She's 'Out of Season'

by MARY B. GOOD

Started your Christmas shopping yet? Dreadful thought!

I clipped the last rose of summer just the other day, then slipped out of the house to buy a transitional dress for fall. That's when I saw "it" in the store display—the first Christmas tree of 1966.

Something tells me I'm dreadfully out of contact with reality, but I wish I could do something to stop the merry-go-round commonly referred to as "rushing the season."

Clothes manufacturers show their fall lines before the last swallow has made the spring fling to Capistrano. Back-to-school and campus clothes are on the store shelves about June graduation time.

HOW CAN A person get enthusiastic about trying on ski sweaters in July? I think the store manager could turn up the air conditioning, import snow from the Arctic and employ Eskimos, and it still would not put most women in the mood.

One point of the feminine ideology that the manufacturers, department stores and other clothing industry people do not understand is that women are natural-born procrastinators. Any husband can tell you this much. The typical gal is either trying to lose weight, gain weight or shift it around. As long as there is time, she will delay in buying the upcoming season's clothes, with typical feminine optimism that a week or two will make the desirable adjustment in her figure.

SO FEW are in a position to pre-empt the season from this standpoint. Many's the time I've run out to the store the day before I needed a dress for a special occasion. And many's the time I've been disappointed, too, because I was "out of season."

With no fall clothes to offer, the stores were showing heavy woolen pants-suits and glittery, beaded satins for the holidays, I noticed.

Wouldn't it be glorious if one could buy clothes when they are needed? A winter coat in December, a spring suit in April or May? Heaven help the poor soul who wears out or outgrows apparel in mid-August. To get a replacement is strictly a midsummer night's dream.

DURING MY fruitless shopping trip, I caught sight of a middle-aged woman looking for a beige purse. Then I heard the saleslady mutter something to her about checking the Salvation Army. As she turned to leave, our eyes met. I gave the woman my "I - know - just - how - you - feel look."

Then I swept past the Christmas tree display, vowing to go home and burn my Polk Bros. Santa from last year. And I firmly resolved to do just as I've always done about my Christmas shopping—start on Christmas Eve!

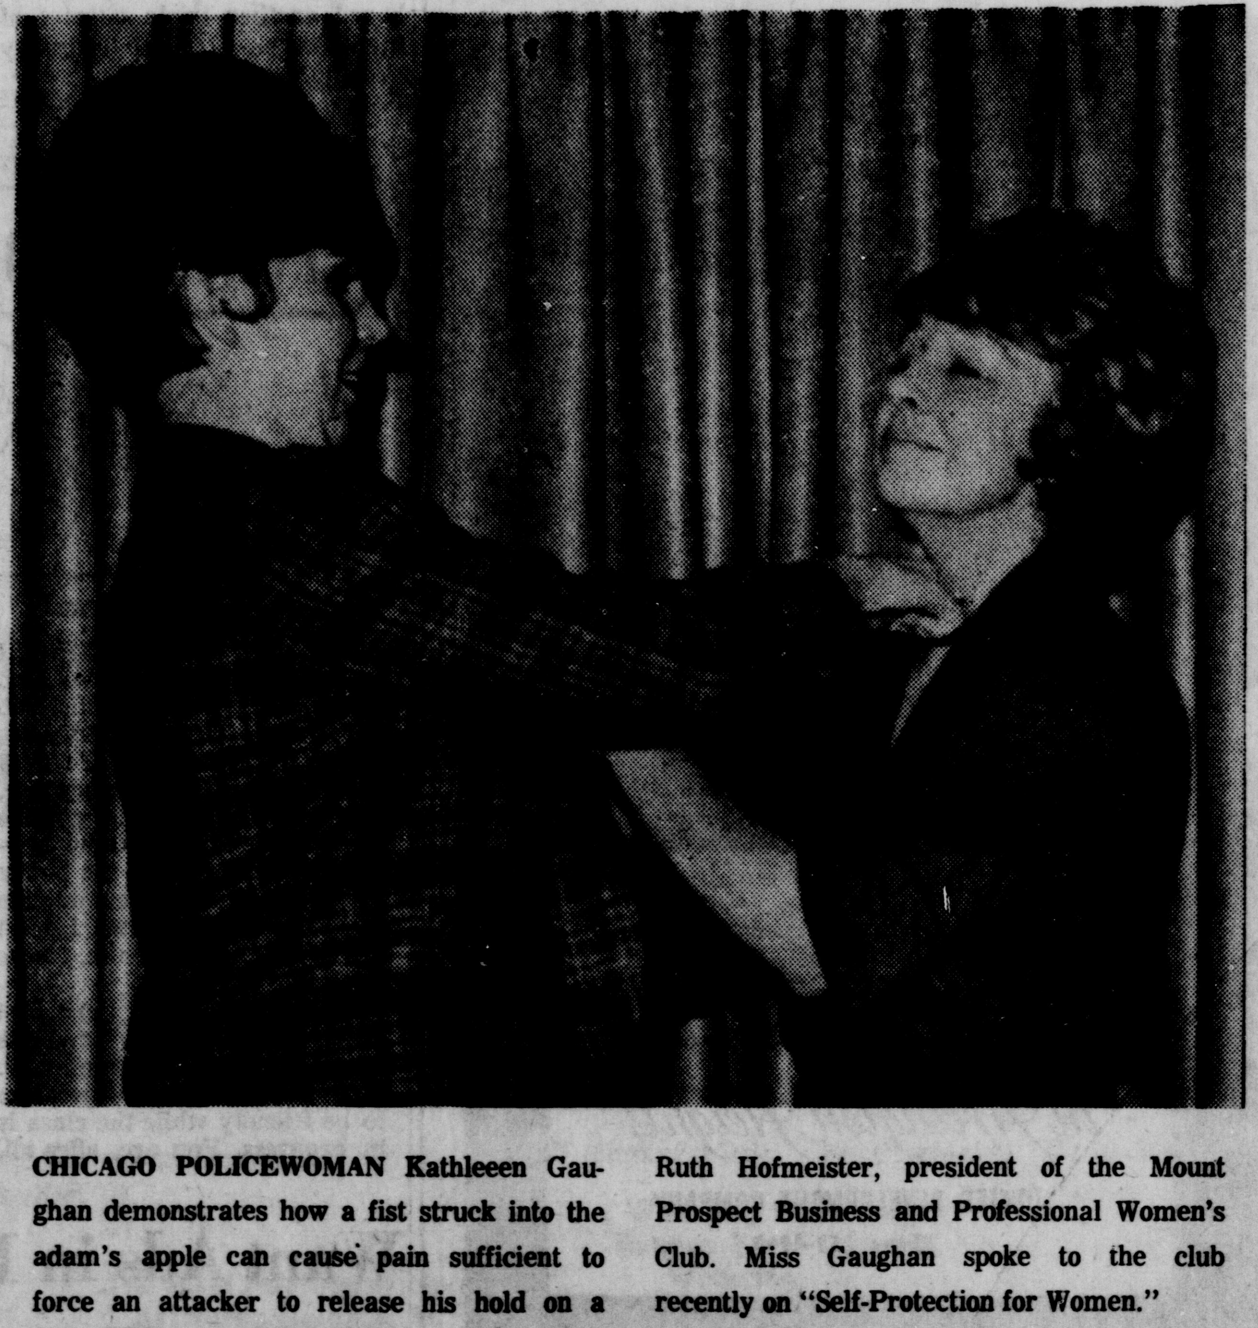
Advice on Self-Protection

Women Told: Fight Back



CHICAGO POLICEWOMAN Kathleeen Gaughan demonstrates how a fist struck into the adam's apple can cause pain sufficient to force an attacker to release his hold on a victim. The "victim" in this case is Mrs. Ruth Hofmeister, president of the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club. Miss Gaughan spoke to the club recently on "Self-Protection for Women."

Women should forget the marquis of queensberry rules and fight back if accosted by a stranger, according to a member of the weaker sex who should know.

Kathleen Gaughan, young Chicago policewoman who spoke last week to the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club, told the group, "All is fair in love and war was never truer than when you're dealing with a man who intends you harm. Anything you do to protect yourself is fair."

Miss Gaughan, whose police training at the Chicago Police Academy included instruction in judo, advised, "If your life is in jeopardy, it is better that you be able to defend yourself than to be afraid."

SHE THEN gave the B and PW's tips on how to "fight back."

Stressing the importance of surprise, Miss Gaughan explained that pressure applied to certain parts of the body causes pain, forcing the attacker to loosen his hold on his victim. These places include the area directly underneath the nose, the space between the eyes and the adam's apple.

Other techniques the policewoman said could be used effectively are to ram the knee into the groin or pull back the little finger in the direction opposite its natural bend.

She also recommended screaming.

WOMEN who must be out after dark she said, should take the following precautions:

Follow a pre-determined course and let your family know where you are going.

Give your family an approximate time when you expect to arrive home, and call if delayed.

Carry identification, and keep a list of all identification cards at home in case your purse is snatched.

Check locks on doors and windows before leaving home to be sure they are locked.

If you live alone, avoid listing your full name in the telephone directory or on your apartment mailbox. Use only your initial.

AVOID WALKING alone at night, but if you must, stick to the middle of the street and stay away from dark doorways, halls and alleys. Don't take shortcuts.

If traveling by public transportation at night, Miss Gaughan said, a woman should board the vehicle where there are lots of other persons.

"Even if you dislike being jostled," she said, "it's better to be jostled. You're safer."

Women who drive their cars at night should keep doors locked and windows closed, she advised. If curbed by a strange car, honk your horn, keep your lights on, remain in the car and don't open the doors, she said.

With no fall clothes to offer, the stores were showing heavy woolen pants-suits and glittery, beaded satins for the holidays, I noticed.

Wouldn't it be glorious if one could buy clothes when they are needed? A winter coat in December, a spring suit in April or May? Heaven help the poor soul who wears out or outgrows apparel in mid-August. To get a replacement is strictly a midsummer night's dream.

DURING MY fruitless shopping trip, I caught sight of a middle-aged woman looking for a beige purse. Then I heard the saleslady mutter something to her about checking the Salvation Army. As she turned to leave, our eyes met. I gave the woman my "I - know - just - how - you - feel look."

Then I swept past the Christmas tree display, vowing to go home and burn my Polk Bros. Santa from last year. And I firmly resolved to do just as I've always done about my Christmas shopping—start on Christmas Eve!

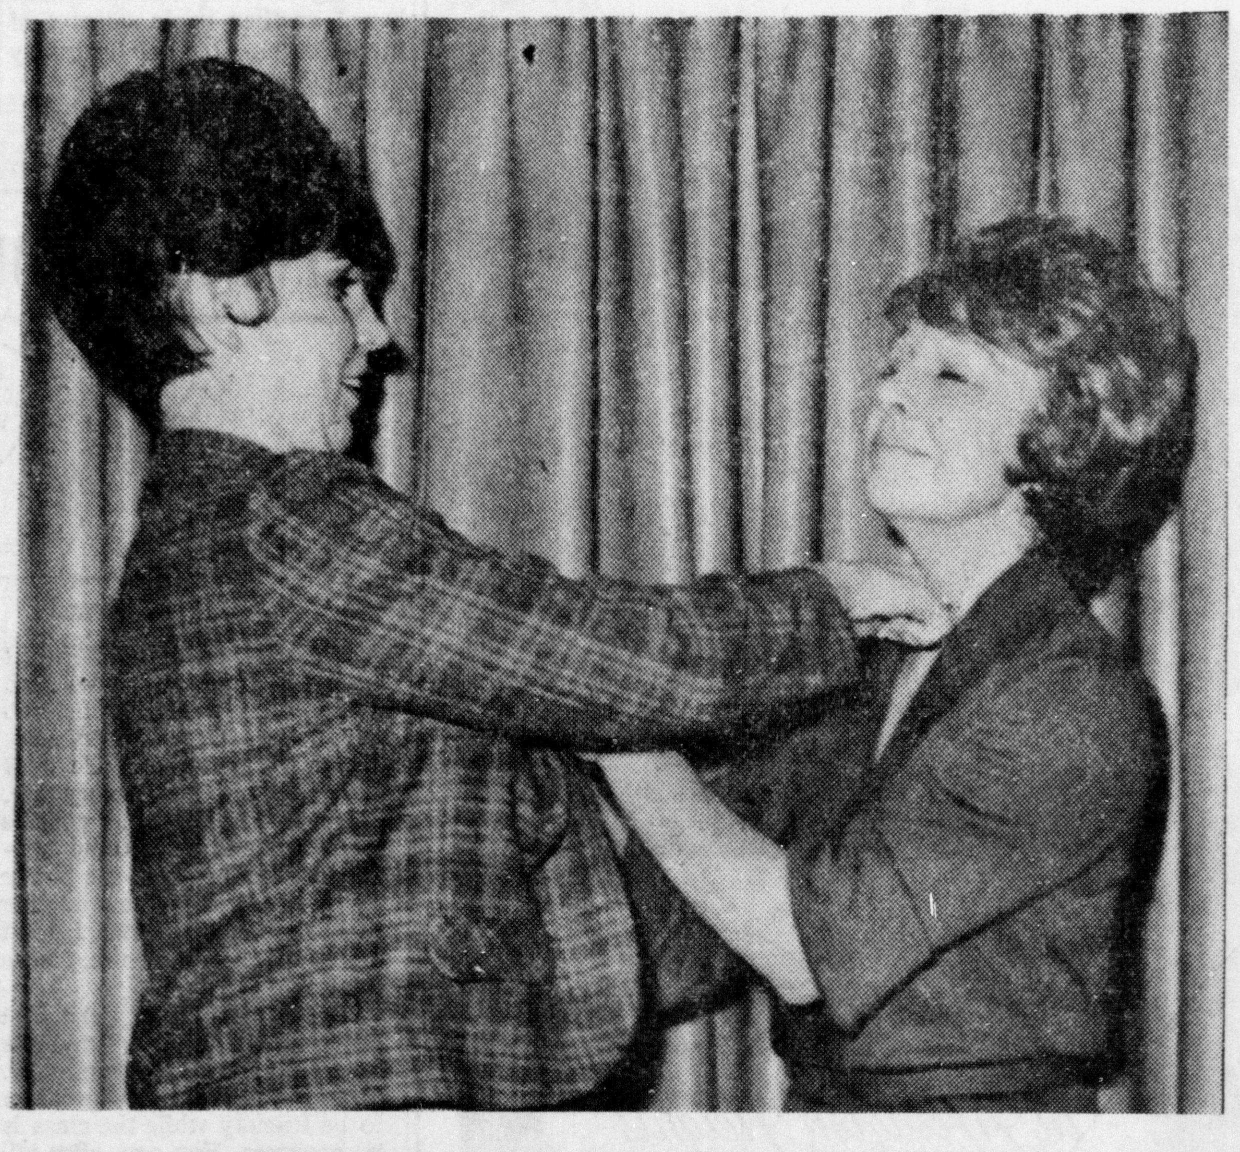
Early Deadline

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday next week, there will be an early deadline for Suburban Living. News releases for this section must be at the Paddock Publications office by noon Saturday, Nov. 19.

It will be appreciated if clubs and organizations submitting news for the Nov. 24 issue will observe this early deadline.

Advice on Self-Protection

Women Told: Fight Back



CHICAGO POLICEWOMAN Kathleeen Gaughan demonstrates how a fist struck into the adam's apple can cause pain sufficient to force an attacker to release his hold on a victim. The "victim" in this case is Mrs. Ruth Hofmeister, president of the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club. Miss Gaughan spoke to the club recently on "Self-Protection for Women."

Women should forget the marquis of queensberry rules and fight back if accosted by a stranger, according to a member of the weaker sex who should know.

Kathleen Gaughan, young Chicago policewoman who spoke last week to the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club, told the group, "All is fair in love and war was never truer than when you're dealing with a man who intends you harm. Anything you do to protect yourself is fair."

Miss Gaughan, whose police training at the Chicago Police Academy included instruction in judo, advised, "If your life is in jeopardy, it is better that you be able to defend yourself than to be afraid."

SHE THEN gave the B and PW's tips on how to "fight back."

Stressing the importance of surprise, Miss Gaughan explained that pressure applied to certain parts of the body causes pain, forcing the attacker to loosen his hold on his victim. These places include the area directly underneath the nose, the space between the eyes and the adam's apple.

Other techniques the policewoman said could be used effectively are to ram the knee into the groin or pull back the little finger in the direction opposite its natural bend.

She also recommended screaming.

WOMEN who must be out after dark she said, should take the following precautions:

Follow a pre-determined course and let your family know where you are going.

Give your family an approximate time when you expect to arrive home, and call if delayed.

Carry identification, and keep a list of all identification cards at home in case your purse is snatched.

Check locks on doors and windows before leaving home to be sure they are locked.

If you live alone, avoid listing your full name in the telephone directory or on your apartment mailbox. Use only your initial.

AVOID WALKING alone at night, but if you must, stick to the middle of the street and stay away from dark doorways, halls and alleys. Don't take shortcuts.

If traveling by public transportation at night, Miss Gaughan said, a woman should board the vehicle where there are lots of other persons.

"Even if you dislike being jostled," she said, "it's better to be jostled. You're safer."

Women who drive their cars at night should keep doors locked and windows closed, she advised. If curbed by a strange car, honk your horn, keep your lights on, remain in the car and don't open the doors, she said.

Nurses Meet

A talk on artificial respiration and a demonstration of the Bennett machine will highlight tonight's (Thursday) meeting of the Hoffman Schaumburg Registered Nurses Club. Speaker will be William Mueller of Air Products and Chemicals Inc., who for eight years has been advisor on oxygen equipment and resusitation to the Hoffman Estates Fire Department.

The meeting will be held at 8:30 p.m. in the Hoffman Estates Fire Station with Mrs. Daniel Mulcahy as hostess. All registered nurses in the area are invited. (SSD

A Letter from Shirley

Hi Folks:

How is everyone? We had some out-of-town company the last few days. Howard suggested we take his Aunts and browse around LORSEY'S at Randhurst. Aunt Geneva was interested in buying some jewelry; Aunt Janet in getting a charm bracelet for her niece.

Wow — were they flabbergasted at the 20,000 charms by Wells. What a selection of jewelry . . . unbelievable! The sales clerk mentioned that any charms purchased at LORSEY'S could be "Ultrasonic Macomatic" cleaned to keep them looking new. Free, of course.

Their stay was pleasant, and they surely fell in love with many things at LORSEY'S . . . now we know what to choose for for their birthdays.

Yours truly,

Shirley

Hello Hostess

Mincemeat or pumpkin pie—oyster or chestnut dressing—whatever your preference, you'd probably rather fight than switch a single traditional calorie of your Thanksgiving dinner. We would, however, like to suggest a few easy ideas to make your feast more festive for you and all your guests.

THE BEST guests, of course, are your very own family. And if yours is a large and scattered one, this may be the year's only gathering of the clan.

A Family Tree Theme strengthens family ties and gives the oldest generation an important part in the celebration. Consult the elders for genealogical data; you make the tree. This can be lettered in gold on white parchment, burned into wood by a Boy Scout son, fashioned into a mobile by an artistic daughter, even made from a real tree branch and used as your centerpiece. But the easiest way is to draw it with a felt marking pen on a large sheet of tagboard or window shade.

And it's a thoughtful gesture to provide a smaller tree, typed or drawn on paper, for each branch of the family.

WHO'S WHOSE can confuse the small fry, especially if cousins come by dozens.

Why not give your youngsters the job of making Family Tree name tags and/or place cards? Have them make name tags by cutting out a different colored leaf for each branch of the family. And they can glue twigs to placecards, then attach a paper leaf to each in the same color code as the name tags.

FAMILY PORTRAITS are a must. Arrange a "gallery" from bygone years, or dig out baby pictures from family albums. You might also ask each family group to bring a box of favorite slides. Youngsters love to see themselves in earlier years, while grown-ups enjoy the slides from last summer's vacations.

TRIBAL CUSTOM often dictates a second table for the youngsters. And, since Indians came to that first Thanksgiving, you might adopt an Indian theme for that necessary extra table.

Use a washable Indian blanket for your cloth, or stencil Indian designs on an old sheet. Add a teepee centerpiece, headdresses of feathers on paper headbands, tiny tomahawks for favors—make it as simple or as elaborate as you like.

Your Indian table will be wildly popular with the younger braves and squaws, while their "chiefs" dine in your dining room.

AFTER-DINNER games are fun for all. The Pumpkin Race was once as traditional at Thanksgiving as ducking for apples is at Halloween.

Just give each contestant a small pumpkin and a wooden spoon; award a prize to the one who rolls his pumpkin to the finish line first.

An old book promises, "Since the pumpkin is a lopsided fruit . . . the wobbling course provides much hilarity."

THANKSGIVING, of course, is for thanks giving. And it's a pleasant custom to ask each guest to mention one small item for which he or she gives thanks. Personally, we're most thankful that we all have so much for which to give thanks on Thanksgiving, the oldest and most truly American of all our national holidays. (SSD

Music and Literature Her Favored Pastimes

MUSIC IS IMPORTANT in the household of Mrs. L. J. Ragas of Itasca. Mrs. Ragas sings and would like to be a professional, while her husband, a dentist, plays several instruments. Mrs. Ragas also values literature, and this is the interest that has involved her as president of the Friends of the Library in Itasca. (Staff photo)

by JUDY TREMORE

Family hootenannies are the thing in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Leon J. Ragas, Itasca. Dr. Ragas takes up the guitar, Mrs. Ragas is a lyric soprano and can play a little piano.

Paul, 7, who hasn't started music lessons yet, sings along, and Laurie, 2½, sways to the rhythm.

Music is probably the most cherished pastime of the family. Mrs. Ragas was a semi-professional singer before her marriage and starred in many roles for the Lithuanian Operetta Company in Chicago. She has just had a recital at the Chicago Conservatory and was featured in an article in a musical trade magazine, Musical Leader. She is studying with Miss Alice Stephens at the Chicago Conservatory.

her list of pastimes, and that Literature is second on is one reason she is serving a term as president of Itasca Friends of the Library.

Dr. Ragas, an Itasca dentist, plays the violin, saxophone, clarinet, piano and drums as well as the guitar and was with a band while he studied dentistry. He also studied violin at the Mozarteum Conservatory in Salzburg, Austria.

Mrs. Ragas' father was a professional singer in Lithuania, and she said her mother and both sisters have beautiful voices also. If the children, Paul and Laurie, have talent, it will surprise no one.

THE FAMILY has been in Itasca for three years after spending two years in Elgin. They are originally from Chicago. Mrs. Ragas became a member of Itasca Friends of the Library two years ago. The club functions to raise additional funds for the library. Last year it donated the Great Books series to the library.

This week the club is having its membership drive, and it will have a Christmas benefit concert Dec. 4. Mrs. Ragas has been asked to sing, and Dr. Ragas will perform in a trio. He will play the violin; Mrs. Dories Haas, the cello, and Mrs. Carol Boller, piano.

When she has time, Mrs. Ragas enjoys cooking big meals for her family. She said she especially enjoys American meals but does occasionally cook native dishes. Lithuanian tortes are her favorite when she can plan a whole day in the kitchen.

THIS SUMMER she enjoyed gardening for the first time; and experimented with petunias and begonias. She plans to join a garden club in the near future and will expand her gardening next summer.

The president is a second grade room mother and sings in St. Peter's Catholic Church choir. She said she is also a member of St. Alexius Hospital Auxiliary but is not active in the group. Bridge club fills in her round of activities.

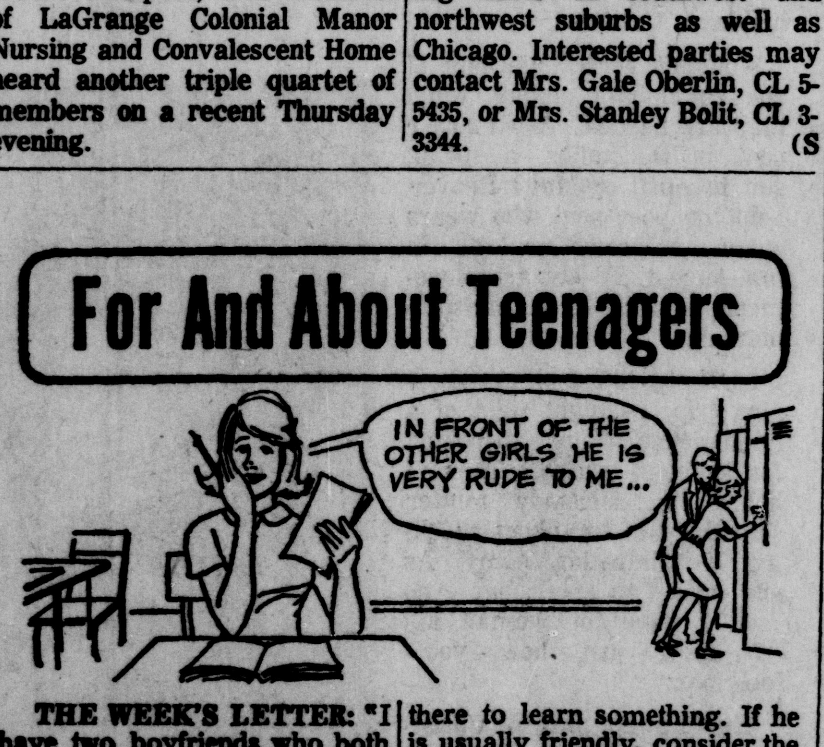
Last year Mrs. Ragas learned to ski because her husband enjoys the sport, but she admits swimming is her favorite.

The couple began collecting paintings recently and has several abstracts and scenic oils.

A CHARLES Percy fan, Mrs. Ragas was rooting for his victory when interviewed on election night. She said she met the senator-elect last summer when she appeared on a Lithuanian television program on channel 26. She had been asked to sing, and he was the featured guest.

Mrs. Ragas' ambition in life reflects her first love . . . she would like to be a professional classical singer.

For And About Teenagers



IN FRONT OF THE OTHER GIRLS HE IS VERY RUDE TO ME...

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I have two boyfriends who both like me very much, but they do not show it. One is in my class and sits next to me. He does come over and then is very nice, but in front of the other girls he is very rude to me. My other boyfriend said he likes me but he doesn't show it. There is another boy who likes me but I don't have any feeling for him. Please reply."

OUR REPLY: If your first boyfriend is "friendly" and sits by you in class, you're lucky. Yet, you should not expect him to be friendly while the class is in progress. You are, after all, there to learn something. If he is usually friendly, consider the fact that you might be doing something to cause him to appear rude at times. Do you make an effort to impress the other girls with the fact he is your boyfriend? Most boys resent such actions.

The second boy says he likes you. Take the matter for what it is worth and don't expect him to follow you around or to be too attentive during school hours.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address you letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

It's German Pflaumkuchen

A Coffee Cake to Fit Any Occasion

by LOIS SEILER

The German influence is evident in the favorite recipes of Mrs. Edward W. Veres of Arlington Heights. This good cook lived in Germany for 10 years, attending school there as a young girl. She became proficient in the language and acquired the knack for preparing German dishes.

One of her specialties is a recipe which she devised herself. It is for Pflaumkuchen, a delicous plum coffee cake which can be eaten for almost every occasion — from breakfast to dessert with coffee breaks in between.

"These fruit coffee cakes are made all the time by German housewives," Mrs. Veres said. "They can be prepared any time of the year using whatever fruit is in season," she explained.

At summer's end and in early fall Mrs. Veres likes to use small Italian plums. Later apples and other seasonal fruit can be substituted for the plums, or well-drained canned fruit (such as apricots) may be used.

MRS. VERES makes a sweet yeast dough as the base, and after it has risen she rolls out the dough and places it into three jelly roll pans. Plum halves are placed over the dough and sprinkled with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. A streussel topping is sprinkled over all.

Because this recipe makes three large cakes, Dorothy Veres usually freezes two of them.

"They freeze beautifully and need only be defrosted and warmed in the oven before serving," she said. "Or they can be eaten cold."

Pflaumkuchen, with its fine-textured cake, flavorful plums and tasty streussel topping, is a delightful cake to be enjoyed any time of the day with a good cup of coffee.

ANOTHER of this good cook's specialties is a German Potato Soup. This recipe has been handed down in her family for generations.

Unlike most potato soups, this one is not creamy but is more like a savory broth containing both vegetables and meat. In addition to the potatoes it includes bacon, onion, carrots, parsley and pieces of smoked Polish sausage.

"It is important to cut the potatoes from all angles—neither slicing nor dicing them," Dorothy Veres emphasized. "This will insure their firmness and keep them from becoming mushy in the soup," she said.

The firm vegetables give texture as well as flavor to this soup, while the sausage adds zest.

"THE SOUP makes a good meal-stretcher when you are serving leftovers or have unexpected guests," Dorothy commented.

She also suggests serving it for a Saturday lunch or supper. It is delicious accompanied by Jewish rye bread or ham sandwiches.

The soup and pflaumkuchen make a big hit with the Veres' two children, Jeffrey, 12, and Michael, 6.

The Veres family lives at 115 N. Phelps in Arlington Heights. Mrs. Veres tutors high school students in German. She also belongs to the PTA and is a member of the Lutheran Church of the Cross.

OBVIOUS DELIGHT is reflected on the face of Mike Veres as his mother, Mrs. Edward W. Veres of Arlington Heights, serves him a piece of her delicious Pflaumkuchen. Raised in Germany, Mrs. Veres devised her own recipe for this popular streussel-covered plum coffee cake. It can also be made with apples or canned fruit of your choice.

PFLAUMKUCHEN

- 2 cups scalded milk
- 1 cup butter
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 2 packages dry yeast
- ¼ cup warm water
- 4 eggs, well-beaten
- 8 to 10 cups sifted flour

Add the butter, sugar, vanilla and salt to the scalded milk and let cool.

Dissolve yeast in the warm water. Add to the beaten eggs.

Pour cooled milk into 8 cups of the flour and mix thoroughly. Add yeast-egg mixture and stir with a wooden spoon. Knead in as much more flour as is necessary. Knead about 15 to 20 minutes until smooth and elastic and all stickiness is gone. Dough must stay soft.

Place in a greased pan or bowl, cover with a warm damp cloth and let rise until double in bulk, about two hours.

Divide dough into thirds. Roll each third out without flour to the size of a jelly roll pan. Place each into a greased jelly roll pan and cover with warm, damp cloths. Let rise until double in bulk. Prepare the following:

- 4 pounds fresh Italian blue plums, pitted and halved
- 1 cup bread crumbs
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Sprinkle one-third of the bread crumbs over each cake. Place plum halves over the crumbs, skin side down. Leave a half-inch margin of dough all around the cake.

Combine cinnamon and sugar and sprinkle one-third over the plums on each cake. Cover with the following streussel:

- 2 cups sugar
- 3 cups flour
- 1-1/3 cups butter

Knead ingredients with hands until crumbly. Lumps should be of various sizes. Sprinkle over plum cakes and bake cakes in a 350 degree oven for 40 minutes or until plums are tender. Yield: three pflaumkuchens.

Note: apples, any seasonal fruit or drained, canned fruit may be substituted for the plums. The cakes will freeze well after they are baked.

GERMAN POTATO SOUP

- 6 strips bacon, cut in small squares
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 heaping tablespoons flour
- 1½ quarts warm water
- 5 medium-size potatoes
- 3 carrots, sliced thin (optional)
- 2 tablespoons fresh chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper or to taste
- 1 smoked Polish sausage, sliced (optional)

In a three-quart pot, lightly brown the bacon. Add the onion and saute. Stir in the flour and cook until golden grown. Slowly add the water, stirring constantly.

Peel the potatoes and cut up from all angles to about the size of a half dollar and 1/8 inch thick. Do not slice potatoes straight across or dice them as they will cook apart and become mushy. Potatoes should be firm. Add them to the broth along with the carrots, parsley, salt and pepper. Let cook, covered, for 20 minutes. If desired, add the Polish sausage the last 10 minutes of the cooking period. Serves 5.

It's German Pflaumkuchen

A Coffee Cake to Fit Any Occasion

by LOIS SEILER

The German influence is evident in the favorite recipes of Mrs. Edward W. Veres of Arlington Heights. This good cook lived in Germany for 10 years, attending school there as a young girl. She became proficient in the language and acquired the knack for preparing German dishes.

One of her specialties is a recipe which she devised herself. It is for Pflaumkuchen, a delicous plum coffee cake which can be eaten for almost every occasion — from breakfast to dessert with coffee breaks in between.

"These fruit coffee cakes are made all the time by German housewives," Mrs. Veres said. "They can be prepared any time of the year using whatever fruit is in season," she explained.

At summer's end and in early fall Mrs. Veres likes to use small Italian plums. Later apples and other seasonal fruit can be substituted for the plums, or well-drained canned fruit (such as apricots) may be used.

MRS. VERES makes a sweet yeast dough as the base, and after it has risen she rolls out the dough and places it into three jelly roll pans. Plum halves are placed over the dough and sprinkled with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. A streussel topping is sprinkled over all.

Because this recipe makes three large cakes, Dorothy Veres usually freezes two of them.

"They freeze beautifully and need only be defrosted and warmed in the oven before serving," she said. "Or they can be eaten cold."

Pflaumkuchen, with its fine-textured cake, flavorful plums and tasty streussel topping, is a delightful cake to be enjoyed any time of the day with a good cup of coffee.

ANOTHER of this good cook's specialties is a German Potato Soup. This recipe has been handed down in her family for generations.

Unlike most potato soups, this one is not creamy but is more like a savory broth containing both vegetables and meat. In addition to the potatoes it includes bacon, onion, carrots, parsley and pieces of smoked Polish sausage.

"It is important to cut the potatoes from all angles—neither slicing nor dicing them," Dorothy Veres emphasized. "This will insure their firmness and keep them from becoming mushy in the soup," she said.

The firm vegetables give texture as well as flavor to this soup, while the sausage adds zest.

"THE SOUP makes a good meal-stretcher when you are serving leftovers or have unexpected guests," Dorothy commented.

She also suggests serving it for a Saturday lunch or supper. It is delicious accompanied by Jewish rye bread or ham sandwiches.

The soup and pflaumkuchen make a big hit with the Veres' two children, Jeffrey, 12, and Michael, 6.

The Veres family lives at 115 N. Phelps in Arlington Heights. Mrs. Veres tutors high school students in German. She also belongs to the PTA and is a member of the Lutheran Church of the Cross.

OBVIOUS DELIGHT is reflected on the face of Mike Veres as his mother, Mrs. Edward W. Veres of Arlington Heights, serves him a piece of her delicious Pflaumkuchen. Raised in Germany, Mrs. Veres devised her own recipe for this popular streussel-covered plum coffee cake. It can also be made with apples or canned fruit of your choice.

PFLAUMKUCHEN

2 cups scalded milk
1 cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ teaspoons salt
2 packages dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
4 eggs, well-beaten
8 to 10 cups sifted flour

Add the butter, sugar, vanilla and salt to the scalded milk and let cool.

Dissolve yeast in the warm water. Add to the beaten eggs.

Pour cooled milk into 8 cups of the flour and mix thoroughly. Add yeast-egg mixture and stir with a wooden spoon. Knead in as much more flour as is necessary. Knead about 15 to 20 minutes until smooth and elastic and all stickiness is gone. Dough must stay soft.

Place in a greased pan or bowl, cover with a warm damp cloth and let rise until double in bulk, about two hours.

Divide dough into thirds. Roll each third out without flour to the size of a jelly roll pan. Place each into a greased jelly roll pan and cover with warm, damp cloths. Let rise until double in bulk. Prepare the following:

4 pounds fresh Italian blue plums, pitted and halved
1 cup bread crumbs
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Sprinkle one-third of the bread crumbs over each cake. Place plum halves over the crumbs, skin side down. Leave a half-inch margin of dough all around the cake.

Combine cinnamon and sugar and sprinkle one-third over the plums on each cake. Cover with the following streussel:

2 cups sugar
3 cups flour
1-1/3 cups butter

Knead ingredients with hands until crumbly. Lumps should be of various sizes. Sprinkle over plum cakes and bake cakes in a 350 degree oven for 40 minutes or until plums are tender. Yield: three pflaumkuchens.

Note: apples, any seasonal fruit or drained, canned fruit may be substituted for the plums. The cakes will freeze well after they are baked.

GERMAN POTATO SOUP

6 strips bacon, cut in small squares
1 medium onion, chopped
2 heaping tablespoons flour
1½ quarts warm water
5 medium-size potatoes
3 carrots, sliced thin (optional)
2 tablespoons fresh chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper or to taste
1 smoked Polish sausage, sliced (optional)

In a three-quart pot, lightly brown the bacon. Add the onion and saute. Stir in the flour and cook until golden brown. Slowly add the water, stirring constantly.

Peel the potatoes and cut up from all angles to about the size of a half dollar and 1/8 inch thick. Do not slice potatoes straight across or dice them as they will cook apart and become mushy. Potatoes should be firm. Add them to the broth along with the carrots, parsley, salt and pepper. Let cook, covered, for 20 minutes. If desired, add the Polish sausage the last 10 minutes of the cooking period. Serves 5.

Bazaar Booths are Brimming with Bargains

There are still five weeks and three days until Christmas, but there's only two weeks left of the "holiday bazaar season" which opened in early fall.

After this weekend's activities the bazaar-givers are taking time out to stuff turkeys, bake pumpkin pies and gather their families around them for the Thanksgiving holiday. But the first week in December they will be back in full swing, and it looks like Dec. 3 will close the busy bazaar season.

Again, for the convenience of readers, Paddock Publications has listed these sales by towns.

ELK GROVE

An "International Boutique" booth which will include many items from other countries is just one of the many features of the Christmas bazaar sponsored by the Altar and Rosary Society of Queen of the Rosary Catholic Church, Elk Grove.

The bazaar will be held Saturday, Nov. 19, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 20, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the school.

An Art Room will display and have for sale many fine paintings and art works done by local talent. Games and cartoons will be available for the children and they may have their pictures taken with Santa Claus who has promised to visit. Christmas shoppers will have a wide variety of hand made items to select. Refreshments will be served and bakery goods will be sold.

Raising Kids in a Modern World Is Juniors' Topic

"Raising Children in a Modern World" was the subject of a panel discussion at the November meeting of the Elk Grove Village Junior Woman's Club. Participating on the panel were Rabbi Hillel Gamoran, Beth Tikvah Congregation; Rev. Robert Long, Elk Grove United Presbyterian Church and Fr. Steven Mangan, Queen of the Rosary.

In the discussion Fr. Mangan stressed that parents are the most important influence the child will ever have. "It's the parents who give the child recognition, affection, a sense of values and the freedom to develop as an individual," stated Fr. Mangan.

"We must let our children know what we think of what they are doing," said Rabbi Gamoron. "Lack of concern is one of the biggest contributors to a feeling of insecurity in children of all ages. Parents demand respect from children but seldom tend to return that respect," added the Rabbi. "Parents can't go on being good eggs: they have to hatch or go bad," summed up Fr. Mangan.

"WHAT WE AS parents do speaks louder than anything we say," pointed out Rev. Long, "and young people are becoming extremely disillusioned with us as adults. We in the suburbs tend to raise children ill-equipped to understand the social and moral problems of those of different races, creeds and socio-economic backgrounds."

A practical application of the evening's theme was presented by Glen Powell, Director of the Elk Grove Village Community Services. In a brief resume of the Service's youth work in the Village, Mr. Powell stressed the Service's attempts to improve understanding between adults and young people and to provide opportunities for young people to talk over their problems with responsible and interested adults. Area Synagogue, Scene Of ORT Sabbath Service

North Shore area synagogues and temples will observe ORT Sabbath 1966 Friday, Nov. 18. In special services paralleling hundreds of others throughout the nation, tribute will be paid to the global program of ORT, the vocational training agency of the Jewish people.

Services will be held at Beth Tikvah Synagogue, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates for the Countryside Chapter.

Mrs. Leon Netzer, 270 Cottonwood Dr., Elk Grove Village, president of the chapter, said, "ORT Sabbath 1966 is a time when we honor not only what ORT has accomplished since 1880 . . . the training of more than one million uprooted, persecuted and deprived people . . . but a time when we rededicate ourselves to the challenges that lie before us. It is our hope that ORT Sabbath will make the community more aware of our work in 22 lands where we educate almost 50,000 students each year. We sincerely hope the community will join with us in worship on November 18th."

Mrs. Ronald Fox of Elk Grove Village will be one of the hostesses for the evening. (S

Dorcas Aid Marks 45th Anniversary

Sunday, Dec. 4, the Dorcas Aid of St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, will officially mark the 45th anniversary of its founding. Members were earlier honored with a dinner at Plentywood Farm in October to commemorate the occasion.

Founded Dec. 4, 1921, with a charter membership of 18, the Dorcas Aid has grown to its present roll of 86 ladies. Four of the charter members, Miss Minna Clausing, Mrs. Edwin Jannusch, Mrs. William Lussman and Mrs. William Wilke, remain active in the group.

The Aid lends financial support to projects within St. Peter Church, the Sunday School, day school and many missions and institutions of charity in the Missouri Synod. Financial aid is also rendered to students studying for the ministry or teaching profession. The ladies also assist in the spiritual work of St. Peter's through gaining new members for the church and increasing the general religious knowledge within the group.

FUND-RAISING activities have included bazaars, such as the one co-sponsored with the Ladies Aid and held last Friday, luncheons, card parties and rummage sales. Entertainment, planned by a social committee follows the business session of the meetings, conducted the second Tuesday of each month. An annual mother-daughter dinner, birthday dinner, valentine and Christmas parties highlight the social calendar. Membrship is open to all women of the congregation.

Present officers are: Mrs. Henry Leark, president; Mrs. Walter Landmeier, first vice president; Mrs. Calvin Maurer, second vice president; Mrs. Theodore Preuss, secretary; and Miss Lillion Plass, treasurer. Board members include: Mrs. Edward LaBantschnig, Mrs. William Miller and Mrs. Morry Schalin. (S

Mrs. Edwin Jannusch and Mrs. William Wilke admire two of the many aprons sold at the affair. The two women are charter members of the Dorcas Aid which is observing its 45th anniversary Dec. 4.

CHARMING HAND-MADE QUILTS captured the attention of Mrs. C. W. Lussman and Miss Minna Clausing at Friday's bazaar held in St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights. The women, charter members of the church's Dorcas Aid, were among the hundreds of shoppers browsing and buying at the bazaar. In honor of its 45th anniversary, members of Dorcas Aid recently were honored with a dinner at Plentywood Farm. The anniversary will be officially marked Sunday, Dec. 4.

HER ONLY attendant was her sister, Mary Ann Trepus, who came down the aisle wearing a red velvet floor-length dress and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations.

Douglas Neumann of Barrington, a cousin of the groom, was his best man, and acting as usher was Michael Heston of Palatine.

BOTH MOTHERS of the pair wore silver brocade dresses for the evening festivities and complemented their attire with orchid corsages.

A reception for 100 guests followed the ceremony, the buffet supper served at Mount Prospect Country Club.

Letters to the Editor

Commission: Elmhurst Road Widening to Ease Congestion

(Following is a reply from the Illinois Toll Highway Commission to a letter from Robert B. Bishop, printed elsewhere in today's Fencepost.)

Thank you very much for your letter with regard to the traffic backup on the ramp leading from the Northwest Tollway to Elmhurst Road.

We have been aware of this situation for some time, and we have been informed by the state highway department that plans are under way to widen Elmhurst Road in this area within the very near future, which will alleviate this problem.

As far as the installation of a ramp at Arlington Heights Road, the commission has recently decided not to install such a facility due to the costs involved and the fact that it would defeat the purpose of a limited access superhighway.

We appreciate your taking the time to write us on this matter.

Letter Writers 'Self Named Jury'

Apparently the Arlington Heights Human Relations Committee has appointed itself judge and jury over people and their political beliefs. At least it so appears when you read a letter that appeared in the Fence Post section on Nov. 10. Written by Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Leighton, fair housing co-chairmen, Arlington Heights Human Relations Committee, the letter says in part, "Mayor Sabonjian's presence in the northwest suburbs shames our village; doubly, it shames the Realtors who invited him here. Let them speak no more of "outside agitators."

I THOUGHT the purpose of the human relations committee was to promote brotherly love, understanding and good human relations as the name implies. To publicly vilify these real estate agents is to promote anger and hatred.

It seems to me that these real estate agents were perfectly within their rights to invite Sabonjian and to hear him speak. If our universities can invite Communists Gus Hall and Herbert Apthecker to speak to the young students, then I think that it is quite all right to listen to Sabonjian or anyone else— even Barry Goldwater.

If this attempt to turn public opinion against these real estate firms should succeed, then this committee will continue to coerce and intimidate people to support any program that they might think of.

IT SHOULD also be said that the letter is an insult to Mayor Sabonjian, an insult to the people of Waukegan, and an insult to the intelligence of Paddock readers. The letter carefully avoids any specific charges against the Mayor but uses the technique of insinuation and innuendo. One can only guess what the writer had in mind, and one must assume that the thoughts expressed represent the feelings of the Arlington Heights Human Relations Committee, since it is signed using that title.

I sincerely hope that Mayor Sabonjian, the people of Waukegan and the real estate agents fully realize that the Leightons and the human relations committee are a self appointed group, not elected by the people, and that they therefore do not represent the people of this area. Since they are so irresponsible a group, the city of Arlington Heights should insist that they drop Arlington Heights from their name.

Says Paper Doesn't Support Good Youth

We find it very heartbreaking that a community newspaper with the large publication you have cannot support the "good youth" of your own community.

On Thursday night, Nov. 10, 1966, 21 Senior High Fellowship Youth, assisted by a group of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and the junior choir presented a program at the Community Church of Rolling Meadows called "Prayers for Peace" in honor of our veterans from the Revolutionary War to the present time.

ENCLOSED IS THE article that was sent to you to be printed in your newspaper to publicize this program. Also enclosed is the article which you printed. Comparing the two we can see you think nothing of good, sincere youth.

But let a youth go bad and you'll print a full column.

It's a shame that you could not have the courtesy to publicize this so those who do care about our good youth and the meaning of Veterans Day could have been aware of this program and have honored our veterans as these youth did.

MAYBE SOME day you will wake up and give credit to all the wonderful youth who work for their schools, country, and community. At that time we're sure you will also have a better community.

We, and others like ourselves, sincerely salute these youth and all others like them for the wonderful job they are doing, even though they get very little support from their local newspaper and members of the community.

Vandals Destroy Joy of Owning Their 1st Home

This is an open letter to the families of White Pines.

We are completing our home at 4N411 Briar Lane. We feel it is a nice addition to the neighborhood — but we evidently are wrong.

Halloween night, so-called "pranksters" visited our property and decided our brown, rough-sawn cedar home needed a little something extra. Using silver spray paint they wrote four-letter words on the front, back, sides, and even the garage doors.

Mischief is one thing — maliciousness is by far another. The damage to our home can be repaired, eventually. The damage to my wife and me — the joy of owning our first home; the anticipation of moving to a new neighborhood and of making new friends — will be a long and lasting one.

Thank you for the welcome.

Apathy Still 'Not Complete'

Apathy is not complete as shown by Frederick Braun and Thomas Morong in their fight for the right inspection and corrections of private sewer lines on Orchard Drive. They tolerated abuse of every sort, but wrested the bull by the horns and won a victory for the people.

Story of Lutheran General Appreciated

On Nov. 3 you ran a feature story about the expansion program of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. I wish to compliment you on this fine story.

Many of my friends were very much impressed with your fine article and pictures, and so moved as to attend the open house and dedication ceremony put on by the hospital Nov. 5 and 6.

Asks Additional Commuter Spots

Are there any plans for adding more metered parking spaces in the lot at the Milwaukee railroad station in Wood Dale? It's becoming quite common for the lot to be filled. On Wednesday, cars were ticketed for overparking in the two-hour zone, mine included. I, for one, know of no alternative to illegal parking (other than going home, getting the wife, and having her drop me off)!

Tollway 'Hazard': Lack of Arlington Heights Entrance

(Following is a copy of a letter to the Illinois State Toll Highway Commission.)

Due to the lack of adequate exits in the northwestern suburban area, a serious situation is being created. On the last several nights the exit from the Northwest Tollway, northwest bound at Elmhurst Road, has been so over-loaded that cars attempting to exit have been lined up the entire length of the ramp and are actually backed up into the tollway roadway proper. The funnelling of all the vehicles to this one exit for the communities of Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights is not only creating a serious hazard, but is actually a dis-service on the part of the tollway commission to this rapidly growing area.

YOU COULD correct this situation (it is not going to improve by ignoring it) by the installation of an out-bound exit ramp at Arlington Heights Road. Haste should be made in arriving at a decision to install this exit, because the land that would be required is presently un-improved.

Enclosed is an item from the national public relations division of the American Legion. I would like to have you bring this to the attention of Jack Neukom.

To refresh you, Jack wrote a scathing article in your newspaper last June (1966) about veterans organizations and their eventual demise due to lack of membership. You also printed my response to him in Fence Post June 30.

The American Legion is now in a new fiscal year. Membership is continuing to forge ahead, and it is not due to the fact that now Viet Nam vets are eligible.

SO, JACK'S forecast of doom is on the same plane as the confidence the Democrats had when they thought, "It just can't happen to us."

The Way We See It

Suburban Voters Show New Muscle

The suburban vote—its nature and its size—is sure to be a major topic when the politicians get down to the post-election task of omission and commission.

A fact just beginning to impress itself on political observers is the startling development that within a few years, in major metropolitan areas such as Chicago, there will be more people living and working in the suburbs than in the city proper.

Twenty-five years ago, more than half of the nation's people were farmers or lived in towns and villages of less than 10,000 population. Today more than 50 million Americans live in suburbs and only 11 per cent of the people are farmers. During the next 10 years, we shall see a continuation of suburbanization at an accelerated pace.

Charles H. Percy, Illinois' new junior senator-elect, has long recognized the significance of this shift in political power. He unsuccessfully attempted to alert the 1964 Republican National Convention to this change. As suburbia's lone voice at that unhappy convention, he pressed vainly for greater GOP activity in the nation's suburbs.

"There can be no doubt about it," he declared in San Francisco, "the suburbs are the political battleground where the fates of the two parties will be settled. Any possibility of a real resurgence of the Republican Party as the majority party in the United States depends on the growth of our strength in the suburbs."

Reaction of most party leaders to his 1964 plea, recalls Percy, amounted to "an admission that suburbia was an area they have neglected. It reminded me of the company that doesn't call on its best customers."

The party suffered one of its most severe defeats in that election. The Republican National Ticket polled a disappointing 40.8% of the vote in suburbia. Whereas the GOP carried the suburbs of 34 major cities in 1960, it managed to take only 11 in 1964.

But the debacle of 1964 taught the GOP a lesson.

Heeding his own advice, Percy mounted an impressive campaign for 1966. Bolstered by such suburban-oriented Republicans as Richard Ogilvie and Donald Rumsfeld, Percy led the GOP to a stunning victory Nov. 8.

Although much attention has been directed to Percy's dramatic inroads on normally-Democratic city wards, it was Scott Cohen, a Percy aide, who recently put the victory into proper perspective: "This election was not really won in the City of Chicago. The great margins were in the suburbs . . . "

More than 727,000 Cook County suburbanites went to polls and gave 67% of their votes to Percy.

In six northwest suburban townships, 82.5% of registered voters cast ballots with nearly 80% of them for Percy.

In the 13th Congressional District, Rep. Rumsfeld's 108,000-vote margin was the largest of any of the nation's 435 congressional races. The all-suburban district cast 70.4% of its vote for Percy, 75.8% for Rumsfeld, and 74.8% for Ogilvie.

Wheeling Township produced the largest margin of victory for Republicans with a plurality of 19,364.

In DuPage County, a total 140,000 voters gave better than two-to-one victories to GOP candidates.

Republican strength in suburbia is not an automatic situation to be taken for granted, however, for as suburban populations grow in number, they change in character. Independence of action and split-ticket voting have always been prevalent in the suburbs.

This was demonstrated in the election of Adlai Stevenson III as state treasurer. His victory in view of the GOP tide was nothing short of miraculous. A factor in his hair-thin win was the suburban vote; Stevenson led the head of his ticket by 52,000 votes in Cook County suburbs, by 10% in northwest suburbs.

Democrats will be working even harder to woo this emerging suburban vote, and Republicans cannot rest on their recent success.

One fact is clear: the suburbanite represents a potent new force in Illinois politics.

The Measure of Men

Men often reveal their true character in moments of victory and defeat. No finer comment on the election, no clearer statement of the stature and integrity of Paul H. Douglas and Charles H. Percy can be offered than their own Election Night words:

"Let us remember that ours is one country and one state," declared a defeated Douglas. "It is important to remember that far beyond Election Day all of us will be living in this country; that what unites us is more important than what divides us; and that we must work together to serve the land we love. In that way, we can move forward as a united people to achieve greater justice, dignity and purpose in our own society while striving for an honorable and durable peace abroad."

Percy's words of victory were words of tribute: "Eleven months ago, when I announced my candidacy, I said, 'My opponent is a man whom I know well, beginning with our student-professor relationship many years ago. He is a man of conviction and courage. He will be a strong opponent.' I have no reason to alter those words tonight. He has fought the good fight, sometimes in the face of difficult circumstances. The generosity, the graciousness, and the great understanding he showed last September is something I will never forget.

"Senator Douglas has served his state and nation with a sense of duty and conviction matched by few men. If I can serve Illinois and the nation with the same degree of selfless dedication and integrity that Paul Douglas has, then I think I will have served well."

"Lady, I tell you this is the best vacuum cleaner on the market."

Unconvinced, I didn't buy the machine.

Had the more than enthusiastic salesman had a chance to tell me the full story, I probably would have learned that this handiest of all devices was now available at the lowest price ever. It undoubtedly was made by the world's most skilled craftsmen, using the finest materials available.

FORRESTER

They all are, you know.

The culprit, (not the innocuous enough salesman) was the biggest fattest ugliest, dirtiest, liar around — the superlative.

Overworked little ornament of the English language that it is, the superlative not only lies, it makes conversation colorless and conversationalists more so.

A SIMPLE rule for today's coffee klatching seems to be: anyone can be an articulate, exciting conversationalist—just add "-est" to everything you don't put "most" in front of.

So that instead of describing things as they really are, people tend to take an ordinary word such as "happy," "nice," "good" or "sweet," raise it to the superlative state and chalk the entire deal up as a stimulating conversation.

In doing so, very little other than letters is added.

A black dress with a noticable paucity of fabric becomes the "sexiest dress," any movie that manages to keep you awake can be described as the "best" movie; everyone's wife is the "worst" driver and everyone's children are the "cuttest" little darlings.

IN PAGING through almost any magazine one runs into advertisements describing the "happiest fashions," the "most satisfying" snacks and the "easiest cooking ever."

Like the olives that start at giant and move on in size to jumbo, colossal and super colossal, phrases weighted down with superlatives are trite and meaningless.

An acquaintance of mine has 10 friends whom she fondly identifies as "my best friend." "People are no longer interesting; everyone is "the most interesting person I've ever met."

THE OTHER day a friend of mine met a girl with the "cutest" nose. Another friend, who prides herself of vivid descriptions, loves to tell about the gal with the "tiniest feet imaginable" — a real challenge to anyone's cerebrum.

Very few of us will ever see, or even imagine, those feet. As to the "cutest" nose, the matter has yet to be determined, but once the ideal is chosen, all such comments applied to other noses will be completely out of line.

"The extreme degree of comparison" as Webster defines it, is emphatic when used sparingly, but . . .

IMAGINE SOME ultimate court of truth where persons who had used superlative adjectives were forced to defend themselves.

Here we have the first defendant, a Mrs. Jones, who is being charged by Mrs. Smith with having improperly used the word "brightest" in describing an orange dress worn by Mrs. Smith at a fairly conservative suburban benefit tea.

"The dress I was wearing was merely a bright orange dress," Mrs. Smith testified. "There were other brighter orange dresses on the rack at X'ies where I bought it."

"The dress appeared to be the brightest orange dress of all orange dresses, and that's why I described it as such to Mrs. Nod, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Sweet . . .," Mrs. Jones defended herself.

AN HOUR later, Judge Fair concluded his ruling, "And therefore, the word 'brightest' shall not be used unless qualified by such phrases as 'I would imagine' or 'it would seem to me.' Next Case."

A few days later Mrs. Nod and Mrs. Sweet were discussing the case.

"I wonder," said Mrs. Nod, "if Mrs. Smith was telling the truth about the other brighter orange dresses. You know she's the world's worst liar."

Judge Fair called the court to order and Mrs. Nod stepped to the fore and was sworn in.

"IT WASN'T meant as a vicious thing; all I meant was that occasionally Mrs. Smith doesn't represent things as they actually are," Mrs. Nod said tearfully.

The judge grimace, pulled out a dictionary and said, " 'Worst,' my dear ladies, when used as an adjective means 'to the most extreme degree of badness or inferiority.' May I suggest that you say what you mean rather than what would seem to be easiest?"

Help for Legislators

by DAVID J. HANKS
Staff Writer

Is an office, a telephone and perhaps a clerk too much to ask for Illinois legislators?

A large number of the constituents don't realize that a member of the Illinois House, for instance, not only has no office or private phone, but a desk which is stacked high with correspondence and bills by the end of the six month legislative session.

HANKS

The future of the General Assembly does look a little brighter, however. The Commission on the Organization of the General Assembly next year will introduce two Constitutional amendments and a series of bills which will help modernize the legislature.

THE PROPOSED changes are a start in the right direction, but more must be done in the future if legislators are to serve the residents of Illinois adequately, warns Sen. Harris W. Fawell, (R-Naperville).

Fawell is vice chairman of the Commission on the Organization of the General Assembly.

Some of the proposals to change the legislature will involve little cost, while others will cost some money.

THE COMMISSION, headed by Rep. Harold Katz, (D-Glencoe), will recommend full-time professional career staffing of major committees of education, public welfare, highways, revenue and appropriations for both the House and Senate.

Two young lawyers also would be employed for the House and Senate Judiciary committees. Also a part of the modernization will be the request for additional secretarial help in Springfield and a year-round secretarial pool for legislators.

It also will recommend that 10 full-time career assistants for the Senate and House leadership be provided, and one career professional to make cost projections for contemplated state programs.

THE COMMISSION will endorse a recommendation by the Legislative Space Commission, which calls for office space for legislators.

Fawell, in a sub-committee report last year, emphasized the great need for office, phone, and secretary for each member of the assembly.

He said, "It is utter illusion to see state legislatures, part-time or full-time, do much when their members have no offices, no secretaries, no assistants, no home offices, no committee staff and negligible research assistance."

HE POINTED out that a member of the house should at least have a telephone. Presently they have to go to a "pay phone" to make calls on legislative business.

Each legislator should have a secretary while the General Assembly is in session, he added, under some type of civil service.

Presently 15 secretaries serve the 177-member Illinois House of Representatives. The State Senate fares a little better because it has a pool of secretaries which means each member has "half a secretary," Fawell said.

HE SAID part of the problem of modernization of the Illinois Legislature is the lawmakers themselves. "A lot of the problems can be attributed to the apathy of the legislators over the years," he added.

The Naperville senator pointed to the "blue ribbon" legislature of 1965. A lot of new people came to Springfield and were appalled at the conditions under which a legislator has to function, said Fawell.

"The blue ribbon legislature stimulated the rest of us," said Fawell, although the average legislator is aware of the inadequacy of the process.

WILL THE General Assembly vote for the modernization proposals to be submitted by the commission? Fawell said it would have "fairly good support," but pointed out that the makeup of the two houses has changed since the Nov. 8 election. Some of the members who urged change were defeated, he indicated.

Mrs. Eugenia Chapman, (D-Arlington Heights) strongly believes offices for members of the General Assembly are a "must." But Mrs. Chapman added "whether the assembly sees fit to vote for the money to build the offices remains to be seen."

Fawell pointed out that legislators have in the past failed to tell their constituents how bad the conditions in Springfield are. "We're just plain fooling ourselves unless we tell the people that these improvements are needed," he added.

THE PEOPLE can't expect good legislation on complex things as air and water pollution, urban problems, education and transportation, until legislators are given adequate tools to work with.

The concept of state government must change. Illinois is operating under a concept adopted 150 years ago. Then sessions lasted weeks, today they last months; then the budget was in the thousands, today it's in the billions; then 200 bills were introduced, while in 1965 some 4,000 bills and resolutions were studied.

Fawell said if the reforms are adopted in the next few years they won't guarantee good legislation. But until they are adopted, he added, "you are guaranteed" of having the same old inept legislature that exists today.

An Election Postscript

by DAN BAUMANN
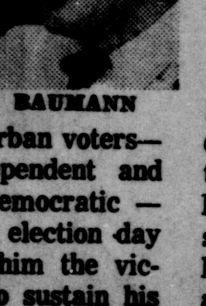
Managing Editor

Sen. Charles Harting Percy had better remember during the next six years it was the suburban voter who authorized his change of address to Washington.

It wasn't the Republican organization in Cook County or elsewhere (elsewhere the organization was sometimes less than thrilled with his candidacy) that put him in office. It was the army of suburban voters—Republican, independent and — obviously — Democratic — who ignored foul election day weather to give him the victory he needed to sustain his political life.



BAUMANN

RICHARD B. Ogilvie has cause to stop to consider the same set of facts when the pressure builds up to fill patronage jobs in the Cook County administration. It was not the Republican organization which made him president of the Cook County Board.

What gave these two men their victories (and it's true even though the Republican organization has made it a cliche) is the fact that voters of Cook County — especially suburban Cook County — have become fed up with the Democratic organization.

Richard J. Daley ought to keep that in mind as he ponders the rubble, for much of the suburban distaste for the Democratic organization stems from the Daley image. Rightly or not, he's held up as the Democratic bogeyman to suburbanites concerned with scandal and corruption in Cook County.

DALEY SHOULD consider giving the reins of the county central committee over to someone less closely identified with big city machine politics. For however popular Richard J. Daley is in Chicago — and he's one of the most popular and successful mayors the city's had recently — he and the image he projects and the images of the suburban party chiefs who follow his lead — are a drag for the Democrats. That could hurt — ala Nov. 8, 1966.

That should be evident; the Democrats who were little identified with the organization failed to provoke the wrath of suburbanites.

Additional and equally unsolicited advice to politicians:

To Richard Nixon, please watch a tape of Paul Douglas' concession speech.

TO EUGENIA Chapman, third district state representative who outdrew veteran legislator Bernie Peskin, be humble. And work hard to keep Bernie in public life; he deserves your help.

To Michael Butler, millionaire Democrat who was defeated in the 39th District (State Senate) race, if you're serious about making DuPage a two-party county, change your jet-set image.

DuPage voters are conservative personally as well as politically. Your advertising program attracted widespread attention but not enough voters to change the one-party complexion of DuPage. But by all means keep trying. There doesn't appear to be another Democrat in DuPage capable of the job.

TO JOHN Erlenborn and Don Rumsfeld, northwest suburban Republican congressmen, work hard even though you don't have to. You're going to keep being returned to Washington term after term unless you turn Communist — or Democrat.

Your challenge is not to become lazy.

The Way We See It

Suburban Voters Show New Muscle

The suburban vote—its nature and its size—is sure to be a major topic when the politicians get down to the post-election task of omission and commission.

A fact just beginning to impress itself on political observers is the startling development that within a few years, in major metropolitan areas such as Chicago, there will be more people living and working in the suburbs than in the city proper.

Twenty-five years ago, more than half of the nation's people were farmers or lived in towns and villages of less than 10,000 population. Today more than 50 million Americans live in suburbs and only 11 per cent of the people are farmers. During the next 10 years, we shall see a continuation of suburbanization at an accelerated pace.

Charles H. Percy, Illinois' new junior senator-elect, has long recognized the significance of this shift in political power. He unsuccessfully attempted to alert the 1964 Republican National Convention to this change. As suburbia's lone voice at that unhappy convention, he pressed vainly for greater GOP activity in the nation's suburbs.

"There can be no doubt about it," he declared in San Francisco, "the suburbs are the political battleground where the fates of the two parties will be settled. Any possibility of a real resurgence of the Republican Party as the majority party in the United States depends on the growth of our strength in the suburbs."

Reaction of most party leaders to his 1964 plea, recalls Percy, amounted to "an admission that suburbia was an area they have neglected. It reminded me of the company that doesn't call on its best customers."

The party suffered one of its most severe defeats in that election. The Republican National Ticket polled a disappointing 40.8% of the vote in suburbia. Whereas the GOP carried the suburbs of 34 major cities in 1960, it managed to take only 11 in 1964.

But the debacle of 1964 taught the GOP a lesson.

Heeding his own advice, Percy mounted an impressive campaign for 1966. Bolstered by such suburban-oriented Republicans as Richard Ogilvie and Donald Rumsfeld, Percy led the GOP to a stunning victory Nov. 8.

Although much attention has been directed to Percy's dramatic inroads on normally-Democratic city wards, it was Scott Cohen, a Percy aide, who recently put the victory into proper perspective: "This election was not really won in the City of Chicago. The great margins were in the suburbs . . ."

More than 727,000 Cook County suburbanites went to polls and gave 67% of their votes to Percy.

In six northwest suburban townships, 82.5% of registered voters cast ballots with nearly 80% of them for Percy.

In the 13th Congressional District, Rep. Rumsfeld's 108,000-vote margin was the largest of any of the nation's 435 congressional races. The all-suburban district cast 70.4% of its vote for Percy, 75.8% for Rumsfeld, and 74.8% for Ogilvie.

Wheeling Township produced the largest margin of victory for Republicans with a plurality of 19,364.

In DuPage County, a total 140,000 voters gave better than two-to-one victories to GOP candidates.

Republican strength in suburbia is not an automatic situation to be taken for granted, however, for as suburban populations grow in number, they change in character. Independence of action and split-ticket voting have always been prevalent in the suburbs.

This was demonstrated in the election of Adlai Stevenson III as state treasurer. His victory in view of the GOP tide was nothing short of miraculous. A factor in his hair-thin win was the suburban vote; Stevenson led the head of his ticket by 52,000 votes in Cook County suburbs, by 10% in northwest suburbs.

Democrats will be working even harder to woo this emerging suburban vote, and Republicans cannot rest on their recent success.

One fact is clear: the suburbanite represents a potent new force in Illinois politics.

The Measure of Men

Men often reveal their true character in moments of victory and defeat. No finer comment on the election, no clearer statement of the stature and integrity of Paul H. Douglas and Charles H. Percy can be offered than their own Election Night words:

"Let us remember that ours is one country and one state," declared a defeated Douglas. "It is important to remember that far beyond Election Day all of us will be living in this country; that what unites us is more important than what divides us; and that we must work together to serve the land we love. In that way, we can move forward as a united people to achieve greater justice, dignity and purpose in our own society while striving for an honorable and durable peace abroad."

Percy's words of victory were words of tribute: "Eleven months ago, when I announced my candidacy, I said, 'My opponent is a man whom I know well, beginning with our student-professor relationship many years ago. He is a man of conviction and courage. He will be a strong opponent.' I have no reason to alter those words tonight. He has fought the good fight, sometimes in the face of difficult circumstances. The generosity, the graciousness, and the great understanding he showed last September is something I will never forget.

"Senator Douglas has served his state and nation with a sense of duty and conviction matched by few men. If I can serve Illinois and the nation with the same degree of selfless dedication and integrity that Paul Douglas has, then I think I will have served well."

Be Wary of Superlative

by BETTY FORRESTER

"Lady, I tell you this is the best vacuum cleaner on the market."

Unconvinced, I didn't buy the machine.

Had the more than enthusiastic salesman had a chance to tell me the full story, I probably would have learned that this handiest of all devices was now available at the lowest price ever. It undoubtedly was made by the world's most skilled craftsmen, using the finest materials available. They all are, you know.

The culprit, (not the innocuous enough salesman) was the biggest fattest ugliest, dirtiest, liar around — the superlative.

Jigsaw Puzzle Fans Will Like Designs

Santa Claus' assortment of jigsaw puzzles is full of novelty flavor. Famous art is an increasingly popular base for jigsaw fans.

"The Last Supper" in 1000 interlocking pieces is a new arrival. A new Devon series of octagonal puzzles features works of James Constable and Rembrandt in 675 pieces each.

In the puzzle category, James Bond, Thunderball and Goldfinger provide a series of scenes based on the secret agent's adventures, each with 600 interlocking pieces.

The extra challenge of solving a mystery is added to the usual exercise of fitting picture parts together in a series by Milton Bradley. These include jigsaws keyed to action from "The Man From Uncle," and the Addams Family.

The conventional rectangular puzzle is still the top favorite, but a variety of octagonal and round shaped jigsaws are also being featured this Christmas.

Complex puzzles are gaining popularity, with the highest demand for 1500 - piece jigsaw puzzles since the turn of the century, says one authority.

MOEN

"HIS 'N HER" . . . Great new gift ideas—Combine convenience, beauty and year-long enjoyment this Christmas with an all-new Moenflo adjustable shower head for "HIM" . . . Moen's unique triple-acction Swivel/Spray kitchen faucet aerator for "HER." Each is individually packaged in festive holiday gold boxes and available through local plumbing contractors. They feature Moen's durable, solid brass craftsmanship and modern-as-tomorrow design.

Here's a really different, long-reminding Christmas gift idea . . . Moen's new deluxe Moenflo shower head and Swivel/Spray aerator for kitchen faucets, each individually packaged in sparkling holiday gold gift boxes.

The "man who has everything" would love to receive his own personal Moenflo shower head. Its many exclusive features will give him the most comfortable, luxurious shower he's ever had. Not only is any water stream available with finger-tip adjustment . . . from finest needle spray to large droplets . . . but the stream has a completely filled-in pattern, not just the ordinary ring of water. Moenflo's unique special design provides twin-action self-cleaning and eliminates internal wear points, too.

AND WHAT woman wouldn't want to make her kitchen faucet a "triple-action" appliance? She can, when you give her Moen's Swivel/Spray aerator. It swivels to direct water to every corner of the sink for fast, easy cleanups.

The regular stream of bubbly aerated water changes instantly to a needle spray, at the touch of a finger, that's perfect for rinsing dishes, washing vegetables . . . a hundred other uses. The Swivel/Spray aerator fits any kitchen faucet with standard spout threads, internal or external.

Both Moenflo and Swivel/Spray aerator are made with the traditional Moen craftsmanship that means long dependable service . . . solid brass, triple chrome plated, with spray formers of rugged Delrin.

Moenflo shower heads and Swivel/Spray aerators are elegantly packaged in special holiday gift boxes to look truly festive under the tree on Christmas morning. They are perfect answers for distinctive gifts for Christmas and every other gift occasion, too. New Model Cars Are Splendor in Giving

Key to the most magnificent of Christmas Gifts may well be the key to a new 1967 model motor car — or even, in some instances, to a late model used car.

There are at least three categories of human beings who are candidates for such a gift. One is an adult woman: mother, bride; two is an adult man: dad, or a groom; third is the student who's going to college, and in some instances the more mature teenager who may yet be in high school — either boy or girl.

It's the latter group especially, for whom the late model used car may well be considered.

Three Car Families

Thus, whereas not many years ago America heralded the advent of the "two car family"— one for dad and one for mom —the time has now come when families with children who are advance students are recognized as requiring three cars.

Dad needs his for business; mom needs her for shopping and chores and students need theirs to get to school or college, and back again.

The Christmas season is most appropriate for considering a new model car as a gift because the latest models with their exciting glamour and with modern safety features on regular models were introduced just a few months ago.

How to Give It

Plan ahead and arrangement can be completed with the dealer for delivery to be made on Christmas day.

And this raises the question of how best to make the gift of a car a really exciting surprise. Since wrapping and placing a car under the Christmas tree would be a most formidable task, some other plan must be conjured up.

Here are three suggestions.

1 — Arrange with the dealer to have the gift car driven to the house on Christmas morning. The driver is instructed to ask for the person to whom the car is to be given. When that person appears at the door, the driver says: "Your car is here. It's a gift from —" and presents the keys.

2 — Put the keys to the car in a jewel box with an appropriately worded message which also says where the car is at the moment.

3 — Put an envelope under the tree, containing a message with a telephone number to call. The message would be something as follows: "Santa says phone [illegible]. He has a message for you." This, too, must be arranged for in advance.

True, the gift of an automobile at Christmas time involves "big money," but remember, banks are ready to help.

Laughter Is Prize Object In Santa's Pack of Games

Light - hearted games are in ascendancy this Christmas. Laughter - kindling potency is a prize objective of a record crop of new plastic action games, all in 3D.

Approaches to game competition range from imaginative and brain challenging to zany and preposterously far out. While the bulk of games are beamed at primary and secondary school children, there is a significant rise in the number of laugh-provoking competitions designed to inveigle teen - agers and adults into frenetic participation.

In the roster of new games that score high on hilarity is Bird Brain, a fast paced card game with unexpected upsets. Wacky - looking bird shapes ring the circular board, and Brain cards are the troublemakers.

Mosquito is a rollicking sport in which each player launches a mosquito and tilts the board to maneuver it into prize territory.

Blop is a new version of fun with monsters. In this sport, players give Mr. Blop's tongue a swipe, and up shoots a plastic ball out of the hole in his head. Chicken Out is another laugh-provoking format where a pecking chicken determines moves.

The vogue for secret agents has left strong impact on the world of games and jigsaws. A map of Fort Knox is predictably the base for action in the James Bond Goldfinger Games. Thunderball involves underseas adventures. There is a high powered chance taking game for adults, tabbed Secret Agent 007.

Batman and Robin cavort in a combination game - jigsaw puzzle. The Ipcress File's action, too, is translated into game board terms. This Yule season featuring double agents, John Brakes' secret agent game focuses on briefcase legerdemain.

In the category of games appealing to teens and adults is Twister, played on a large plastic mat. Players literally tie themselves in knots by placing feet and arms in colored squares as directed by instructions from a spinner.

There's a trend for classic information games to go on and on in new editions, with fresh brain teasers. "Go to the Head of the Class" is out with a new quiz book beamed at three age levels to keep family competition even.

Concentration has an eighth edition of fun. Game of Life provides an eight million dollar stock of play money. The new Shenanigans reproduces a series of carnival fun games. Password has a fifth edition.

Celebrities sponsor a variety of games ranging from Patty Duke's game of Look - A - Likes to Alfred Hitchcock's Why.

Skill - It, a frying pan maze, puts a premium on moving marbles fast through a maze.

A novelty game which is gaining classic status is Operation, where zany operations are the focus of fun.

FASHION'S favorite look! The collar pump. It's simply beautiful . . . from ovalled toe to contemporary mid-heel. Delicate openings add more appeal. Most exciting, though, is the way it feels and fits . . . as if made for your foot alone. Parisian, a Red Cross Shoe, can be seen at Arlington Bootery & Men's Wear, Arlington Heights.

Homemaker Gift Idea: Hot Water

Santa's a man who understands women. Therefore, he knows that Mrs. Santa, like almost any homemaker, will really be thrilled with the gift of — an automatic water heater!

It isn't a gift that immediately appears to be especially luxurious and glamorous, and yet what could be more luxurious, even glamorous, than the gift of more leisure, more ease?

A modern water heater, in the correct "family size," contributes vitally to a homemaker's hours of relaxation by providing the volume of heated water essential to automatic hot - water laundering. If she has an automatic washer, she needs an up-to-date water heater.

Keeping pace with the many family needs for plenty of hot water is another virtue of the new water heaters which the homemaker will appreciate.

Compact in design, a modern water heater is planned to produce twice as much hot water as an older model that might be twice its size.

Sofa Bed Gift Can Be Clever, Useful

When Benjamin Franklin invented the buffet party due to a large number of guests and a shortage of chairs, the ingenuity which seasons American hospitality had its start.

Today's modern host is matching this creative planning, often turning a living room into sleeping quarters for guests.

Though space is at a premium in apartments and homes, an overnight guest or two can be accommodated with a convertible sofa. Englander Bed n' Sofas—carried exclusively in Arlington Heights at the Schneller Furniture Company — have the appearance equal to elegant interiors with dual purpose assets concealed from sight.

THE BED n' Sofa now ranks as a leading decorator piece while providing the homemaker with instant guest accommodations.

Americans are growing taller each generation and to satisfy the sleeping comfort of any guest, Bed n' Sofas now have supersize bedding. At the same time, there are compact models to squeeze an extra bed into a minimum amount of floor space. For example, a love seat converts to a single sleeper.

A complete selection of attractive fabric covers is offered and exposed wood comes in popular fruitwood or oil finishes. Englander has a range of designs to fit with a variety of well-appointed interiors, all of them on display at Schneller's. (SS

A TOUCH OF AMERICANA . . . is always "in" for contemporary homes and makes a gift of many uses. This wingback Bed n' Sofa by Englander captures the bygone charm of early American village square days. With tailored lines gentled by a crisply pleated skirt flounce, it converts to the strictly modern comfort of a urethane foam double bed. A gay 90's table lamp has been electrified to add a note of nostalgia and the wall has been decorated with antique English hunting prints and old-fashioned barn accessories, including Old Dobbin's horse collar. At Schneller Furniture, Arlington Heights.

Banks Help Santa With Cash, Ideas

If the gift list is long and funds are short, Santa might turn to local banks for money to implement Christmas ideas.

This year, the solution for the tardy planners may be a personal loan. Most full - service banks loan money to good customers on signature alone, merely checking credit rating. Interest runs from four and a half to six dollars a year for every $100 borrowed. Maximum amount that can be borrowed varies between $2500 and $5000 — more than enough to satisfy even the most extravagant Christmas shopper!

Firm believers in the adage that "prevention is better than cure" can head off '67 shopping problems, either by joining a Christmas Club at a local bank, or by opening a personal savings account, earmarked "Christmas."

"What to give" problems get help from full - service banks, too. Money, in crisp new bills or a special check, is always a favorite—and so are bank gifts ideas like these:

For Newlyweds. A year's rental on a safe deposit box could be the gift answer for a newly married daughter and son-in-law. It starts the young couple off in the excellent habit of keeping important documents (such as their brand - new marriage license) in a safe place.

Annual rental charges vary from six to 60 dollars, depending on the size of the box.

For Children. The youngsters on the list will welcome a start on their very first savings accounts.

Alternatively, the gift might be a money tree, laden with shiny quarters. Or, a more ambitious gift might be a trust fund, established for such important purposes as education or career.

For Teen - Agers. Open a checking account for the teenager in the family, and present him or her with a personalized checkbook in a favorite color. These days checkbooks come in a variety of patterns and color schemes — anything from polka dots to alligator.

A special checking account may be opened with a deposit of only a few dolllars, since no minimum balance is required.

For Appreciation. Say "Thank you" to mailmen, doormen, cleaning women and others who serve, with a specially designed Christmas gift envelope containing mint-new bills.

For Everyone. Certificates of Deposit, paying up to five per interest, make big gifts that keep growing in importance. Some are available for as little as $25 or $100. Mostly, they're issued in amounts of $1000.

Reflecting Joy

Mirrors reflect holiday happiness. Styles are available to fit any decor, and make the gift more personal.

FOR HOURS OF PERSONAL LEISURE, loungewear is purely feminine—sheer, floating and softly swirling in satins, chiffons, velours, velveteens or matelasses, crepes and even arnel tricot. Today, a woman dresses up to stay at home, whether just relaxing or entertaining at a special party. Many of these Boutique pieces and many casual basics, robes in a variety of fabrics may be found at Cover Girl in Randhurst, Mount Prospect.

Diebetic Candies Available

Maybe it isn't news, but an increasing number of adults and children is being found to have dietary problems.

An increase in sugar diabetes is a strong case in point, and there is calorie counting with weight as a factor and digestive tract disturbances. These are not pleasant things to think about at Christmas, but it does mean that many children know they can not have candy in their Christmas stockings.

But all is not bad! Ma & Pa's Country Candy store, Arlington Heights Road and Davis, Arlington Heights, will have hard, sugar-free, low calorie candies for Christmas.

For more information, just call on "Ma." She knows such things that seem important like Sorbital is not a chemical sweetener and she will mail candy out of town for you. So for a Merry Christmas, you can think "sweetly." (SS

New 'Jewels' Glow With Gift Charm

While it may be true that "all that glitters is not gold," the beauty and versatility of glittering fashion jewelry can add a special enjoyment to a woman's Christmas, suggests the Jewelry Industry Council.

Shopping Santas can choose from an extravagant array of necklaces, some impressive and multi-stranded or delicate and light, some near-chokers or long loopable chains. For more neckline glamor, the popular pendant makes an exciting gift, too.

Why not charm her with a charm bracelet? Vivid multicolored charms of festive hue and shape jingle with the season's joy. Or, bedeck her wrist with a bangle, from today's exciting variety of finishes and sizes.

Dramatic long earrings are a fashionable way to dazzle her. She might prefer the dainty, "pierced" look of clipless earrings — or, pierced earrings themselves may be just the gift for her.

Fashionable pins can be found in a vivid variety of styles, shapes and sizes. Her wardrobe can be enhanced with one very large pin, or a number of small ones, in golden textures or brightly be-jeweled.

Beauty for evening highlights the delicate look of fine-textured simulated gold jewelry stuffed with neo-topaz and deep-toned brilliants. Or, enhance the drama of her evening wardrobe with bright mock - precious stones and rhinestones.

For the casual look at Christmas is tailored gold-colored jewelry, plain or spiced with colorful stones. Silver enters the gift and style scene in beautiful, intricate designs.

Slippers Are Key To Home Comfort

At Christmas, thoughts turn homeward. It's a time for merriment and festivity — and a time, too, for the joys of home and family, the pleasures of relaxing at the familiar "hearthside."

To help everyone in the family enjoy the comforts of home even more are gifts of smart and cozy slippers.

Mom's hours at home are busy ones, but slipper gifts put her in the leisure class, for at least part of her active days. New mules, sandals, bootees and slip-ons combine foot ease with elegance.

Sandals Styled for Her

There are a myriad different styles in the sandal and slip-on department, many foldable for traveling and storage convenience.

Lounge - about bootees in smooth or suede leather will appeal to her comfort and her fashion sense. Or give her a Yule mule — perhaps of silver reptile - embossed leather, bound in gold, or a high-fronted mule in pastel suede with fur trim.

Dad, the man-on-the-go, will be happy to relax in slippers that set a leisurely pace — be they boots, moccasins or opera style. If he's got cold feet (literally), he'll favor a shearling-lined leather slipper. For a more formal look are slippers with smooth leather linings.

A new style which may please him is the open-backed loafer-mule with moc front. Or, if he's a frequent traveler, packable slippers in glove or suede leather make ideal gifts.

Boots for Lounging

The teen-age miss in the family will slide into her dashing boot - slippers at every opportunity — on the phone, during her homework, at bedtime, overnight at a friend's. This season, teen slipper styles make much use of chains, braid and the out-sized industrial zipper as ornamentation.

Teen males, too, get a boot out of the bedroom boot.

Slippers may not be in the same class with vehicle-track toys, walking dolls and bikes, but kids usually consider them tops in the apparel gift category. They like the breezy styles and colors, while parents appreciate the way lively boots encourage "barefoot boys" — and girls — to keep feet warm and covered.

Leather slippers for the family are available in an especially wide range of textures this season. Smooth, brushed, suede, patent and embossed leathers are among the many choices ready for gifting.

EVERY KID in the land loves Crazy Foam with all its wild, wacky puppet heads and its hours of built-in fun. The Santa Claus can should be under every Christmas tree. P.S. For anyone who has not been exposed to it, Crazy Foam is a mild, foamy soap that squirts out and molds into any crazy thing you can dream up. At Harris Pharmacy, Arlington Heights.

Sportsman Gifts Are New, Varied

Find the man's sport interest —and what man doesn't play, or play spectator, at one or more sports? Therein lies a ripe area for gifting.

Once a particular sports area is pinpointed, even the most casual examination shows an almost unending choice of gifts in equipment, accessories and apparel.

Take, for instance, the ever-growing world of bowling. Shoes, improved balls, personalized shirts, ball carriers and tote bags for equipment only begin the list of possibilities for Christmas giving.

Another fast comer in the sports popularity race is boating, where the gifts range from oarlocks and hand compasses to ship - to - shore radios and powerful binoculars. Galley equipment and maintenance tools are good choices, too.

That perennial sports favorite, fishing, makes giving a gift a breeze, with many different kinds of gear available. Tackle boxes, flies and lures, rubber boots and pants, hooks and lines are always welcomed by the angler, as of course are new rods and reels.

Guns and ammo come to mind immediately as gifts for hunters, but how about tents and camping stoves, game bags or tiny electric handwarmers, new styles in hats and hunting jackets, or a portable radio or TV set for resting time by the campfire?

For the tennis man, besides the always - needed balls and rackets, there are many choices among racket presses, sneakers, shorts, windbreakers — and for a unique gift, membership in the local tennis club, if he is not already a member — or, a renewal.

Golfers seem to enjoy unusual gifts, as is attested to by the variety offered. Examples include handy mechanical scorekeepers and home putting outfits that audibly let the putter know where he was wrong. Go carts to carry the golfer comfortably from one tee to the next are popular.

Billiard players are increasing in number yearly, and so are the gifting potentials, with many new model billiard tables designed for home use.

Sportsman Gifts Are New, Varied

Find the man's sport interest—and what man doesn't play, or play spectator, at one or more sports? Therein lies a ripe area for gifting.

Once a particular sports area is pinpointed, even the most casual examination shows an almost unending choice of gifts in equipment, accessories and apparel.

Take, for instance, the ever-growing world of bowling. Shoes, improved balls, personalized shirts, ball carriers and tote bags for equipment only begin the list of possibilities for Christmas giving.

Another fast comer in the sports popularity race is boating, where the gifts range from oarlocks and hand compasses to ship - to - shore radios and powerful binoculars. Galley equipment and maintenance tools are good choices, too.

That perennial sports favorite, fishing, makes giving a gift a breeze, with many different kinds of gear available. Tackle boxes, flies and lures, rubber boots and pants, hooks and lines are always welcomed by the angler, as of course are new rods and reels.

Guns and ammo come to mind immediately as gifts for hunters, but how about tents and camping stoves, game bags or tiny electric handwarmers, new styles in hats and hunting jackets, or a portable radio or TV set for resting time by the campfire?

For the tennis man, besides the always - needed balls and rackets, there are many choices among racket presses, sneakers, shorts, windbreakers — and for a unique gift, membership in the local tennis club, if he is not already a member — or, a renewal.

Golfers seem to enjoy unusual gifts, as is attested to by the variety offered. Examples include handy mechanical scorekeepers and home putting outfits that audibly let the putter know where he was wrong. Go carts to carry the golfer comfortably from one tee to the next are popular.

ROYAL HOLLAND PEWTER leads as a gift of graciousness, beauty and great practicality. At House of Jarvis, Arlington Heights, you'll find a fine selection of this pewter including coffee and tea sets, pitchers, candlesticks, bowls, beer mugs, vases, candy dishes. It is handspun by J. N. Daalderop and Sons in the ancient Dutch city of Tiel, founded by the Romans some 2000 years ago. Royal Holland pewter has a patina finish, needs no polishing, and will never tarnish because it contains no lead or zinc. Soap and lukewarm water are the only cleansing agents necessary.

Pearl Magic

Is she dreaming of a white Christmas? Give her the glowing white magic of pearls.

The classic beauty of a pearl necklace is ever popular. Hidden or jeweled clasps add new versatility.

Consider, too, the enchantment of a delicate bracelet, fashioned from daintily woven strands of small cultured pearls. Pins, rings, earrings and pendants formed of small clusters of pearls offer still other ideas.

They're Strategic

Games of strategy are attracting a larger following, including an impressive female contingent. This roster offers replays such as: Battlecry, a replay of the Civil War conflicts; Broadside, keyed to the 1812 naval exercises; Dog Fight, oriented to World War I air battles; and Hit the Beach, staged in the South Pacific.

Silver Gifts Lend Shine to Holiday

Just as the sparkling sound of Christmas jingles from silver bells, the look of the Yule season can be captured and held in lustrous silver gifts. A present of silver will be put to a multitude of merry uses from the moment it is opened, suggests the Jewelry Industry Council.

And its gleaming beauty will continue to add a holiday glow to the home for years to come.

For a feeling of festivity at every meal, nothing can match sterling silver flatware. Fine silver, whether traditional or contemporary in design, flatters any decor, and daily use only adds to its distinguished loveliness.

A keynote of elegance in the home is glamorously provided by the resplendent shine of silver holloware. Exquisite and timeless in value, silver serving dishes, sauce boats, sugar and creamer sets, candelabra, cruet sets, ashtrays and cigarette boxes gloriously adorn any table.

Everyone's home is said to be his castle, and a really royal appearance is achieved when such items of silver holloware as condiment dishes, vases, coasters, table lighters and bar accessories send their shimmer across a room.

A single piece of silver holloware may be used in many imaginative ways, and this attractive attribute of versatility is always appreciated. A graceful, gleaming silver bowl will delight the household when used as a fruit centerpiece, flower holder, relish dish, salad bowl or open vegetable dish.

A bread tray may alternate as a vegetable server or relish dish, and myriads of scintillating centerpieces can be created with an elegant tea tray.

Sterling silver desk accessories, including clocks, memo pads and letter openers, are sure to add distinction to a den.

Another merry thought is a silver picture frame — perhaps holding a happy family photograph taken on Christmas morning.

Throughout the years, the thoughtfulness of the Christmas giver will linger on in the luster and utility of a Yuletide gift of silver.

Spices Make Savory Gift

A selection of spices arranged in an attractive spice rack makes a decorative kitchen gift for the culinary artist on the Christmas list.

All varieties of spices are available today in glass jars, reports the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

Because many spice jars are elegantly designed, more and more homemakers are storing spices in full view in the kitchen. Even the colorful spices they contain add to the decor—as well as the menu!

A trip to the food market will uncover a wide array of spice varieties that can be included in the gift selection. These include bay leaf, cayenne, chili, cinnamon, cloves, thyme, sage, paprika and oregano.

Spice racks that hold from six to 60 spice jars are carried in most department stores and specialty shops.

Hang a Handbag on Her Christmas Tree

To make her holiday happy, hang a handbag on her Christmas tree. And, for a new idea in giving, why not present her with a brace of bags.

Many women these days prefer to carry two purses: an elegant smaller leather bag, and a larger leather handbag — perhaps a "feed-bag," saddle-bag or shopping-tote type — for papers, books, shopping parcels and other bulkier essentials.

The gift duo can be matched, coordinated or completely different in style, leather and color.

For dressy afternoon wear, there are pretty pouches, envelopes or swagger bags trimmed with brushed gold, distinctively styled handles or a second leather texture or color. More informal satchels, totes, shoulder-strappers and pouches in medium to large sizes can serve her smartly through busy hours of working, shopping, visiting.

She'll cherish 'most any style in the current handbag collection, crafted from handsome, durable leather textures — patent, grained and smooth leathers, suede, brushed and waxy leathers, embossed and saffian leathers.

Gala occasions will be doubly delightful with the gift of a glamorous late-day or evening bag. Choices include lustre, smooth, suede or embossed leathers. For fun, some have long shoulder straps.

Home Entertainment Offers Gifted Ideas

Variety both in kind and price is a prime advantage of home entertainment equipment as a source of gift ideas.

There are the basic categories — radios, TV sets, record players, stereo units, tape recorders — and then there is an impressive diversity of ideas within each of these groups.

Prices vary with the type of gift, from the miniature TV sets, radio or tape recorder to the big-screen TV set or furniture-styled stereo.

Credit plans make even the more costly gifts fit the budget comfortably.

Whatever the cost, the thoughtful giver studies gift possibilities thoroughly, before making his selection.

This Christmas, many Santas will be shopping for color television. Portable, miniaturized TV sets are available in both white and color, and they are deservedly popular. The trend, however, seems to be toward the big screen color set, a favorite with shoppers throughout the year.

Elsewhere, something "new" has been discovered — radio! Along with more diversified programming, and more FM programming, car, clock and carry-about radios have brought about renewed popularity for this medium.

Manufacturers are doing their part, by designing radio models to fit every need, every car, every room, every personal taste. Santa will find a wide gift selection.

Tape recorders put the emphasis on practical entertainment, by combining useful business or study features with enhanced music recording ability and other just-for-fun ideas.

Stereo developments spread from increased portability in some models to elegant living-room styling in others.

Phonographs go portable, for the on-the-move set, or combine with radio, and in some cases TV, in the more elaborate at-home models.

Home Entertainment Offers Gifted Ideas

Variety both in kind and price is a prime advantage of home entertainment equipment as a source of gift ideas.

There are the basic categories — radios, TV sets, record players, stereo units, tape recorders — and then there is an impressive diversity of ideas within each of these groups.

Prices vary with the type of gift, from the miniature TV sets, radio or tape recorder to the big-screen TV set or furniture-styled stereo.

Credit plans make even the more costly gifts fit the budget comfortably.

Whatever the cost, the thoughtful giver studies gift possibilities thoroughly, before making his selection.

This Christmas, many Santas will be shopping for color television. Portable, miniaturized TV sets are available in both white and color, and they are deservedly popular. The trend, however, seems to be toward the big screen color set, a favorite with shoppers throughout the year.

Elsewhere, something "new" has been discovered — radio! Along with more diversified programming, and more FM programming, car, clock and carry-about radios have brought about renewed popularity for this medium.

Manufacturers are doing their part, by designing radio models to fit every need, every car, every room, every personal taste. Santa will find a wide gift selection.

Tape recorders put the emphasis on practical entertainment, by combining useful business or study features with enhanced music recording ability and other just - for - fun ideas.

Stereo developments spread from increased portability in some models to elegant living-room styling in others.

Phonographs go portable, for the on-the-move set, or combine with radio, and in some cases TV, in the more elaborate at-home models.

Psychologists Tell What, How to Give at Christmas

What makes some gifts so successful—while others, perhaps much more expensive, get a reception that's merely polite?

Psychologists have studied the act of giving and —even more important—what it is like to receive a gift. Their findings, reported by Shulton, furnish some helpful answers to the question of what and how to give.

1. A gift should be a symbol. According to Dr. Kurt Lewin, Iowa University psychologist, a gift should represent what you feel for someone, or what you'd like to do for that person. It ought to be a shorthand way of telling the loved one: "This is how beautiful you are" or "You're as lovely as a desert flower."

2. A gift should be a surprise. Useful and practical, yes, but not prosaic—it should have the spice of the unexpected. Dr. Rollo May, noted American psychologist, believes that the moment of giving should be clearly highlighted and set apart by the gift; it must be a unique moment in the ordinary routine of life. This can be accomplished by the surprise quality of the present: for example, a hardheaded businessman giving his wife a book of her favorite poems—or a wife, who knows nothing about the stock market, taking the trouble to search out a book on the subject because it will please her mate.

3. A GIFT should not create anxiety. A fragile, hard-to-care-for or easy-to-lose present may make the recipient anxious, and destroy most of his pleasure in the gift. An overly lavish present can also create anxiety and embarrassment—if the recipient thinks that you expect an equally expensive gift in return.

4. A gift should be something the other person wants — not something you think he should have. If you know a youngster who's been dying for a new baseball glove, by all means give it to him—even if his spelling grades indicate that a dictionary might be more in order. A gift is not medicine, and should not be selected because it's "good for" someone. But what if you can't pick up any hints? Maybe you're not listening hard enough. Psychologists have found that when a person talks about the things someone else has, he often gives away his own yearnings.

5. A gift is a sharing of yourself with someone else. To emphasize this quality of sharing, a gift should remind the recipient of your relationship with him or her. If you both love the scent of lilacs or roses, give THE LADY a perfume like "Escapade" which combines these favorite fragrances. Or perhaps the gift or its wrappings can be in a color the recipient associates with you.

6. A gift should say "quality," no matter what its price. A well-made present of obviously high quality is very flattering—it says that, as far as you're concerned, the recipient deserves the best. No matter what you're buying, you can be assured of good quality if you choose time-tested brands, and items which carry a simple, unconditional guarantee.

7. A GIFT is an announcement. It should say Happy Birthday, I Love You, Merry Christmas, or whatever you want to convey. Don't lose sight of this function, and don't fail to enclose a card that expresses the sentiments you want to convey. Don't just sign your name to a printed card—a few sincere phrases of your own devising add an extra dimension to any gift.

8. A gift must have a proper setting. Psychologists say that the act of giving must be a bit of make-believe, a little play-acting between two people. This holds true no matter how long you've known each other, or how unsentimental you believe you are. Never hurriedly give something as you dash out the door, or as a peace offering after an unpleasant moment. Be relaxed, establish a pleasant mood, talk around the subject first: "I thought of you this afternoon . . ." or "I saw the most marvelous . . ."

A gift can be and say many things. But not if you give money—it will never perform any of the things a gift should do. Worse, it may actually cause resentment—for the other person may take it to mean that he needs cash!

According to some experts, there is no really original gift—you as the giver make a gift original. The though, the moment, the wrapping—these create a memorable atmosphere and give your gift that something extra that makes it certain to be well-received. (SS

What makes some gifts so successful—while others, perhaps much more expensive, get a reception that's merely polite?

Psychologists have studied the act of giving and —even more important—what it is like to receive a gift. Their findings, reported by Shulton, furnish some helpful answers to the question of what and how to give.

1. A gift should be a symbol. According to Dr. Kurt Lewin, Iowa University psychologist, a gift should represent what you feel for someone, or what you'd like to do for that person. It ought to be a shorthand way of telling the loved one: "This is how beautiful you are" or "You're as lovely as a desert flower."

2. A gift should be a surprise. Useful and practical, yes, but not prosaic—it should have the spice of the unexpected. Dr. Rollo May, noted American psychologist, believes that the moment of giving should be clearly highlighted and set apart by the gift; it must be a unique moment in the ordinary routine of life. This can be accomplished by the surprise quality of the present: for example, a hardheaded businessman giving his wife a book of her favorite poems—or a wife, who knows nothing about the stock market, taking the trouble to search out a book on the subject because it will please her mate.

3. A GIFT should not create anxiety. A fragile, hard-to-care-for or easy-to-lose present may make the recipient anxious, and destroy most of his pleasure in the gift. An overly lavish present can also create anxiety and embarrassment—if the recipient thinks that you expect an equally expensive gift in return.

4. A gift should be something the other person wants — not something you think he should have. If you know a youngster who's been dying for a new baseball glove, by all means give it to him—even if his spelling grades indicate that a dictionary might be more in order. A gift is not medicine, and should not be selected because it's "good for" someone. But what if you can't pick up any hints? Maybe you're not listening hard enough. Psychologists have found that when a person talks about the things someone else has, he often gives away his own yearnings.

5. A gift is a sharing of yourself with someone else. To emphasize this quality of sharing, a gift should remind the recipient of your relationship with him or her. If you both love the scent of lilacs or roses, give THE LADY a perfume like "Escapade" which combines these favorite fragrances. Or perhaps the gift or its wrappings can be in a color the recipient associates with you.

6. A gift should say "quality," no matter what its price. A well-made present of obviously high quality is very flattering—it says that, as far as you're concerned, the recipient deserves the best. No matter what you're buying, you can be assured of good quality if you choose time-tested brands, and items which carry a simple, unconditional guarantee.

7. A GIFT is an announcement. It should say Happy Birthday, I Love You, Merry Christmas, or whatever you want to convey. Don't lose sight of this function, and don't fail to enclose a card that expresses the sentiments you want to convey. Don't just sign your name to a printed card—a few sincere phrases of your own devising add an extra dimension to any gift.

8. A gift must have a proper setting. Psychologists say that the act of giving must be a bit of make-believe, a little play-acting between two people. This holds true no matter how long you've known each other, or how unsentimental you believe you are. Never hurriedly give something as you dash out the door, or as a peace offering after an unpleasant moment. Be relaxed, establish a pleasant mood, talk around the subject first: "I thought of you this afternoon . . ." or "I saw the most marvelous . . ."

A gift can be and say many things. But not if you give money—it will never perform any of the things a gift should do. Worse, it may actually cause resentment—for the other person may take it to mean that he needs cash!

According to some experts, there is no really original gift —you as the giver make a gift original. The though, the moment, the wrapping—these create a memorable atmosphere and give your gift that something extra that makes it certain to be well-received. (SS

Choosing Her Ring Is Yuletide Custom

In the spring a young man's thoughts lightly turn to thoughts of love. At Christmas time his thoughts turn to the purchase of the diamond engagement ring!

Usually, the question arises, "Who picks out the ring?" There are no fixed rules, but nowadays most young couples prefer to shop together for the ring.

This procedure has the advantage of allowing the girl to select a ring style most flattering to her hand. If the man visits the jeweler's in advance, to pre - select several types of rings within his price range, there will be no budget embarrassment, either.

If the man prefers to surprise the girl, he would be wise to get some idea of her ring style preferences.

There are no "bargains" in diamonds, and every couple should remember this. No two diamonds are alike, and even two diamonds of the same size have different qualities of color, clarity and brilliance. That's why prices vary.

These characteristics, not the whim of the jeweler, determine the price of a diamond — carat-weight, cut, color, and clarity.

Carat is the unit of measure in weighing diamonds. The carat is divided into 100 points, just like the cents in a dollar. The 50-point diamond — most popular size for an engagement ring —weighs half a carat.

Cut refers to the shape of a diamond and the arrangement of the facets, "the little planes that catch the light and make the diamond sparkle." The round or brilliant cut, with 58 facets, is the most popular shape.

Color of a diamond affects its price. The traditional bridal diamond is clear and colorless. The whiter the diamond, the rarer it is, and the more costly.

Clarity, the fourth C, means the absence of carbon spots, bubbles and other natural imperfections.

All Tastes, Needs Met By Watches

When the time for giving draws near, Santa knows that the timely gift for young and old is a timepiece, says the jewelry Industry Council.

To flatter a feminine wrist, bewitching new watches await selection. Delicate bracelet watches, which add a high fashion accent to afternoon and evening wardrobes, feature jeweled cover lids concealing or revealing the time as she wishes.

Rugged and sporty "Continental" models, with large, easy-to-read faces and broad, eye-catching straps in kid, brocade, satin, leather or textured metals are the latest watchword in wrist witchery.

Gold watches are even more elegant this year, with moss, frosty and nuggety, as well as Florentine and polished finishes.

The man on the list can tell time for sport, business or dress occasions by a watch from the wide and handsome selection at the jeweler's. Precision-styled timepieces, thin and streamlined for a masculine wrist, will also tell him the day, year and even the tide.

Whatever his occupation or hobby, scientific timekeeping ingenuity assures a watch to meet his needs — for example, self winding watches that resist wind, water, dust, shock and magnetic fields.

For teen-agers, balancing on the brink of adulthood, the gift of a watch is a sign of recognition of their imminent maturity. There are many fine watches to gratify a young man. In addition to wrist-watches, a teen-age girl will thrill to a watch set in a pendant, ring or pin.

SEVEN KINDS OF LIME, blended with the Old Spice know-how, make Old Spice Lime the most exciting of gifts for men! Gifts of Jewelry Welcomed by Men

To put a gleam of gladness in a man's eyes that will outshine the lights on his Christmas tree, give him the very things he will treasure — gifts of jewelry.

To give him the feeling of owning something which is uniquely his, a monogrammed present is sure to do the trick, suggests the Jewelry Industry Council.

No man can resist the prestige of attractive belt buckles, tie bars, cufflinks, rings and such leather accessories as wallets and cigarette cases, especially when they're distinctively monogrammed or initialed.

Many Rings to Choose

Handsome rings are fast becoming popular as symbols of success and goals achieved. Flatter his masculine ego with an emblem ring bearing the insignia of school, fraternity or lodge.

A huge selection of modern signet rings allows the choice of one specially suited to him.

He may disclaim sentimentality, but a birthstone ring, with all the connotations of his birth month gem, is a gift a man will wear with pride.

A Second Watch

Although he may have a watch, he may not have one each for dress, sport and business. He'd never ask for another, nor buy one himself, but his joy would be obvious over such a Christmas present.

An attractive variety of watch bands for all occasions can also be found at the jewelry store.

Other ways to please a man this Christmas are with gifts such as desk sets, money clips, key chains, silver - backed brushes and bar accessories. Cigarette boxes, cases, holders and lighters are also sure to satisfy.

Old and New Reflected With Cards

New trends are starting; old favorites remain. And the choice of Christmas greeting cards is more varied than ever.

Some greeting card companies see a growing interest in the nostalgic message.

Although the tried and true "A merry Christmas and a happy New Year to you" remains almost the standard holiday greeting, there is a heavier than usual sprinkling of such phrases as "fond memories," or "thinking of you, and "miles apart," notes Webster Schott, editorial director of Hallmark cards.

For the elegant Christmas card, there's a new look, observes Mrs. Peggy Gilbert, head of the Norcross design studio.

Collages of yarns, felts, fruits are taken directly from the latest interior decorating fashions and photographed. There are also cards designed in gold, and cards embossed, silk-screened, bejeweled.

New trends are starting; old favorites remain. And the choice of Christmas greeting cards is more varied than ever.

Some greeting card companies see a growing interest in the nostalgic message.

Although the tried and true "A merry Christmas and a happy New Year to you" remains almost the standard holiday greeting, there is a heavier than usual sprinkling of such phrases as "fond memories," or "thinking of you, and "miles apart," notes Webster Schott, editorial director of Hallmark cards.

For the elegant Christmas card, there's a new look, observes Mrs. Peggy Gilbert, head of the Norcross design studio.

Collages of yarns, felts, fruits are taken directly from the latest interior decorating fashions and photographed. There are also cards designed in gold, and cards embossed, silk-screened, bejeweled.

Santa Arrives Early!

CHRISTMAS GIFTS SEASON IS OFFICIALLY OPEN! So delares the man who should know—Santa Claus himself. Most renowned of all gift givers, the jovial, red-suited gentleman has come to town to offer his assistance and inspiration to every other gift giver in this community.

As he launches the biggest, brightest, merriest Christmas shopping season yet, Santa presides over an array of gifts that is indeed exciting, and filled with surprises — an array now spread forth on the counters and racks, the windows and shelves of the town's leading stores.

He Advises: Get Going Now!

Santa's early arrival has one most important purpose. He is here to remind gifts givers that prompt planning, early action are essential, not only for carefree shopping but also for the successful gifting that leads to a really memorable Christmastime.

True, a first glance seems to indicate that this year's calendar is kind to the laggards. There are 26 shopping days — one more than last year — in the "traditional" shopping period between Thanksgiving and Christmas. And, since Christmas comes on Sunday, there are six full shopping days in the final week before the holiday.

But Santa cautions givers against being lulled into "overconfidence." Those shopping days can really fly! How about the big gifts, for instance? It doesn't really pay to shop hurriedly, at the last minute, for such wonderful surprises as a color TV set, a major appliance, fine jewelry, new sofa or dining room group. For the gifts that are big in size as well as significance, there's a delivery problem involved. Stores are going all out to assure deliveries in time for Christmas, but even with this special effort, a last-minute selection of a major item is likely to lead to a gift that arrives, disappointingly, after Christmas is all over.

And how about the pleasure of careful, considerate shopping? Much of the fun of the holiday is missed, by giver as well as receiver, if delay makes it necessary, at the last minute, to shop by snatching up something that "will do."

With the wide, dazzling assortment arrayed for gift selections, a prompt start is necessary, to take full advantage of the many opportunities for choosing just the right presents.

Preview Gifts Here

For all these reasons, and more, Santa's motto is as it ever will be, "Let's wrap up this Christmas early!"

When to begin? Tomorrow is none too soon! In fact, shoppers can get a head start now, by previewing the hundreds of story and picture suggestions for gifts, in this newspaper's Special Christmas Gifts Section. Here, too, leading stores have taken advertising space to present the highlights of their gifts collection.

Parents and children might begin by shopping together, amid the marvels of Toyland. For today's sophisticated youngsters, new toys, dolls and games put the emphasis on life - like realism. Both education and creativity get a hearing, but with no sacrifice of good old-fashioned fun.

It's a natural step from realistic Toyland to such actual needs and wishes of the family as furniture, appliances and entertainment gifts. Many of these gift decisions can only be made after a joint shopping trip.

Replace Old with New

Along with beauty and comfort, new furniture stresses versatility, as tables, sofas, chests and other storage units are designed to serve at least two purposes.

Appliances present many new developments, many extra features — so many, that Santa's helpers will be well - advised to consider replacing one or more pieces of major kitchen and laundry equipment this year. Among small appliances, too, there are many gifted opportunities for replacing old with new, or adding new convenience.

The same holds true for entertainment gifts. Transistorizing and portability spread the possibilities for individual as well as family gifting of TV, radio, phonographs and tape recorders, while color TV grows in gift importance.

For The Young

The range of gifts for personal pleasure was never wider. From fine jewelry and silver to apparel and accessories, from sports and hobby ideas to bicycles and cars, from tools to toiletries, the selection now ready provides chances galore to delight every individual, in an individual way.

Along with such basic gift categories as "for Mom, Dad, the kids," special attention is paid this year to the growing group of "under 25" young people. To meet their lively, up-to-date tastes and interests, manufacturers and stores are presenting an appropriate variety of gifts—from watches to please the new liking for unusual styles to sportier auto accessories.

It's all part of a great Christmas shopping season — offering extensive, exciting ways to happier gifting!

Mail Early For Holiday

One thing is sure in mailing Christmas cards, letters and packages — the earlier they go out, the better!

"Mail early" means: All packages and out-of-state Christmas cards and letters should be mailed by December 10th. Mail local Christmas cards by December 16th.

Since October 15th was the recommended mailing deadline for packages to men in Viet Nam, any tardy parcels should go out immediately.

In addition to timing, there are several factors which help assure proper delivery of Christmas packages. One of the most important is clear and full addressing, plus correct return addressing.

Wrap packages securely, and provide adequate padding.

For speediest delivery of gifts and cards, be sure to use zip code numbers.

Help His Hobby

A popular approach to Christmas giving is the hobby gift—something to add to the hobby he already has — or start him off on a new hobby that will provide enjoyment throughout the year.

Stocking Gifts Doubly Right

Fill her stocking — with stockings. This Christmas finds the stocking high in importance as a fashion accessory, so that the "gift she always needs" can be doubly pleasing.

With hemlines rising, a little or a lot, special styles in stockings for shorter skirts make timely gifts. Short-welt or no-welt seamless stockings assure added inches of sheer elegance.

Festively right for holiday giving are glitter stockings that reflect the glamour of her costumes. One such style is a crochet stocking that intertwines gold and black or silver and white. Textures, casual or festive, continue in the news.

Many stockings come in special gift boxes for Santa's greater giving ease.

Artful Gifts

Art reproductions and prints, framed to match the decor, are an unique way of gifting the newlyweds in the family. They especially will appreciate and find much use for every kind of house gift.

Because Wise Men Came Bearing Gifts

By ANNA MANG

There's a special feeling in the air. Churches, dwellings, stores and other business buildings reflect a mood of joy and anticipation. Every face wears a smile.

Christmas is coming!

Right now, much of the preparation for this happiest holiday centers around the selection of gifts — gifts to go under the tree, into the stockings, off to the post office and into the homes of friends and relations. For Christmas is gift giving time.

There are those who ask, "Why is Christmas so commercial?" The complaint implied is, at first thought, an understandable one. Why indeed should this important holy day of the Christian religion become a time noted for the exchange of gifts?

For many, Christmas is a secular holiday. But even for those to whom it has the deepest religious significance, gift giving is in fact an expression of that significance.

A clue to the real importance of gifts at Christmas comes from a comparison of two ideas — "exchanging gifts" and "giving gifts." The feeling that a gift must be given to someone, because a gift will be received in return, is never properly part of Christmas.

But to give a gift, out of appreciation, friendship, love or, simply, out of the gladness of heart that the season brings, expresses the generosity that is the very spirit of Christmas.

Because Wise Men brought gifts to the Manger, the tradition of giving is a hallowed one. They gave from the heart, and gave of their best, to honor an Infant King. Their gifts were precious treasures, in terms of worldly wealth — gold, frankincense and myrrh.

As the many legends of Christmas attest, the simple gift is no less precious. One story relates that weeds, brought to the Manger by a peasant child, were transformed into glorious flowers.

To give according to means, and to give thoughtfully, is to give that which will be cherished. Where means permit, the gift of greater monetary value can, equally well, represent thoughtfulness. The Wise Men, after all, gave costly treasures, appropriately chosen from their stores of wealth.

Large or small, inexpensive or more costly, the gift gains meaning from the generous spirit.

This Christmas, there are millions who are fortunate in the ability to give generously, and the inclination to do so. Yet, Christmas need not be "commercial." Gifts selected with the sincere wish of pleasing, by givers who take thought of special needs and interests, will always have a value money cannot buy.

All Family Can Enjoy New Games

Children and Christmas go together. And the choice of gifts for children, especially if some are selected with adult participation in mind, can go a long way in determining the family fun and excitement of this year's activities beneath the Christmas tree.

Games are one category of gifting that never fails to please both the kids and the grownups. Older sister and brother, as well as Mom and Dad, can get a lot of enjoyment from many games supposedly "just for children," partly because some games are full of lighthearted fun that appeals to any age, and partly because children tend to demand games that are really challenging, even to adults.

The grammar set gets sophisticated very quickly and begins early to enjoy geography puzzles, for instance, or history and arithmetic games, points out the Whitman Publishing Company, headquarters for a busy "Santa's workshop," producing juvenile books, games and activity sets.

Aside from the children's games that invite family participation, there are those designed primarily for adults. Here, the children are likely to put in their claim for a share in the competition.

Stocking Gifts Doubly Right

Fill her stocking — with stockings. This Christmas finds the stocking high in importance as a fashion accessory, so that the "gift she always needs" can be doubly pleasing.

With hemlines rising, a little or a lot, special styles in stockings for shorter skirts make timely gifts. Short-welt or no-welt seamless stockings assure added inches of sheer elegance.

Festively right for holiday giving are glitter stockings that reflect the glamour of her costumes. One such style is a crochet stocking that intertwines gold and black or silver and white. Textures, casual or festive, continue in the news.

Many stockings come in special gift boxes for Santa's greater giving ease.

Artful Gifts

Art reproductions and prints, framed to match the decor, are an unique way of gifting the newlyweds in the family. They especially will appreciate and find much use for every kind of house gift.

Bikes Top 'Asked-for' Gift Lists

As any department store Santa Claus can tell you, the bicycle is the single most-asked-for gift each year. Nearly 25 per cent of the six million bikes bought in America each year — more than a million of them — are bought during the pre-Christmas season.

Bicycle popularity has doubled in America in the last eight years until now, with over 57 million riders, cycling is the nation's number one participation sport, according to the Athletic Institute in Chicago.

Once the province of the very young, cycling is becoming more and more popular with the adults of all ages; college students, young marrieds, and older citizens as well, riding for fun, fitness, outdoor recreation and economical transportation.

More than 40 cities around the country have provided bikeways and other riding facilities for this growing number of cyclists, and more than 100 others are planned.

The federal government, too, is aiding the cycling fraternity, with almost 200,000 miles of bike paths, trails and bikeways planned for construction in the next decade.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, who once called cyclists "our forgotten outdoorsmen," recently predicted a new era for cyclists when he said,

"I see an America where our air is sweet to breathe and our rivers are clean to swim in. I see an America where bicycle paths, running through the heart of our great cities, provide wholesome, healthy recreation for an entire family."

For Candlelight

Candles and Christmas go together, and so do gifts of candleholders. These can be as simple as a single candleholder, as elaborate as a five-arm wrought iron sconce.

Sterling Gifts Individualized

Giving silver for Christmas? There are some pieces which, although less used, are no less welcome. Perhaps the lady on the gift list fits one of the following categories:

Is she renowned throughout the neighborhood for her cakes and pies? Then she'd love a sterling silver cake breaker, cake knife or pastry or pie server.

Does she often entertain at tea? A solid silver bonbon or nut spoon, or perhaps a lemon fork or sugar spoon, would find a warm welcome.

Does she dote on salads? Wooden or plastic salad servers with sterling handles are truly magnificent gifts.

Because Wise Men Came Bearing Gifts

By ANNA MANG

There's a special feeling in the air. Churches, dwellings, stores and other business buildings reflect a mood of joy and anticipation. Every face wears a smile.

Christmas is coming!

Right now, much of the preparation for this happiest holiday centers around the selection of gifts — gifts to go under the tree, into the stockings, off to the post office and into the homes of friends and relations. For Christmas is gift giving time.

There are those who ask, "Why is Christmas so commercial?" The complaint implied is, at first thought, an understandable one. Why indeed should this important holy day of the Christian religion become a time noted for the exchange of gifts?

For many, Christmas is a secular holiday. But even for those to whom it has the deepest religious significance, gift giving is in fact an expression of that significance.

A clue to the real importance of gifts at Christmas comes from a comparison of two ideas — "exchanging gifts" and "giving gifts." The feeling that a gift must be given to someone, because a gift will be received in return, is never properly part of Christmas.

But to give a gift, out of appreciation, friendship, love or, simply, out of the gladness of heart that the season brings, expresses the generosity that is the very spirit of Christmas.

Because Wise Men brought gifts to the Manger, the tradition of giving is a hallowed one. They gave from the heart, and gave of their best, to honor an Infant King. Their gifts were precious treasures, in terms of worldly wealth — gold, frankincense and myrrh.

As the many legends of Christmas attest, the simple gift is no less precious. One story relates that weeds, brought to the Manger by a peasant child, were transformed into glorious flowers.

To give according to means, and to give thoughtfully, is to give that which will be cherished. Where means permit, the gift of greater monetary value can, equally well, represent thoughtfulness. The Wise Men, after all, gave costly treasures, appropriately chosen from their stores of wealth.

Large or small, inexpensive or more costly, the gift gains meaning from the generous spirit.

This Christmas, there are millions who are fortunate in the ability to give generously, and the inclination to do so. Yet, Christmas need not be "commercial." Gifts selected with the sincere wish of pleasing, by givers who take thought of special needs and interests, will always have a value money cannot buy.

All Family Can Enjoy New Games

Children and Christmas go together. And the choice of gifts for children, especially if some are selected with adult participation in mind, can go a long way in determining the family fun and excitement of this year's activities beneath the Christmas tree.

Games are one category of gifting that never fails to please both the kids and the grownups. Older sister and brother, as well as Mom and Dad, can get a lot of enjoyment from many games supposedly "just for children," partly because some games are full of lighthearted fun that appeals to any age, and partly because children tend to demand games that are really challenging, even to adults.

The grammar set gets sophisticated very quickly and begins early to enjoy geography puzzles, for instance, or history and arithmetic games, points out the Whitman Publishing Company, headquarters for a busy "Santa's workshop," producing juvenile books, games and activity sets.

Aside from the children's games that invite family participation, there are those designed primarily for adults. Here, the children are likely to put in their claim for a share in the competition.

'Almost Human' Talent Offered in New Dolls

This Christmas the new dolls qualify for superlatives all along the line. Sure to draw delighted shouts of amazement from doll mothers are a new contingent of realer-than-life dolls boasting enhanced talents in the "almost human" cateogry, and outfitted in up-to-the minute fashions from head to toe.

Side by side are a fascinating array of character dolls ranging from nostalgic prototypes of beloved children's stories and movies to totally fantastic creations and frankly ugly monsters.

Joining a new contingent of Mary Poppins-inspired character dolls are Winnie the Pooh, Christopher Robin, and a newly costumed Raggedy Anne, as well as a Little Women series.

On the fashion front there's a new Go Go Patty Duke, outfitted with fashionable bell bottom slacks, an overblouse with floppy mushroom sleeves, medium heel shoes and a rooted side flip hairdo.

Fully bendable construction permits the doll to be posed in almost any Go-Go action stance. Included is a recording of Patty's latest song hit.

TV Influences Dolls

Predictably, Batman and Superman are present in the parade of new dolls. Little Lulu, inspired by the cartoon character, has a washable vinyl face and long yarn hair. A marionette prototype of Soupy Sales does "the mouse."

A significant trend in the 1966 doll world is provided by new techniques of sculpturing faces to achieve highly realistic effects. In this category is a doll modeled to dramatize "baby's first tooth," a sure fire compassion winner.

The sculptured features express the pain of a teething infant. One lone tooth protrudes and tears stream down her face. To help soothe the pain, a real baby pacifier comes with the doll. The body is soft and huggable, and the limbs are of bendable vinyl, for complete flexibility.

Realism Takes Over

New in the realistic doll roundup is Cheerful Tearful, who smiles, pouts, cries, and wets.

There are dolls with "talking lips" and there's an off beat doll called Little Miss No Name, attired in a burlap sack. There's another contender for realistic honors, that walks alone, with the aid of batteries, and goes to sleep when she lies down.

New realistic note is a landscaped doll house with grass that really grows. Among the most versatile doll accessories is a kit that has modular parts which make up into a rocker, a playpen, a high chair, swing, car seat and more.

In the nostalgic doll category is Raggedy Anne, a reigning favorite after half a century, bowing this Christmas, in her first costume change, a printed flannel night gown and matching cap.

'Do-It-Yourself' Decorating Ideas

Christmas and snowmen go together—but what if it doesn't snow? Mom and-or the kids can make a decorative snowman that doesn't melt, and doesn't need snow — just gift wrapping materials.

Here's all that's needed:

3 rolls white "Lustre-Tie" 1¼ inch ribbon
1 roll scarlet ¾ inch ribbon
2 foam balls—3 inches for head, 5 inches for body
Pipe cleaners, pins, beads, cardboard, 8½ inch dowel, paper cup and gift wrap

Strip white ribbon into three parts and wind around each foam ball. Cut white ribbon into four - inch lengths; using pin, finely slash centers, leaving one-half inch margins at each end, which will be moistened and stuck together to form fringe.

Starting at bottom of foam balls, moisten fringes and stick to ribbon base, working in overlapping rows. Attach head to body with a toothpick and add scarlet ribbon bow. Pin on bead eyes.

Make arms by winding fringe around pipe cleaners; insert into body. Cover a paper cup and a cardboard circle with gift wrap and glue together for hat. Pin to head.

Shred eight three-inch strips of scarlet ribbon and wind around one end of dowel for broom; cover remainder of dowel with red ribbon.

Festive princess of lustrous worsted and silk, curved with a bow-trimmed turnover collar. A lovely way to look in Green, Plum or Mortar.

THE MEDITERRANEAN motif is magnificently depicted in this massive credenza which houses a three-way home entertainment center. Motorola model LK732C—The Granada—has big screen rectangular color television, solid state stereo phonograph and built-in solid state FM/AM and FM stereo rado. The cabinet, which has sliding doors, is constructed of mahogany veneers and hardwood solids with a Mediterranean mahogany finish. At Landwehr TV, Arlington Heights.

Gifts of Linen Prove Practical

Traditionally right for a white and colorful Christmas, gifts of linens now can be newsworthy as well as useful.

Now that king - size beds have moved into so many bedrooms, an up-to-date gift could be supersize sheets, widely available in attractive patterns and colors.

The thriving development of durable press suggests still another timely gift—durable press sheets, for machine washing, wrinkle-free tumble drying, with no ironing.

For His Car

The gift is just naturally one for the road when the man has a car, and a gift for the car is always right. To mention just a few — there are power flashlights, seat covers, tissue dispensers, radio and tape players, driving gloves, floor rugs.

Give Extra Film For Yule Photos

There are two gifts from the realm of photography that should be added to any other picture making gift to be given this Christmas.

One of these is film, in any quantity you think you can afford from a single roll or cartridge that can serve as a stocking stuffer, up to — you say when.

The other is a quantity of flash bulbs, and here a "quantity" is going to depend on how much extra you want to spend.

'Almost Human' Talent Offered in New Dolls

This Christmas the new dolls qualify for superlatives all along the line. Sure to draw delighted shouts of amazement from doll mothers are a new contingent of realer-than-life dolls boasting enhanced talents in the "almost human" cateogry, and outfitted in up-to-the minute fashions from head to toe.

Side by side are a fascinating array of character dolls ranging from nostalgic prototypes of beloved children's stories and movies to totally fantastic creations and frankly ugly monsters.

Joining a new contingent of Mary Poppins-inspired character dolls are Winnie the Pooh, Christopher Robin, and a newly costumed Raggedy Anne, as well as a Little Women series.

On the fashion front there's a new Go Go Patty Duke, outfitted with fashionable bell bottom slacks, an overblouse with floppy mushroom sleeves, medium heel shoes and a rooted side flip hairdo.

Fully bendable construction permits the doll to be posed in almost any Go-Go action stance. Included is a recording of Patty's latest song hit.

TV Influences Dolls

Predictably, Batman and Superman are present in the parade of new dolls. Little Lulu, inspired by the cartoon character, has a washable vinyl face and long yarn hair. A marionette prototype of Soupy Sales does "the mouse."

A significant trend in the 1966 doll world is provided by new techniques of sculpturing faces to achieve highly realistic effects. In this category is a doll modeled to dramatize "baby's first tooth," a sure fire compassion winner.

The sculptured features express the pain of a teething infant. One lone tooth protrudes and tears stream down her face. To help soothe the pain, a real baby pacifier comes with the doll. The body is soft and huggable, and the limbs are of bendable vinyl, for complete flexibility.

Realism Takes Over

New in the realistic doll roundup is Cheerful Tearful, who smiles, pouts, cries, and wets.

There are dolls with "talking lips" and there's an off beat doll called Little Miss No Name, attired in a burlap sack. There's another contender for realistic honors, that walks alone, with the aid of batteries, and goes to sleep when she lies down.

New realistic note is a landscaped doll house with grass that really grows. Among the most versatile doll accessories is a kit that has modular parts which make up into a rocker, a playpen, a high chair, swing, car seat and more.

In the nostalgic doll category is Raggedy Anne, a reigning favorite after half a century, bowing this Christmas, in her first costume change, a printed flannel night gown and matching cap.

'Do-It-Yourself' Decorating Ideas

Christmas and snowmen go together—but what if it doesn't snow? Mom and-or the kids can make a decorative snowman that doesn't melt, and doesn't need snow — just gift wrapping materials.

Here's all that's needed:

3 rolls white "Lustre-Tie" 1¼ inch ribbon
1 roll scarlet ¾ inch ribbon
2 foam balls—3 inches for head, 5 inches for body
Pipe cleaners, pins, beads, cardboard, 8½ inch dowel, paper cup and gift wrap

Strip white ribbon into three parts and wind around each foam ball. Cut white ribbon into four - inch lengths; using pin, finely slash centers, leaving one-half inch margins at each end, which will be moistened and stuck together to form fringe.

Starting at bottom of foam balls, moisten fringes and stick to ribbon base, working in overlapping rows. Attach head to body with a toothpick and add scarlet ribbon bow. Pin on bead eyes.

Make arms by winding fringe around pipe cleaners; insert into body. Cover a paper cup and a cardboard circle with gift wrap and glue together for hat. Pin to head.

Shred eight three-inch strips of scarlet ribbon and wind around one end of dowel for broom; cover remainder of dowel with red ribbon.

Good Grooming Can Spark Good Gifting

If he likes to look neat—and virtually every man does—grooming gifts make especially appropriate presents for the holiday season. The choices range from items priced low enough for Junior to afford, up to more luxurious gifts such as electric shoe polishers or razors.

New model electric razors, for instance, combine good grooming factors with speed, ease and comfort. Some are both plug-in and battery operated, offering the convenience of shaving anytime or anywhere the man chooses.

High on the popularity list are grooming gift sets, usually consisting of cologne, aftershave lotion and a deodorant. There's a plus bonus here, too, since most of these sets are handsomely packaged so that each "gift wraps" itself.

Scents are gaining more and more favor as a men's grooming item for gifting, as is witnessed by the large variety of "strictly-for-men" fragrances which feature subtle blends with a masculine air. Handsome packaging adds to their appeal. And there are such ideas as a "cologne caddy," in brushed metal with jet base, to provide dresser-top distinction.

The area of apparel offers many opportunities for good grooming gift giving: suit hangers, over-sized lint brushes, garment bags and boxes only begin the list of items to help a man look his best.

For the well-groomed man who travels, a compact toiletry kit is an indispensable grooming aid, making this gift choice a well-calculated one. Included in the kits are combs, hairbrushes, toothbrushes, shaving equipment plus other aids useful while traveling.

Grooming gifts can fit in fine with Junior's budget for the holiday: items like razors, blades, bottles of cologne, shoe brushes and combs are priced low enough for Junior to be a good Santa's helper and give gifts which are appreciated—and useful, too!

Teen Trends Good Guide

Teen trends can guide Santa to the right gifts for young individualists.

Right now, the liking for wild watches is a clue. In wrist styles, look for wide straps, bold faces, "I.D." types. Other unusual watches are set into rings and pins.

Charms to commemorate a special moment, identification or remembrance bracelets and personalized rings and pins are "in" ideas for teens.

Girls flip for decorative barettes, other hair clips.

Framed Pictures Welcomed Gifts

Pretty-as-a-picture Christmas gifts can be just that — framed pictures especially chosen for friends and relatives, young or old.

When choosing a picture for a gift, it is important to consider the recipient's taste, according to the Picture and Frame Institute.

If a gift - picture goes along with a general art preference, a special hobby interest, or the decorating and color scheme of the home, it's bound to please.

Reproductions of favorite paintings by famous artists are available in department and variety stores, chain stores, book and gift stores, and picture framing stores, as well as museums. Reproductions of paintings by lesser-known artists are also available and often make interesting gifts.

Family photographs or collections of miniature objects, such as buttons or needlework, can be framed for gift-giving.

Prices start under one dollar for reproductions, and sometimes go as high in price as original art. The reproduction method determines cost.

As important as the picture is the frame, for it enhances and emphasizes the picture. In selecting a frame, remember that it should "set off" the picture and its subject.

Framed Pictures Welcomed Gifts

Pretty-as-a-picture Christmas gifts can be just that — framed pictures especially chosen for friends and relatives, young or old.

When choosing a picture for a gift, it is important to consider the recipient's taste, according to the Picture and Frame Institute.

If a gift - picture goes along with a general art preference, a special hobby interest, or the decorating and color scheme of the home, it's bound to please.

Reproductions of favorite paintings by famous artists are available in department and variety stores, chain stores, book and gift stores, and picture framing stores, as well as museums. Reproductions of paintings by lesser-known artists are also available and often make interesting gifts.

Family photographs or collections of miniature objects, such as buttons or needlework, can be framed for gift-giving.

Prices start under one dollar for reproductions, and sometimes go as high in price as original art. The reproduction method determines cost.

As important as the picture is the frame, for it enhances and emphasizes the picture. In selecting a frame, remember that it should "set off" the picture and its subject.

TRIFARI'S "STAR FLIGHT," a magnificent flexible collar with rhinestones close to the throat and feather-like shoots of color cascading from it is the height of jeweled elegance. Tremendously chic are the button earrings and the newly fashionable flexible bracelet. "Star Flight" is particularly lovely in canary tones. Available at Persin and Robbin Jewelers, Arlington Heights.

Organized Giving

Valet stands make unusual gifting for a man, and make a practical gift that will organize his preparations for dressing. Available in frames of wood or metal, these stands neatly hold the clothes he will wear for the day, plus small items he carries with him.

For Teenagers

Frequently when a teen - ager becomes a candidate for car ownership smart dads arrange to give them one of the family's existing cars, and buy mom a new one. This plan makes two people happy and the new car gift purchase a "clean deal."

Small Appliances Thoughtful Gifts

The truth of the axiom, "little things mean a lot," was never better demonstrated than by the thoughtful giving of small electric appliances at Christmas. These little helpers have a big way of performing in the kitchen, and in other areas of the home.

They are big, too, in the variety of ways to gift many people on the list, yet in terms of enduring enjoyment through long - lasting use, the cost of such presents is small.

Presents planned for a particular member of the family, as well as "home and family gifts," can be successfully selected from small electric appliances.

In the kitchen helper category, innumerable gifts suggest themselves as "naturals" for Mom, from the basic toasters, mixers and coffeemakers to blenders, fry pans, rotisseries, griddles and grills.

One manufacturer offers a "two in one" gift idea — an electric can opener that also crushes ice! And Dad, as well as Mom, might appreciate an electric knife, to help him show off his carving skill.

Around the house, Mom can use gifts such as an electric furniture polisher.

SANTA has decided to use a Bridgestone this year. He will be delivering many accessories for the motorcycle enthusiast, from helmets to handlebars. His new Bridgestone is quiet, it is faster, more powerful, and more dependable than anything he has ever tried before. (Mrs. Claus says the Bridgestone is prettier than anything she has ever seen.) Santa is busier than ever. He is sure he will make all of his deliveries on time with his Bridgestone. Maybe he will leave a Bridgestone under your tree on Christmas morning.

Wrappings Make Christmas Bright

WRAPPING UP A BRIGHT CHRISTMAS

Wrapping up Christmas is a major task that can be pleasant and artistic or tedious, hectic and frantic on Christmas Eve or leisurely spaced throughout the pre-Christmas buying season.

Everyone has his or her own pet gift wrapping methods, whether gifts are wrapped all at once or wrapped as they are bought, and hidden away until Christmas morn.

Either way, it is helpful and time - saving to set up a Gift Wrap Center where needed materials are kept together and ready for use. This "Center" may be a room, a closet or merely a drawer providing storage space for equipment.

Privacy and secrecy can be maintained if boundaries are set up beforehand so that the rest of the family knows when "Do Not Peek . . . Santa's Helpers at Work" is in effect.

The Gift Wrap Center should be equipped with a table or countertop space, a selection of various - sized boxes, attractive gift wraps, tissue paper for linings, ribbons, bows or bow maker, stickers, tags, package ornaments (these can be anything that takes the wrapper's fancy), cellophane tape, scissors, cardboard, rubber cement or glue.

A wastebasket, broom and dust pan should be kept handy for quick clean ups. A large, discarded box is a convenient container for waste materials because the container and all can be thrown away at clean-up time.

For packages that are to be mailed, there should be wrapping paper, tape, sturdy string, corrugated cardboard, mailing labels, excelsior and-or newspaper for interior packing of fragile items.

To make sure Santa's Christmas - by - mail is a happy one, pack fragile gifts carefully and wrap all gifts securely. Address clearly, and don't forget the return address. Above all, mail early!

When imagination flows through the gift wrapper's fingertips, shirtboards, paper, ribbon, empty ribbon belts and spools can turn packages into unusual creations to be admired under the tree.

Give Personal Touch

Pleasant byways to follow in gifting a man are found in the areas of personal jewelry and leather goods. These gifts can be personalized, too — a wallet or pocket secretary inscribed with initials; a monogrammed belt; a ring bearing the emblem of school, fraternal or lodge affiliation.

For Teen Scene

With pierced earrings making the teen scene, an appreciated gift might be pearl or button types either for pierced ears or clipless styles that capture the same look.
